Why does the thread say that you have a native output while also stating that the crypt relies on the .NET 2.0 Framework?

(Mar 25, 2017 11:51 AM)Friedrich Nietzsche Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why does the thread say that you have a native output while also stating that the crypt relies on the .NET 2.0 Framework?

Because we are using a packer

And yes it's .NET 2.0

I don't understand why you are trying to make a native output while it still depends on the .NET framework.

tried this online crypter with IM , had some good shit and some bad shit

Good shit :

- 1- FUD Scantime
- 2- FUD Runtime

Bad shit :

- 1- Error msgbox on runtime (the file was executed but error msgbox shows)
- 2- Can't Elevate to ADMIN
- 3- Stub is big

This test was only with IM , i will post the Netwire Paid version test later if those 3 bad shit are are resolved then it will be a PERFECT Crypter !

Scapula™ - July 26, 2017, 9:46 am

ATM i work on big update just let me some hours for finish it.

Meedman - July 27, 2017, 10:17 am

VirtualCrypt has been updated with some new features !

We're now using a native loader that search if the Frameworks 2.0 or 4.0 exist.
If the Frameworks 2 has been found, the crypted file will run as Frameworks 2.0, and of course if the computer has only Frameworks 4.0 it will run as Frameworks 4.0.

For example, computers under Windows : 8, 8.1 & 10 have Frameworks 4.0 as default only.

The second new feature is a protection against API's ring3 hooking, it will help you for get with each crypted file the best result possible on the most part of security softwares.

Malicious Intent - July 27, 2017, 3:39 pm

Nice update .. Works very well. First time user and not disappointed. GLWS

I've tried a lot of crypters. This is the BEST hands down. You don't have to choose a bunch of different options to make sure your file is FUD. VirtualCrypt takes care of that for you. You drag and drop the file, choose if you want startup or not and it takes care of the rest. I just bought the private stub and I'm confident it will last a while because my public stub file has been FUD for about a week. They inject a random image and give it a random file name and BOOM Native FUD beautifulness right out the box.

Not only that, but most of the crypters here only FUD scantime. This crypter is RUNTIME FUD for everything I've put it against. Pretty impressive.

it depends on how you spread your crypted file. I just re-encrypted with the same stub.

Taserz - January 23, 2018, 7:34 am

Did not spread it at all. Just ran updates on so chance of someone scanning the file is extremely low. Just found it very odd. Kaspersky though so I mean kudos to them.

It is enough that the file is not broken when encrypting it.

And keep Fud runtime and scan for a considerable time.

Hey meedman how are you?

Does the crypter work for Orcus?

And what setting should i set for best results?

Do you provide an warranty that it is FUD and i get 0/59 on Antivirus Scan?

Because 10$ per Crypt is not very unexpensive.

Best Regards

SIM-3132187 - April 9, 2018, 6:35 am

Hi, i'm using orcus and it's work really great. You have to check the 3 checkbox on VirtualCrypt and uncheck all on Orcus setting. But, 0/59 is virusTotal... Dont scan on it, use virusCheckMate.
Btw this crypter provide a 0/40 scan or you will be refund.
