Thread: Looking for an anime to pass the time?

Yui-Senpai - March 5, 2017, 10:27 am

When watching a big series I always stop part way though and want to watch something other than what I am currently watching. Today I came across some little "movies" that I thought some of you should check them out.

They are not your everyday anime and they are pretty special so give them a go, its not going to be packed full of action or story but its just something on its own.

Synopsis

Four anime works that each received 38 million yen (about US$470,000) from the "2011 Young Animator Training Project." Just like in 2010, the animation labor group received 214.5 million yen (US$2.65 million) from the Japanese government's Agency for Cultural Affairs, and it distributed most of those funds to studios who train young animators on-the-job.

Planning to watch Erased tonight, not sure what to expect.

I always react differently than what the reviews imply lol

If you want a good Anime to pass the time, just go check out Black Bullet or if you like movies, watch either Wolf Children or Kimi no na Wa.

They are all good and really draw you in, they are all personal favorites of mine, you should have a look if you haven't already.
