Thread: Separate money methods from Premium Sellers Section

poisson - March 20, 2017, 6:48 pm

The Premium Sellers Section is riddled with titles like: "SUPER MONEY MAKING 100% AUTOPILOT", "HOW TO MAKE $2000 ON THE FIRST DAY [CUSTOMER PROOF]", and etc. This is annoying for people who are actually looking for software/programs to purchase. Like multitools, proxy scrapers, exploit builders, bots, hacks, physical goods, and so on. I think there should be a distinct separation between the two for these reason:

1) New users signing up for "hackforums.net" are more than likely going to be intrigued by software/programs that are for sale. The Premium Sellers Section might be there first stop. Seeing a wall of MONEY MAKING METHODS in all caps just represents hackforums the wrong way.

2) Creates incentive for development. Having a strong marketplace will entice development for software/development. Currently, coders are having to compete with money making methods and this is a barrier to entry.

Example: Imagine if there was a law where car salesmen could only sell cars inside grocery stores. Is that really an attractive option for both buyers and sellers?

3) Stemming off from #2, this would create a market where coders can directly compete with other coders for customers. When the market is clearly defined and competition is visible, the laws of supply and demand become valid. A perfect example of this is the Cryptography and Encryption Market.

Furthermore, these arguments/benefits can be applied to money making method sellers as well. In my opinion, these money making threads that you see are very low quality. Seems like it just boils down to whoever has the coolest thread design and how many paypal screenshots you can fit into one post.

An ebook bazaar exists, it's just that the PSS is for all products in general, ebooks, programs, websites, subscriptions, anything, unless there is a specific rule that you must sell something in a certain section, which there is not about ebooks.

That's true, but it seems like not many money making method (which let's be honest, are probably ebooks) sellers bother to post there anyways. They come to the PPS to avoid direct competition.

Omni already said he has no intentions of enforcing a rule like that.

I think they go to the PSS to avoid being label'd as a ebook, even though that's what it is hahah.

This is something I've wanted done for a long time.. There is an Ebook section for a reason.. why not sell there? NFA have to go in that section, buyers bay has a section.. yet Ebooks still flood the open marketplace.. I don't go to ebook section for a reason, yet I still get the shit I don't want to see, and it's the majority too.

This is what it boils down to.. highlighted is the "methods" or ebooks that are flooding premium sellers section.

Just annoying to sort through the same crap.

I mean, the people that buy those e-books are retards. Would you really want a retard to buy your program? If the person has a brain they will skip those threads till they find what they actually want. I agree, this should just go to the E-Book section of the marketplace, but it won't happen. So all you can really do is hope not everyone is an idiot on here.

I can see it already

Old thread: $5000 a month from home

New thread: Be like bill gates today because this isnt a moneymaking ebook right?

Komodo - March 20, 2017, 10:41 pm

It is getting kind of ridiculous, but I can't really see a rule being implemented to stop them.

This is worse than Youtube click baits
