Thread: Prison Break Season 5 - Discussion \(EP1 TONIGHT\)

ThePureAddiction - April 3, 2017, 3:56 pm

I am so pumped for the reboot of the most anticipated TV series of 2016 & 2017, Prison Break. I only started watching it ~4-6 months ago and managed to nail it in give or take two weeks; so I can't say I've waited as long as I know some of you have, but, hey, I'm equally as excited.

I don't care if it turns out to be absolute shit, but I just want to see what they've got and what they're going to do. I also hope Mahone is in there too, which I doubt he is but it'll be cool. What are your opinions?

Stealth™ - April 5, 2017, 4:34 pm

Great episode, except some parts were really cliché.

SPOILER ALERT:

Spoiler (Click to View)What could Lincoln possibly owe someone $100,000 for? Wouldn't you imagine that he would have been given millions from the state after being exonerated?

When Lincoln was at the cemetery, I really wanted him to dig up Michael's grave and see that his body was gone, and he did!

It was pretty obvious that Sarah's new husband, Jacob, would get shot; I honestly thought he was going to die at that point, but we probably won't see him again this season.

I also suspected that the doctor who had done the operation on T-bag would have been an antagonist, but I doubt we'll see him again either.

I love how Sucre said to Lincoln that he would go with him to Yemen, and then the scene changes to the airport. Only after that does Lincoln say that Sucre isn't going to go. I thought Sucre was going to magically appear in Yemen when they landed, but we'll probably see him in the future.

A prediction of mine is that Michael was given brain surgery by someone to combat the illness but it left him with amnesia. Do you guys think he actually lost his memory? Was he brainwashed? I believe it was Lincoln who said that Michael is always in control, so it could simply be a ploy for some other reason.

Overall great episode and you all should watch it!

Just about that last point, about Michael losing his memory. On his hands (forgive me if I'm wrong) it seemed he had an eye on each hand, so perhaps he had to act like he lost his memory or didn't know what Lincoln was talking about because people were listening and watching? The camera seemed to focus on his hands a lot. That was my first thought anyway.

Nah you are wrong on the last piece. Michael showed both of his hands to Lincoln and these hands are tattooed with Eyes which means "They are watching us" Michael is trying to tell Linc that someone is watching them. I think he just played with Lincoln he will soon explain everything for Lincoln.

But my question is who sent that paper to Tbag? Must be Michael since his name was on the paper. Imagine how epic this would be if Mahone was with them.

You're probably right about 'them' watching Michael and Lincoln, but I don't recall Michael's name being on the paper sent to T-Bag; it was only Michael's picture (that he seemed to have taken himself) and a sentence where specific letters made up the name of the prison.

Didnt you hear what the Doctor said to Tbag?

"The guy who paid for this was named "Otis" and when i googled it up i found out that otis means no one (cant remember which language it was)

I don't quite believe that, due to the way he reacted for about 5-secs, He seemed glad/relieved and yet sad that he had to lie to his brother. Also how would someone with Amnesia be able to leave such subtle but hidden clues for his brother to figure out 7 years later? From previous seasons we know that Michael is a planner he always has a plan for everything. Something that stood-out was how he continued to keep his palms 'all seeing eye' tattoo visible.

I truly believe that they have ruined this series, From the start when we seen T-Bag with a next-gen prosthetic that immediately made me think that they have gone that Mission Impossible/James Bond route with it. We will be seeing more next-gen gadgets and i believe that Michael's tattoos have embedded nanos or microscopic spying gear which is why he kept his palms visible the entire time and pretended to not recognize them.

However i do agree that this first episode to me at least was a let-down and very predictable indeed, From Christina's new husband getting-shot to Lincoln surrendering his US Passport which means Sucre who just happens to work for a "tramp" import/export company has the ability to "travel to any country his manager assigns him to"; Overall i can already predict whats going to happen throughout the next 2-3 episodes without even watching.

Yea you could see how he walked away from Lincoln while he closes his eyes and feel that its very frustrating that Lincoln showed up. It will be interesting to see what kind of man tbag will be like will he be the bad boy like always or will he be nice for the first time. And i also wonder these bad boys if its not the company who are they? Government?

To everyone pointing out about the memory loss / amnesia, that's exactly what I thought as well other than he had been brainwashed. But what if it's just as simple as he didn't want everyone around to hear him and Lincoln talk about stuff loudly.

Because there's not supposed to be a Michael Scofield there, his name is Kaniel Outis.

They're not controlling him.

He wrote some sort of codes on his hands for Linc to read. They have it on camera when Sucre was recording him to show Sarah and whoever else that Michael was really alive.

They said Michael is a huge Terrorist working with ISIS... Pretty sure this isn't true and they are accusing him, but he is playing a part. Michael is in power and controlling whatever is going on.

How was he able to pay for the prosthetic arm?

Outis.
