Thread: [Hack Forums Wiki - Recruiting Journalists/Flaggers \[L33T/UB3R\]](#)

Nuworld - April 6, 2017, 5:12 pm

The Hack Forums Wiki is looking for able and creative journalists and Flaggers to research and write regarding specific information with adherence to certain criteria.

This recruitment will be open for a limited time.

Now is the time to be a Writer/journalists/Flagger for the Hack Forum wiki team.

It is advised to either PM me Nuworld or Viral Dragon or neeuQ regarding any questions about this recruitment or the Wiki in general.

RECRUITMENT DETAILS

This recruitment will be a bit more relaxed as previous recruitment's threads.

- 1) The first stage is where an applicant submits his application in this thread.
- 2) The second stage is where the applicant is in consideration, Said applicant will be notified by PM.
- 3) The third stage is where an applicant's vocabulary and grammar expertise is put to the test. This stage will be conducted by myself and or one of my Hack Forum editors team members.

As much as we try to give everyone carte blanche in their duties, being a journalist/Flagger though has its own rules and stipulations. The basics of them are: Knowing how to draw, understand and act according to the borderline of seriousness and having fun.

Having a sense of professionalism when writing an article, especially from a third person's point of view.

Knowing how to adjust an article's foundation at critical moments (objective to subjective [and vice versa], etc)

Knowing the basics of writing an article.

Members who do not receive a PM from me and or from a Wiki editor in 48 hours are automatically assumed to fail in a certain stage and thus fail in passing the recruitment. This only applies to applicants who have passed stage 1 and are expecting a reply from me or Wiki editor when they are in stage 2/3.

Having Gauth enabled is a must. No exceptions.

You must have 0% warnings on your account.

You must have a Google account that can be used for the Wiki Team.

I would love to partake in a duo doing this however I feel I am unable on my own.

Best of luck finding the people to fit the role.

Also not applying because this page doesn't say I am a FED

HEYBUDDY'S APPLICATION [*]How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week?:

I can dedicate up to 36 hours per week.

[*]When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?:

I find it easy to write. I don't necessarily see any weakness in my writing skills.

[*]Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is:

No, I haven't had a chance to write for any particular group before.

[*]Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?:

Yes, I do have a platform on which i can write paragraphs comfortably.

[*]Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?:

Yes, I write research papers for my college classes all the time. Research is what i pride myself in.

[*]Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?:

No, I do not see myself going inactive anytime soon.

Cyaddd - April 7, 2017, 2:15 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible:

I work part time, 2-3 days tops, so asides from those days, depending on how much work is requested of me I'll always devote a few days to getting it done ASAP.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?:

I've always presumed myself to be a powerful writer, yet my greatest weakness with writing would have to be my tendencies to use less modern/more traditional dialect in official writing pieces (such as "alas", "thus" etc.), and much more modern dialect in unofficial writing (such as "lit", "aye", "lmao") (which tends to be extremely misleading and contracting to those who read texts from me and also read my essays for college).

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is:

As a part of my previous high school's student council, I assisted with the writing of our school papers and editing/proof reading, as well as ensuring the content was intriguing enough to attract hormone-ridden teenager's attentions.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?:

Yes

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?:

Yes

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?:

No, I'm just coming back from inactivity (due to transferring to a new college and new field and whole new lifestyle), now I just need some stability like this to tie me down and ensure I don't go anywhere.

Nuworld - April 7, 2017, 6:49 pm

Lets keep the application coming in!

The Wiki has plenty of work to do and you will be kept busy.

Grievous????? - April 7, 2017, 6:56 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: I can dedicate 4-5+ hours to the task per day. So over 24 hours.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: The only weakness I have is making blatant mistakes, due to not proof reading my work, but I've been reading over things I write and rarely make mistakes.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: I've never written for any other group in the past. I have written some Ebooks in my time and a few tutorials / guides.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes, I have Microsoft Word 2016.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: That's perfectly fine by me.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: No, I will be active for the next few months and the whole summer.

