

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Is hacking a crime?

rumawdz - March 27, 2017, 10:31 am

I want to know, can I hack my husbands facebook if I suspect he is cheating with me? Is it ethical?

DevilHunterX - March 27, 2017, 10:37 am

Hey, my neighbor smells bad. I think I want to cut his head off.
Is killing a murder ?

CSv12 - March 27, 2017, 10:38 am

Unless you want to continued being cheated on.. LOL

vaiperboy - March 27, 2017, 12:52 pm

without his permission, no

Vittorio - March 27, 2017, 12:54 pm

This is considered black hat therefore making it not totally legal due tot he act you're bypassing your husbands privacy by using unethical ways.

izana - March 27, 2017, 12:54 pm

Logging into someone else's account without authorization or permission is illegal.

Ethical and legal are two different issues.

tweetdeck - March 27, 2017, 12:55 pm

It is not ethical. You should trust your husband or confront him about issues like these. Do not go behind his back and into his privacy. If you catch him in the act, that is a different story but out of suspicion, it is unethical. My honest opinion.

NGMA - March 27, 2017, 12:56 pm

(Mar 27, 2017 10:31 AM)rumawdz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I want to know, can I hack my husbands facebook if I suspect he is cheating with me? Is it ethical?

Ethical? If you suspect him of cheating ask him. Why be in a relationship if you're unhappy (from his perspective)

But yes, it is illegal.

NoMercy - March 27, 2017, 12:59 pm

Yes but the likelihood of you getting imprisoned for it is like 1000000 to 1 because they don't give a shit about low level shit like this really. They care about jacking cards, stealing money, hacking into gov databases, ect, ect. This is like drawing on a wall with a sharpie compared to spray painting a whole building with propaganda.

darkelite187 - March 27, 2017, 1:30 pm

well u on a hacking forums everything on here is 7 out of 10 anyways