Thread: Thinking of making a builder for my macro exploit

licker98 - March 20, 2017, 2:30 pm

I've decided to try to make a builder for my macro exploit as if I'm lucky, I might be able to make a sale or two and be proud to have coded something for hacking purposes. Anyway, all of the builder tutorials I have seen are for RATs and since the coding I'm practising and doing in college is rather basic, I have little understanding of how to make a program that interacts with Word.

I know lots of you dislike pasting code (for obvious reasons) so please could one of you give me a push in the right direction?

There are existing (NuGet) libraries to interact with a Word document. Or stop being a greedy fuck and release it for free. I mean, you make $3,500 a week according to your signature so why all this work for a few $s?
