Thread: Reason for ban?

2073436 - March 7, 2017, 9:44 am

Wouldn't it be nice to display the reason as to why an user got banned?

I was going on this profile for example

<https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=3282602>

And I could not see the reason of his ban, I checked his trustscan as well.

I can't go back in the ban list to check the reason for his ban, too.

I don't really care where it would be put, it just has to be seen by people who want to know why the user got banned. It will also help keeping the "why did .. get banned" posts close to 0.

Anyone else who likes this suggestion? I don't think it's the hardest thing to add and I was surprised when I didn't see the reason of the ban on the profile.

I found this which means it's only there for closed accounts but wouldn't it be much better to have this for all accounts? Since there are active members who have been banned and you can't see the reasoning behind the ban.

Bans page that shows UB3Rs why somebody was banned only showed 72 hours of ban logs now because of user scripts.

It was changed recently to only 72 hours.

I believe the HFES puts the ban reason on the profiles

What if a member got banned 4 days ago?

What's that? Never heard about it.

Found this though

Correct me if I'm wrong but I don't think that's working any longer.

He is on an indefinite vacation ban. As for your suggestion, it has been suggested and denied multiple times. Not sure if that will change with the bans.php cut though.
