Thread: Do people really fall for bustabit methods?

I was really curious as to if people actually do fall for bustabit methods? 9 times out of 10 the bits are transferred from one user to another and then cashed out - For example.

Deposit $1,000 into one accounts proper deposit address.

Deposit $10,000 into another accounts proper deposit address.

Transfer $10,000 into the $1,000 account so people can check the bitcoin addresses and see that you only deposited $1,000 into your accounts address but you cashed out $11,000.

Ridiculous.

Request to actually see their BAB profile, simple.

Even then it shows some games sure and some accounts are in profit - but users still don't do the math.

I almost did before blackshadow made bab into a meme.

I took a free bustabit strategy that was just a basic martingale strat but i don't really get what you mean by the adding 10k into a 1k account. Any user with an ounce of common sense would check the users games and review it to see in detail exactly how this user got all his profit. I mean if someone just made fake earnings it would be more than easy to catch them in a lie.

Ridiculous.Obviously you would check the persons bab profile. Most earning proofs are just inspect elemented

Well I mean the net profit can't be faked so..

Well with inspect element but you know what I mean.

Most of the accounts have a good history. They bet low, cash out fast for small, frequent profits that hide the bullshit.

1k games betting 10c, bringing in 1c profit each for example
