Thread: eBay Feedback

Deathy - March 8, 2017, 5:53 am

I remember seeing loads of eBay feedback exchange groups back in the day?

Are these allowed currently?

TheVBScripter - March 8, 2017, 6:10 am

I don't think they are allowed anymore, because I never seen them again.
eBay feedback with rating and a minimum of ... words, right?

Anyway, not sure about all this but I do recall seeing them at here.

I can't find anything about feedback/reviews, but I assume it's part of "partnership".

Thanks for the info, but I've just found this from not too long ago.

Now I'm confused.

So it is allowed?

Haha, I guess so.

I've seen a lot of LocalBitcoins feedback exchange fairly recently too, so I believe it might be.

That's from 2012 and someone bumped it in 2016. It's still not allowed.

So it's not allowed? Can you show me which rule indicates that, so I will bookmark that page.

It's not explicitly stated in the Help Docs but it's basically the same rule you linked. Here is why.

Definitely need Omni to chime in as this appears a 50/50 subject.

Roger Waters Wrote: Not allowed.

It is considered fraudulent since you are exchanging fake feedback on someone else's account for which you never even did a deal with. This is against eBay's ToS and this behavior will not be tolerated here.
