Thread: IM, ORCUS OR LuminosityLink + what crypter

wanbetaaler - March 6, 2017, 9:12 am

Hey,

I am trying to get a RAT service but i'd like to know which of the 3 listed below is better.

- IM
- Orcus
- LuminosityLink

Main features that would be used,

- keylogger
- webcam live
- checking desktop live
- controlling machine with keyboard and mouse live
- recording webcam or desktop (if possible)
- looking up saved passwords of web browsers and known apps
- getting the cookie of the browser

And what crypter would be good to use for the rat you are recommending me.

Imminent Monitor has all the features you're looking for.

Armada - March 6, 2017, 11:16 am

Every RAT you listed supports these features.

Literally pick your poison.

Luminosity and IM I find are more "new user friendly"

Orcus has more expand ability, and flexibility, but does take slightly more knowledge to operate.

It really is the users choice, most users I find end up owning 2-3 pieces of software regardless. ?

Pfft since everybody is is doing it.

Get NanoCore, there's a trial here too <https://nanocore.io/#trial>

btw

which one

nanocore, IM, Orcus, LuminosityLink

works with windows 10 ?

cuz on nanocore i got forbidden msg 403

All those RATs are compatible with Win10. If you are having trouble contact their relevant support teams

I would highly advise to get LL. Dont get Nanocore it is the worst of all of them.

That is opinion, not trashing brotha.

- This is an OPINION based thread.

It's still something you shouldn't do, just a respect thing

He just stated his opinion. It's like saying Toyota is trash. Not everyone thinks that way. Plus this is an open forum. Everyone is bound to express their opinions in one form or another.

Orcus in my opinion, IM is also good

How do you know we consumers own 2-3 different rats? Dammit Armada is a psychic. ?
