Synopsis

Quote:Universal Century 0096. Several months have passed since the incident surrounding Laplace's box also known as the Universal Century Charter. The Earth Federation Forces dispatches a group of investigators to the severed Axis which is drifting outside the Earth Sphere. Two civilians participate as members of the research group: Arlette Almage and Danton Hyleg. Both have pasts with government service to the Principality of Zeon and Neo Zeon as an engineer and test pilot. Having infiltrated Axis, the investigators come under attack inside a base where no one should be. Arlette and Dalton are confronted with an incident they never imagined.

Preview

Initial thoughts

The animation in the preview looks really nice, almost looks like Gundam Thunderbolt's animation. The suit designs are also more oldschool looking which I totally like. I read that this was supposed to be more of a transition into the Gundam F91 movie, and I also read there should be enough content for around 12 episodes. I'm also happy to see the two main characters being adults with Zeon ties, and not some Federation kid that got dragged into war. If I had to guess, I would guess that the male will pilot the Gundam, and the female is going to pilot the Zaku or be the engineer. Anyway I'm hyped.

Let us rejoice as this will be hopefully better than IBO

I think I was practically done with Unicorn but yeah I gotta still finish it before this launches. This year it seems mecha is going to take the cake as my favorite genre of the year. Especially with that E7 announcement.

So fucking mad. Only confirmed for 6 episodes and each episode is 3 minutes long. I knew this beautiful animation was going to come at a cost. But seriously, what the fuck though. Sunrise better surprise us and release Crossbone Gundam soon afterward to fill my Gundam needs and make up for the shitstorm that IBO was.

Episode 1 felt like an extended preview lol. I don't usually hate on Gundam but I'm hating this one. Animation is on par though.

Watched the first ep a few hours ago and it's really good despite being 4 minutes long.

I'm guessing you're talking about Gundam Battle Assault, because that was the best for the PlayStation and an eye-opener to the Gundam world for me.

It just felt too vague for me but I really liked the animation.

And you play Extreme VS Full Boost?! I love that game to death man. I want the new one pretty bad.
