Thread: Nanocore question

MindFreak™ - March 29, 2017, 11:44 am

I have Nanocore lifetime license years ago but longtime i didn't used it

I have returned to RATs recently and i just tested my NC but seems there is a problem with plugins. The question here : Is Nanocore still recovering passwords/Key logs somehow ? or the coder block all ways to recover the passwords and key logs?

Thanks

bzr? - March 29, 2017, 11:46 am

Same as always. No password recovery features are provided in NanoCore. Not by default

SIM-3386134 - March 29, 2017, 11:46 am

I believe they removed it, I had NC a long time ago and really could not find any answers. I am like 99% certain you need to look for a plugin, where to look I cant help you mate but the standalone official build does not have that password recovery feature.

MindFreak™ - March 29, 2017, 11:56 am

I know that NanoCore doesn't have inbuilt password recovery, but in old days i was using password recovery plugin, Yes sometime it recover the passwords and sometime it crash the RAT.

Now NanoCore won't accept that plugin although it placed in the plugins folder

Probably hasn't been updated in God knows how long.

Armada - March 29, 2017, 12:01 pm

If I am not mistaken the elder plugin could still work.

Unless it has been disabled, honestly not used Nano in a while, infact I need to redownload and get my license retrieved.

Looks @ CesearVB ?

Looks @ CesearVB ?Wow! You using Nanocore? Thought for sure you used your own private coded or just Orcus.

G0dzSoldiers - March 30, 2017, 12:51 am

That sucks they removed the NC Feature

Raziobiologic - March 30, 2017, 5:17 am

that is why you dont buy nanocore

I own all the main stream RATs....

I use Orcus personally. Others I use to compare features against now a days lol.

Yea I totally just LOVE having to pull binary samples and extract the info I need to ban a malicious idiot. Let me tell you how FUN that is.

I wake up in the morning eating my cereal or bacon and eggs and just HOPE to see those reports.

Why should they arrest nano core coder but not the others ?

Can't catch $lick or anyone else so they go after the dev that isn't doing anything related to it

Edit: time to dban my guys

Computerjul - March 31, 2017, 8:24 am

You're right.. but what will happen with all the other RAT developers.. for example LL :S

James711 - March 31, 2017, 8:25 am

Doubt it. Nexus just bought the project off of Aeon. He wasn't responsible for originally creating it, I assure they'd get Nexus if they wanted to, I'm sure he's on a list somewhere

-VITALiTY - March 31, 2017, 9:55 am

Seems they took the licensing server down.

I'm pretty sure it is real haha, the license servers are down and i would assume the developer who sold it is going to tell the feds what they want since he really isn't at fault for what someone else did with his programming.

Wipe what you can and change your shit, or drop it either or.

I'm also curious what all info is actually retained with nano, usage data, IP data, emails, passwords, client IP's. Kinda curious what entails to this.

Nanocore is legit since he removed password recovery and his TOS is stating that it is educational tool and any malicious activity is totally restricted .

So why would they shutdown the project and catch everyone

For the sole reason that it is widely used for malicious activity. They can't stop the users so they have to stop the whole project.

Honestly i bought IM3 days ago and compared between it and nanocore, i'd like to say Nanocore is really very very stable and all his features working perfect than others

Ya'll going fruity....

Firstly, what were you doing using Nano for illegal uses, they were VERY clear about that one.

So lets assume the worse, the next shades will happen.

We were already told what is logged. so those who have concern, your best advised to take your precautions.

Using Public Remote Admins to do illegal and/or illicit shit what do you honestly think is going to happen????

Hope that only the ones committing crimes get arrested and not legit customers who purchased for legally controlling pc that they own. ?
