Thread: this fucking retarded company won't refund me tim - March 14, 2017, 12:36 pm

so i bought some parts, they didn't work.

shipped em back to em with their fucking shipping label.

they won't refund via paypal cuz item isnt returned because the shipping company says its undelivarable to the address.... yet they gave me that fucking address to ship to????

should paypal refund me or?

The way I see it, if it's undeliverable you're screwed buddy, just try to get on to the company and pester them.

Call PayPal and explain this to them and they will definitely refund you the money because they can see the status of delivery with tracking. If not they'll give the business more time to check if contents are fully delivered and then refund you. Either way, you'll be refunded if you've returned everything

You're completely in safe hands if you got tracking and they can see it's the other parties fault, not yours.

it was a company that sells tools to fix shit around the house.

Did they sent you the shipping label through the paypal messaging system?

yeah. i got the email with their shipping label they sent me AND tracking # and proof i sent items....
so yeah.

i guess paypal will favor me.

label was sent to my email directly (email is my paypal email too)

You will get refunded since you have tracking, just call up the paypal.

Btw a quick tip, when you get refunded you can keep those items and they can not do anything to you. Of course if they are even worth anything now.

Usually when you ship them to underivable address, they should return them to original sender, idk what kind of shipping do you use, but I suggest contacting them as well and ask for options.
