Vouch for xC0re, dealt with him, made him the graphics for his product.

I can say that even if he's new, I can make you sure that you can trust this guy. I've worked with a lot of people, but he's one of the first that I can say I trust him a lot.

xC0re - March 10, 2017, 9:30 am

We are still FUD:

GZUZ - March 10, 2017, 5:39 pm

Does this bypass ALL major AV's runtime scans?

At this moment I can say yes, but if you can be wait a couple day I will have video ready for proof of runtime with most AV.

GhostintheShock - March 10, 2017, 9:33 pm

Can you please post some videos - runtime bypass for major AVs?

You shouldn't be raising eyes if a crypter has ESET as it's only detection.
ESET are all over HF buying crypters to fuck the owners.

EDIT: I don't vouch for this crypter in any way, this is just a good thing to know.

Yes ESET is buy crypters all the time.

I am online if anyone need help. Almost ready for runtime video of ESET, AVG, AVAST, Kaspersky.

xC0re - March 24, 2017, 10:34 pm

New update will be pushed now. You will be require to download new client to have new bypass method and better cloning.

Scan of today: FUD.

xC0re - March 26, 2017, 7:39 am

Same file but still FUD.

TheHolyTrinity - March 29, 2017, 6:32 am

Picked up a copy of this the other day, looks very nice OP! Working well for all files I've attempted to crypt so far.

Cheers!

Raymond - April 1, 2017, 5:48 am

When will the update? Already 3 discoveries.

markworld - April 4, 2017, 2:33 am no updates for some days. seems this will be average until i see good scan results.

xC0re - April 4, 2017, 12:06 pm

I will be post a scan after update tonight. Look like it is been detected (upload to vt).

MonEy - April 5, 2017, 11:41 am

Just a little warning to OP - pscan distributes samples so don't use it and you'll save yourself some time updating.
