Thread: What does your Username Mean ?

Old School Cracker - April 6, 2017, 6:56 am

Some of you have some really crazy usernames. So why dont we make this an official thread of username meanings, I will start with my username -> Old School Cracker .

I want to project myself as someone who still sticks onto the old way of living. Anything that is from an earlier era and looked upon with high regard or respect.

Ok, so who is next? ?

Imagine8 - April 6, 2017, 6:56 am

Nizzy- Anything that can be described as good, great or nice.

Sickness - April 6, 2017, 6:57 am

Sickness, you know what is it.

Nick (Name) - April 6, 2017, 7:23 am

Dredd - April 6, 2017, 7:30 am

It's taken from the movie Dredd.

Regulus - April 6, 2017, 7:32 am

Here's some information on why I chose my username. It's pretty far-fetched but I love it. :)

1. Regulus = A pretty known star in space which is the brightest star in the constellation Leo and one of the brightest stars in the night sky as well.
2. The star also has the nickname: The star of the lions.
3. Lion = Is my zodiac sign as i'm born in August.

4. The star is blue = My favorite color is blue.

Info about it: Regulus is a multiple star system composed of four stars that are organized into two pairs

That's why I chose it. Read more here: <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Regulus>

Levi - April 6, 2017, 7:58 am

Levi is my birth name. I'm not very creative.

OnePlus6 - April 6, 2017, 8:02 am

Made this while drunk and cba to buy l33t and rename myself just yet. I think I just read the word permaban somewhere on the registration page and went from there.

Appsrow - April 6, 2017, 8:51 am

I was thinking of a username and playing csgo with friends. I hit some crazy shots and my friends called me "Crazy". I changed it a bit.

Papa Cuda - April 6, 2017, 9:33 am

Cuda is short for cudacore which was my old name.

Cudacore- Just a small part of the larger whole when it comes to an nVidia GPU. A "CUDA Core" is nVidia's equivalent to AMD's "Stream Processors." NVidia's proprietary parallel computing programming model, CUDA (Compute Unified Device Architecture), is a specialized programming language that can leverage the GPU in specific ways to perform tasks with greater performance. Each GPU can contain hundreds to thousands of CUDA cores. Architecture changes in a fashion that makes cross-generation comparisons often non-linear, but generally speaking (within a generation), more CUDA cores will equate more raw compute power from the GPU. The Kepler to Maxwell architecture jump saw nearly a 40% efficiency gain in CUDA core processing ability, illustrating the difficulty of linearly drawing comparisons without proper benchmarks.

CUDA Cores are parallel processors, just like your CPU might be a dual- or quad-core device, nVidia GPUs host several hundred or thousand cores. The cores are responsible for processing all the data that is fed into and out of the GPU, performing game graphics calculations that are resolved visually to the end-user. An example of something a CUDA core might do would include rendering scenery in-game, drawing character models, or resolving complex lighting and shading within an environment.

I chose cudacore cause like it says "Just a small part of the larger whole" cause I'm only a small part of a community and culture of millions, but that works at the same thing.

Apocryphon - April 9, 2017, 11:53 am

My username means: ("secret writing"), plural apocrypha, was a term for a genre of Jewish and Early Christian writings that were meant to impart "secret teachings" or gnosis (knowledge) that could not be publicly taught. Such private instruction to the apostles figures in the canonical Gospels of the New Testament[1] and furnishes the material of the "sayings" Gospel of Thomas and part of the material of the Gospel of Mary. It is purportedly a secret teaching supposedly committed to a trusted disciple by Christ after his resurrection. The secret teaching in Gnostic literature refers to several things.[2]

But to be honest, when I first came up with the name, I wanted to do Reddawn but that name was taken so after thinking about it, I realized that Blackdawn was a good name and substitute.

(Apr 9, 2017 06:13 PM)Frost Wrote: CITE Frost is the coating or deposit of ice that may form in humid air in cold conditions, usually overnight.[1] In temperate climates it most commonly appears as fragile white crystals or frozen dew drops near the ground, but in cold climates it occurs in a greater variety of forms.[2] Frost is composed of delicate branched patterns of ice crystals formed as the result of fractal process development.

Frost is known to damage crops or reduce future crop yields, therefore farmers in those regions where frost is a problem often invest substantial means to prevent its formation.

Frost forms when the temperature of a solid surface in the open cools to below the freezing point of water and for the most clearly crystalline forms of frost in particular, below the frost point in still air.[3] In most temperate countries such temperatures usually are the result of heat loss by radiation at night, so those types of frost sometimes are called radiation frost.