Mac - April 8, 2017, 7:26 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: Throughout an entire week, I can dedicate around 10 hours, mainly in the evenings. This includes Monday, Friday, and the weekend. I am at class for most of the day on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday so I would be unable to dedicate time on those days.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: one strength of mine in the English language is my ability to write creatively, I am able to think about the task at hand and write about it in a manner that attracts the reader and is intriguing. One weakness of mine is that I at times have minor difficulty writing in writing extensively, however I more often than not overcome that weakness.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: I was formerly a proofreader for The Writ3rs. I have also written for gaming communities, such as updating their web pages with new information and writing new posts for new games and technology that has been coming out. Unfortunately the gaming communities in question have shut down so I can't reference my work.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes, I am able to use word and other word processors.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: I am able to research extensively into the articles at hand and ensure that I only get the most accurate and relevant information.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: I do not have any plans of becoming inactive.

schi - April 9, 2017, 10:42 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: Seeing as I would love to have some sort of input into this community in one way or another, 10hours a week could easily see my dedication onto the subject.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: One strength would definitely be my array of application, whatever the task my writing sculpts so that the outcome is as desired. A weakness seen throughout would definitely be my inability to be boxed into a writing authority. I thoroughly enjoy my style, and really find it hard to conform with structures for publication.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is:

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Platform as in..? If you are talking about my own personal publication platform or just the ability to produce; either or im sure this answers it <https://chumwrites.wordpress.com> <- old work but still relevant nonetheless.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Yes 100%, researching on my own is definitely preferred as it helps me grasp the biggest picture/ input my own quirks into the researched information.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: Not really, have always dabbled in the forums as a viewer so don't see why actually producing articles would drive me to go inactive.

poisson - April 10, 2017, 12:16 am

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: After classes and work, I'd be willing to commit at least five hours during the weekdays. Weekends are much more flexible for me and so I could adjust to however many hours that'd be needed to finish my task load. Five hours at minimum for the weekend.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: My biggest strength is being able to read from a 3rd person. When I write a post or give information to someone, I try to separate when the reader knows, and what the reader wants to know. An exaggerated but relevant example would be like trying to teach a high school student how to launch a space shuttle. There are a lot of pre-requisite knowledge you would need--like advanced physics, calculating heat dissipation through differential equations, astronomy, mechanical engineering, and etc.. The basis of a well-written entry starts by knowing what information your audience has access to. From the first word to the last, I attempt to fill in the "gaps" of knowledge through explanations. Writing becomes inefficient and pointless if your audience has no clue what you're talking about to begin with.

Which brings me to my next point. My biggest weakness is time. When I write, I write slowly. Creating an entry requires research and double-checking facts. Creating factual inaccuracies are the absolute worst thing you can do as a writer--especially if your position holds influence. For example, I spent an unnecessary amount of time researching and thinking about best way to describe 'a person who goes to high school.' In my head, I went through the possible options of using: highschoolers, high-schoolers, high-school students, or high school student. No doubt that any of these options would have served its purpose just as well as the next, but it's definitely a weakness.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: I've never held a paid position in writing. My only formal contributions were for a professional Counter-Strike player on the website tarik.gg. The project was short-lived, and I only had the opportunity to write a couple eSports related entries.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes. I have a suitable workplace that allows me to write with minimal distractions. My method of writing lengthy paragraphs usually starts by me opening up a fresh Word document (or Pages in the case of my Mac) and working from there. I find it much easier to read and re-arrange my syntax, and then just pasting it into my workflow.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: I'm perfectly capable of researching information for my articles in the works. This is an excellent quality to have as a writer, but purposefully confining yourself like this can become inefficient. Asking people for help--whether it be for an opinion, leads for research, tips, a starting point, can save you so much time. Sharing information with your peers does nothing but good. It speeds up the creative process, and can help make mental connections to produce unique content.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: No. I currently have no reason to to inactive at this time. I am a full-time student however, and so there may be times where I may have to shift my focus throughout the week. I will try my best to manage my schedule and honor my time commitment to the Writers.

?v?l?????™ - April 10, 2017, 4:38 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible:

I can dedicate a solid fifteen hours per week, and an additional five to ten hours depending on my schedule for that week.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?:

My greatest strength is also my greatest weakness. I have a subconscious tendency to write at a reading level that is higher than what most people are used to.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is:

If the question is specific to HackForums, then no.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?:

Yes.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?:

Absolutely.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?:

I can't see myself leaving this forum any time soon.

Emily Brontë - April 10, 2017, 6:25 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: Throughout the week I am able to dedicate anywhere from 2-3 hours daily (excluding Saturday).

