Thread: Is Necrobot working for you guys?

passwords - March 7, 2017, 6:18 pm

So I got into botting PokemonGo yesterday because I wanted to see what it was all about..

And NecroBot was working just fine and when I tries starting it up this morning it just started thrwing me exceptions.

This is what it looks like, are they doing an update?

And no my account is not banned.

And yes the account name & password is correct.

Tsunfire - March 7, 2017, 6:23 pm

Probably temporary banned, Pokemon GO botting was dead ages ago.

Not banned, can play on my phone and what not, and this bot was updated like 2 weeks ago so its back, you're welcome.

Well of course you can play but exceptions arise when the bot has inhuman config which result in a temporary ban.

How come its working on other bots then? ;s

Sorry i'm just finding this very weird.

Why im not using the other bots you might be wondering..

Because Necro has the best exp rate.

I also ried with with newsly created accounts..

I think there has been an update and thats probably it.. I'll keep this thread updated.

Exp rate is meaningless when you're capped daily. The issue is that the login URL changed in 0.57.4, and they just killed the old one.

Botting never died, and won't die until it's not profitable anymore.

Do you reckon they will update the bot anytime soon?

Of course.

Bossland is currently looking into the login procedure. Good chance they'll release it.

They're pretty good with time, so I'd say 1 to 3 days before that's public. Then it's up to the dev to update the bot.

Another option is for someone else to mitm the request, but it's one of those things that requires specific tools.

If the bot you're using can't login, then it's

- a) Using the free hashing method. That has been killed.
- b) They're sending an invalid hash for the initial request. You'll have to wait for them to update. Shouldn't be long now. I found my mistake, which is also the same for a few public APIs.

pretty sure botting is dead nowadays...
probably temp ban

There was an api update that changed the way accounts login. It made all bots go down for awhile but they should be back up by now. I am not entirely sure about necrobot

Funny enough, it wasn't the login change. They started validating the hashes, which caused issues on the initial request on some bots + public APIs. 1 extra byte causing a bad hash ...

Not everything was affected.

Dolipplo - March 11, 2017, 4:29 am

It's perfectly working for me. :D

I bought a private hashing key and still ended up getting the new warning alert. Can't figure out what is the cause of it. Some peoples say its logging in and out of multiple devices often.

One theory is that it's meant to warn spoofers before they get banned, sniping / large jumps constantly would throw a warning.

It holds up as people get it after sniping, but there's other flags as well. I'd guess similar non-human behavior will flag it too.

Never knew the Pokemon GO cheating scene was still alive.
