

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: School hacking Assistance

thenextbigrend - March 9, 2017, 6:42 pm

So I attend a school with school provided laptops. These laptops are very shut down. Bios is locked. No local admin. It is connected to a domain as well which limits most common methods. I have been able to get to admin cmd prompt in automatic repair options. However any changes to accounts are not saved. I am able to get to regedit from here as well. I am looking to get local admin any advice would be great. I am a newbie btw.

YayHar - March 9, 2017, 6:48 pm

If you're a newbie you shouldn't be doing anything risky or illegal. Yet.

"Hacking" is a broad term, what is the purpose and end goal? A common theme of these school hacking threads is that there is no end goal and you just want to get into things and cause trouble, in which case you're not going to get the desired goal, as there is no desired goal. See the issue?

Even if you do have a desired goal, and you manage to do what you're planning, do you actually think the school will let that pass by? Professional establishments take what you're thinking about very seriously and won't hesitate to involve any if not all of their resources to find out who did what and for what reason.

If you're planning on doing something illegal, don't be stupid. Get practice, and not just "I used command prompt for a month".

Don't.

booger99 - March 9, 2017, 7:25 pm

Imagine if the school saw this shit lmao

Charger - March 9, 2017, 7:28 pm

Don't shit where you eat; don't hack your school.

SIM-2875347 - March 9, 2017, 7:29 pm

Do not do anything to your school. It is not worth it.

UglyMeister - March 9, 2017, 9:34 pm

Don't hack your school. Get your education and be a productive member of society.

Jar Jar Binks - March 9, 2017, 11:42 pm

Yer gonna hack your school and then what? Hang around and be a suspect for 4 more years?

THC - March 10, 2017, 7:32 am

(Mar 9, 2017 07:48 PM)YayHar Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you're a newbie you shouldn't be doing anything risky or illegal. Yet.

I think you mean EVER.

Greg8Tacos - March 10, 2017, 1:05 pm

Why do you want to get your school admin login? For the lulz? its not worth it just to say "Yo look I downloaded minecraft!"

Niko - March 10, 2017, 1:08 pm

(Mar 10, 2017 08:32 AM)M.D. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think you mean EVER.

If anything people should be doing their hacking before they are 18 years of age just in case they do get caught

Vobz - March 10, 2017, 2:12 pm

its not worth getting admin, just do your school work and leave it at that.

Charger - March 10, 2017, 6:52 pm

(Mar 10, 2017 02:08 PM)Nikopai Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If anything people should be doing their hacking before they are 18 years of age just in case they do get caught Cyber crime is a really quick felony in most states. Plus if you did something like hack your school to harass someone then you'd catch a felony. Felonies don't go away at 18.

Do something like disrupt the education process? Guess what, you get charged with the loss that school incurs for not being able to instruct that day.

Plus you'll get expelled and lose computer access for all of your public education career.

Armada - March 10, 2017, 8:24 pm

(Mar 10, 2017 07:52 PM)Charger Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Cyber crime is a really quick felony in most states. Plus if you did something like hack your school to harass someone then you'd catch a felony. Felonies don't go away at 18.

Do something like disrupt the education process? Guess what, you get charged with the loss that school incurs for not being able to instruct that day.

Plus you'll get expelled and lose computer access for all of your public education career. Pretty much this.

School computer = Federal property.

Tampering with federal computer systems = federal crime.

Not worth it.

Vladmir Putin - March 10, 2017, 8:27 pm

If I hacked an old high school website today I probably would get caught. It's been years since high school by the way. People would call me hey dude did you hack our high school website? BRB going to prison waking up to the BBC on the daily.

vaiperboy - March 11, 2017, 8:42 am lol you gotta be an idiot for trying to do these shit with ur school's laptop, anything u do will also lead back to you, so i wouldn't recommend it :c