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: When writing I tend to repeat myself as I get further into a piece as I lose my train of thought at the worst times. However I am able to bounce back relatively quickly to deliver quality work. A strength I possess is simply the ethic of work and dedication to the task at hand. I do not quit until the piece is so good that I would be willing to turn it in myself for review with 100% confidence in my abilities. Quality comes first in my writings.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: I have not written for a group, but have ran an essay writing service as well as written for several services. Nothing I have submitted was late or lacking quality, and I pride myself on this.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes my setup is amazing.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: As a student and military service member who has had to put maximum effort into nearly everything, doing the work required to produce exemplary content is no issue to me.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: No HF is life

Elitas - April 11, 2017, 3:51 am

Good luck to all applying! The Wiki is great and we do need some new Journalists. Hoping to see 2-3 more journalists by the end of the week, so make sure to spend some time on making a proper application if you're interested.

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: An average of 8-10 hours a week.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: I have a strength of creativity and the ability to write unique paragraphs in a short period of time. A weakness I have would be that I sometimes make typos when typing very fast.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: Yes I used to write for a tech blog which then evolved into an Apple News Channel. Sadly, that blog has been discontinued due to lack of motivation by the team. I'm also a novelist and a screenwriter, although I don't have anything publicized yet, you can PM me to see some samples of course.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes I can do that on my MacBook Pro like I've always done.

If by platform you mean software, then yes that is something I surely have.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Yes and that is what journalism is all about. I'm fully prepared to do my own research.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: Not at all, I'm starting to become more active now.

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: Probably around 15 hours.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: Strength: Fast typer and creative thinker. Weakness: I mess up my Grammar decently well so I've been using Grammarly recently.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: Just for Skill.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: My laptop or my Desktop, so yeah.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Yeah.

Please note that we're not fussy about perfect grammar or even spelling. We need people who can dedicate time to the Wiki, lookup sources and write proper information regularly. All your submissions will be edited for grammar mistakes and spelling, so it is not the most important thing. Just be sure you can write comfortably for long periods of time and do research.

Spoiler (Click to View) Beautified.

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible:

It depends on the week and the task assigned to be quite honest; anywhere from 5 hours to 15 hours can be dedicated in a week for HF Wiki. While I cannot give you an exact amount of time for each week, I can say that the task at hand will be done to the best of my ability each time.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?:

Strength: Being able to write an intellectual sentence and find sources to back my claims.

Weakness: My choice of words can be awkward sometimes and it must be revised for clarification.

Other: I would also like to note that there is always room for improvement for me; I failed my (reading and) writing SOLs in Elementary school, but now I am a 4.00 student in college.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is:

I suppose I have for some school assignments, but nothing significant (i.e year book).

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?:

No preference, but I write in Word 2016 most of the time for my papers. I can use Notepad++, Google Doc, or HF Draft System too.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?:

Well, this a good question for me. I absolutely love researching for knowledge and hate researching due to the time consumption, but my curiosity drives me to keep researching. Although it is not finished, this is a thread project I started. Most of the time I do not write that way online, however, I write in detail like that for my classes; I would be more than happy to show some of my writings I have done for this past and current semester.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?:

For exam week I will go inactive. Also, I plan on working full time during the summer, so during those hours I will not be online.

I want to fix that user group page so badly, it's outdated. ?

Almost forgot to make this the most beautiful application ever.

Since I didn't even make it to the interview stage, the only other thing i have to say is fix the damn user group pages. Thanks.

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: I have 6-7 hours free time every night after work which should be more than enough required.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: My weakness would be that I can sometimes rush my writing and not go into as much detail as I probably could/should have, however I'd put that down to the amount of writing I have to do at work. I've never really done any other form of writing outside of work so I believe this issue would be non existent if I were a member of the HackForums writing team.

As for my one strength, I would highlight my strong vocabulary. I have an extensive knowledge of the English language and can almost always find a substitute for any word. I understand thoroughly what a certain word pertains to, where certain words are applicable, making the appropriate selection depending on the sentence etc. I have a lot of other strengths however I understand you have asked for one singular strength.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: I have to write summaries of incident reports at my workplace. Basically, anything that involves an injured staff member, damaged job, unsafe working procedure etc is followed up by an immediate incident report. I have to research what happened in thorough detail which includes interviewing staff members, inspecting jobs and machines, watching security camera footage and then write a report that goes to the production manager.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes, of course. With the amount of writing I do daily, this is a must have.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Yes, 100 percent. Research is definitely not an issue for me as I have to research every incident at my workplace (explained previously). I would say I excel in research and that it is probably my biggest strength in general.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: No.