Types of frost include crystalline hoar frost from deposition of water vapor from air of low humidity, white frost in humid conditions, window frost on glass surfaces, advection frost from cold wind over cold surfaces, black frost without visible ice at low temperatures and very low humidity, and rime under supercooled wet conditions.[2]

The size of frost crystals varies depending on the time they have been building up and the amount of water vapor available. Frost crystals may be clear or translucent, but, like snow, a mass of frost crystals will scatter light in all directions, so that a coating of frost appears white.

If a solid surface is chilled below the dew point of the surrounding humid air and the surface itself is colder than freezing, ice will form on it. If the water deposits as a liquid that then freezes, it forms a coating that may look glassy, opaque, or crystalline, depending on its type. Depending on context, that process also may be called atmospheric icing. The ice it produces differs in some ways from crystalline frost, which consists of spicules of ice that typically project from the solid surface on which they grow.

The main difference between the ice coatings and frost spicules arises from the fact that the crystalline spicules grow directly from desublimation of water vapour from air, and desublimation is not a factor in icing of freezing surfaces. For desublimation to proceed the surface must be below the frost point of the air, meaning that it is sufficiently cold for ice to form without passing through the liquid phase. The air must be humid, but not sufficiently humid to permit the condensation of liquid water, or icing will result instead of desublimation. The size of the crystals depends largely on the temperature, the amount of water vapor available, and how long they have been growing undisturbed.

As a rule, except in conditions where supercooled droplets are present in the air, frost will form only if the deposition surface is colder than the surrounding air. For instance frost may be observed around cracks in cold wooden sidewalks when humid air escapes from the warmer ground beneath. Other objects on which frost commonly forms are those with low specific heat or high thermal emissivity, such as blackened metals; hence the accumulation of frost on the heads of rusty nails.

The apparently erratic occurrence of frost in adjacent localities is due partly to differences of elevation, the lower areas be uncoming colder on calm nights. Where static air settles above an area of ground in the absence of wind, the absorptivity and specific heat of the ground strongly influence the temperature that the trapped air attains.

And per cherry on top of that elaborate post, the F looks sexy as hell.

It Refers to my Name Juan and plays off of Juan sounds like 1 and so 1Taco idk im sure u get it lol (Apr 10, 2017 12:50 PM)Soulmate~?? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I will give a rundown of the names in my username history since I learned a lot about some people from this thread. The name Soulmate is taken by my old account and I didn't want to use special characters in the middle of the word because it would make my profile difficult to find and Omni already once added the closed account as a leader of a group instead of this one so I didn't want to give him any more trouble. The ~?? part is something I thought would be unique since no one else has used it, I found it online somewhere and copied it.

The usernames before (S?ulm?t?, ?Soulmate, and +Soulmate) were just experiments when I was on the way to finding a cool looking character to put before or after my username. Diamonds for breakfast is the name of a song and a movie that I thought sounded like a good username. +Guardian and Guardian Angel were my names when I browsed the White Hat Help section a lot and tried to help people on HF as much as possible. I think the meaning is pretty obvious.

ALESIA is a city in France and a band I enjoy. I think it looks the best capitalized like that compared to Alesia or alesia. Kindred Spirits is a synonym for soulmates and a brand by Jai Wolf that I used the avatar from for a while. A lot of people think it's a fox or dog but it is indeed a sleeping wolf.

I used the username ? Soulmate ? when we were in the process of purchasing Equilibrium and rebranding it. Originally the idea was to have all the members of the group but the scales around their names but sometimes the special characters show up as boxes. I think I changed my username to "Sl?de" when I was testing a special character and showing my friend that you could have multiple users with the same name but I don't remember exactly.

Mast?r was my username when I was in the order because my friend's username was "Slave" so I thought it would be clever. I obviously didn't keep it for long. Kiiara is the name of a singer I went to see live who is getting more popular over time. I also hosted a contest where the person that found the best Kiiara avatar would win a gamertag. My username was Riyu for a short time because my friend (who is now banned) changed his username and he didn't want anyone else to take it. Someone did end up taking it anyways and got their account closed so now no one can have it.

Lastly, at one point when I first joined my username was Soulmate_ but I changed it to a special character when Epilepsy upgraded me to l33t. If you're an ub3r member you can search the username "Ninetales" in the Username Search History and you will see that was my first username and first GT. When I obtained the Gamertag Soulmate I changed my username on HF and kept it since. Google defines Soulmate as "a person ideally suited to another as a close friend or romantic partner", however the name has no meaning to me the same way someone who's name is "Bob" has been called the same thing all their life. You have quite an amount of free time.

Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well mine means nothing lol I just thought the name Hum looked cool, it was originally just "Hum" but when I got L33T I changed it to Hum written in alt text just because it stands out and I wanted to become a known member when I first signed up.

