It's been some time since I posted some of my work, so here's one of my latest logo creations!
This is a logo for a store which sells a drug about getting a tan, mostly used by bodybuilders or generally people of fitness!

Truth is I've had second thoughts regarding the yellow stroke when it comes to a colorful BG. I might make it white for such occasions.

Considered dropping the color into the text for the colored background? Adding yellow maybe to the subheading or the second part of the name and then changing the outline to white might work nice not sure didn't check it but just an idea off the top.

Clean design, nice looking over all and it makes sense. Neat little sun. I like it man.
