Thread: Pixl.ml | Simple & Free File Sharing For HF

Muddy - March 4, 2017, 12:26 am

Decided to host this site just for fun. This is a very lightweight site that makes it easy for you to upload files in a quick second. I have a clean, short domain. Feel free to bookmark if you find the site useful! I want to eventually move it to a dedicated server but right now I'm using HostSlayer Shared Hosting. If Pixl gets some attention and good use out of it I'll upgrade to a bigger and faster server.

This is an open-source website.

Thanks hope that someone makes good use out of Pixl. I like hosting the site and moving to a bigger server is definitely in the plans.

This is really cool! You can upload pages in html format and the link goes to the page :D

Thank you! If you upload a PDF you can view it online at the link which is also cool.

This Friday I'm moving to a larger VPS with block storage. So stay tuned for faster and larger uploads! ??

After the upload completes , You need to make a system of redirection to another link where users can use Copy Button easily and don't get confused .

So you suggest a copy button next to the link output? Or a button to redirect to your link in a new tab?

Nice layout, not a personal favorite though. Also, I don't see where the max size is?

Coming soon is a TOS page and file upload limit messages. Plus a contact page and a few other designs to the site will be made later on this week once I'm on a new host. Will still be very simple but also have some more to it :)

Yes I suggest a copy button next to the link output

Thanks for your suggestion it's definitely been noted. I'm having the original creator of this source do all the front end design changes and server hardening and optimization.

This Friday we launch our official service and I'm very excited!

Today we're switching hosts as promised and going to be under a new domain name. I'll either edit this thread if I can or create a new one with this new promising release.