Oh is that what's is supposed to say...

Looks like random blocks to me

?ictor? - April 23, 2017, 5:22 pm

Mine is to insult skids out there, but sometimes I'm mistaken as a skid):

Ytube - April 23, 2017, 5:23 pm

Ytube is my version of Youtube shortened, but I'm getting bored of the username so I'll change it when I get leet.

reBELLYus - April 23, 2017, 5:26 pm

Rebellious. Rebellious. Rebellious. Rebellious. Rebellious. Rebellious.

Willy Wanka - April 23, 2017, 6:51 pm

It's short for berzerk. Nifty.

Old School Cracker - April 27, 2017, 2:52 pm

by the way .. my own name means .. i was into ASM#cracking stuff like 5 years ago.. so i call myself old school cracker.

Triops - April 27, 2017, 2:53 pm

Honestly, I took my username from the movie "Open Windows" with Elijah Wood. It was from the french hacking group 'Triops' in the movie. It was going to be a temp name at first, but it's kind of grown on me.

Elitas - April 27, 2017, 2:56 pm

It's some random shit I pulled out of my ass when I wanted to sound 1337.

Truth - April 27, 2017, 3:04 pm

When it comes to getting down in dirty, no one beats the mudgod

Dragnite - April 27, 2017, 8:03 pm

I wasn't very creative in my younger years, it has no meaning and is just some words mashed up from when I needed a username and has stuck since.

Kaleb™ - April 27, 2017, 8:05 pm

It's my name with a trademark symbol so yea

+Cloud - April 27, 2017, 8:54 pm

Cloud was taken so i put a + before it... why cloud? because my name was cookies before and lets be srs... that wasnt going to last for very long creki - April 28, 2017, 2:29 am

Mine is a different way of spelling cracky, since it's already taken.
Cracky was something I came up with many years ago.

I used to "Crack" games and added a "y" to "crack" and poof, wow.

SirAndrew - April 28, 2017, 2:30 am mine is because my name is andy and im out here lol also it looks like it says "and you there" which confuses people so it makes me smile

Hydroclitoric Acid - April 28, 2017, 2:32 am

Well...

Was trying to come up with something funny. This came up.

Windwaker - April 28, 2017, 4:12 am

I got my username from one of my favourite games in the Legend of Zelda series, Windwaker. My favourite of course is The Ocarina of Time but that would be a very weird and excessively long username.

Agramon - April 28, 2017, 4:35 am

Agramon is the Demon of Fear

Dotexe - April 28, 2017, 4:38 am

Simply nothing Dotexe = .exe

I heard they have a new main protagonist replacing Ash. Damn miss those old days after school -> Dragon Ball Z-> PokeMon -> beyblade

ZachLSX - May 6, 2017, 8:21 am

My name really is just my name, and LSX is a type of motor lol.

Trevor Phillips - May 6, 2017, 8:26 am

I just my real name as my username.

Ravioli - May 6, 2017, 8:38 am

xFeng - May 6, 2017, 8:51 am

xFeng

eh I don't like my full name so I just took the Feng from it and added some letter in front of it to make myself look cool XD

Seabee - May 6, 2017, 9:00 am

My username is seabee because I'm currently a US Navy Seabee (mobile construction in contingency environments). Pretty much all there is to that lol

?Lucky Luciano - May 6, 2017, 9:08 am

Honestly was stuck on what to make my username in the moment, but wanted to keep it simple. After 10 minutes of just sitting there staring at my screen I told myself I wasn't wasting any more time. Mister popped into my head so fuck it

That was the most MOVING story i've ever heard in my entire life. Thanks for sharing this wonderful tale of how you decided on this meaningful username.

Av?!r - May 6, 2017, 9:17 am

When I was signing up for HF, I needed a new alias. I realized immediately that it always takes me forever to come up with cool names, so I said "Fuck it, I'm not having this", and chose my name in about 15 seconds.

"The Walls" is an old Minecraft minigame that I used to play a lot and was really good at. ^-^

Shortcut - May 6, 2017, 9:26 am

My name means pitiless hehe ?

Octangular - May 6, 2017, 1:00 pm

I like shapes and the number 8. An octagon has 8 sides. So I'm Octangular.

InvertCleverUsername - May 6, 2017, 1:04 pm

I meant to put "InsertCleverUsername" but instead, I wrote "InvertCleverUsername"

On the very first day I signed up, I was having "issues" logging in because I kept on typing "InsertCleverUsername" as my username.

Kept on resetting my password not realizing what was wrong lol, that was a real facepalm moment.

It suits me well though... at least that's what I tell myself...

CUNT Licker69 - May 6, 2017, 9:27 pm