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible:

I am currently on recovery, from an injury in the Marines. I have a ridiculous amount of time each week to dedicate to this, since I don't really have much else going on right now.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?:

For a strength, I would have to say my complexity and creativity when writing. I like to make things perfect; if I don't enjoy reading what I wrote, why would others?

For a weakness, going overboard with information is usually my downfall. I tend to gather too much information and go completely overkill on whatever I'm writing.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is:

I have not, unfortunately.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?:

Out of everything I've tried for writing extended responses, I'd have to say Notepad++ or Google Drive.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?:

I wouldn't be comfortable writing an article without doing sufficient research on it. I've been in countless briefings, if you don't have all the information you need, it could end horribly.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?:

As my injuries are not fully recovered, I don't see my self going inactive at this time.

Xeenon - April 21, 2017, 1:25 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: I have been having a lot of free time lately, mainly due to the fact that I work when I want to work, and lately, the enthusiasm for working hasn't been a top priority for me. The past couple of weeks has been spent on relaxing, hanging out with friends, getting hungover, and spending time on here. By saying that, I would probably be able to spend approximately 7-10 hours weekly.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: I am very thorough when it comes to writing - I do not want to make mistakes, and I want my sentence(s) to be of uppermost quality. I write of ease, and I love writing particularly long texts, wherein I describe a subject that interests me, and/or have an assignment picked out for me. My English is of quite high quality, and per weaknesses, I wouldn't know what to lay a finger on.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: I have never written for anything special here on Hack Forums, I have, though, written for various news agencies' in various games, in particular, RP games such a Grand Theft Auto. I used to be a co-leader of something called San Andreas News Agency (SANA), on a Multi Theft Auto server called SAES:RPG. We used to have a website where we posted our articles, but that was shut down and re-launched on-site instead.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes, I primarily use Ulysses, as I love how it is set up. I like the unique and simple layout the program has, and especially how focused you are when you write within it. By using Ulysses in fullscreen on Mac, it automatically removes everything in the background, gives you a plain darkish theme, and then just the text you are writing. I love it, and everyone should definitely be using it.

"There are a lot of great options available in this golden age of writing applications for the Mac, but we believe that none of them are as finely tuned or have the degree of polish that Ulysses does. In our opinion, it's the perfect combination of powerful writing tools and a focused, distraction-free writing environment."

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Yes, absolutely. One of the things I love the most about writing is researching. Having to empower yourself, master the art of researching, in order to construct an amazing looking, and well-informed article, is an amazing feeling.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: I do not plan on ever going inactive.

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: 4/5 hours daily.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: One good strength I have - An omnivorous reading habit: I'll read anything, and I read constantly. So far as I'm concerned, I couldn't write if I hadn't been in love with reading since I was four years old. I would also know much less about the possible choices when I write. As for a weakness, a reluctance to edit: By the time I finish writing, my mind is already moving on to something else. I can only edit myself by an act of will, and I'm still not very good at it.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: My school article, local messenger, and Wikipedia.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Microsoft Word 2016 and Kingsoft Writer

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Yes, definitely. That would be an expectation for this type of roll.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: Nope. I am going to be an active bunny throughout this year.

I wish the best of luck to everyone who is applying! It's time to make the wiki great again.

Looks like I won't make it through these rounds, blows. Still an almighty fine group, and definitely a great attribution to Hack Forums. Without the Wiki, so many people would have a hard time keeping up with all the amazing changes that are happening here on Hack Forums.

Good luck to all the future applicants, wish you all the best. Maybe next time, ey?

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: At least 6-7 a day. A little less on the weekends.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?:

Some strengths would be the ability to write in a structural and concise way. This was a concluding paragraph I wrote a few years ago, finalizing my opinions on what makes a piece of writing good:

Spoiler (Click to View) These concepts, such as Parallelism, Coherent Paragraphs, Shifts, and Reference of Pronouns are all important. A writing, without these few concepts will be very confusing and unclear for the reader to read. Parallelism, a way for the reader to understand the logic behind the author's mind, with a nice flow into the sentence structure. Coherent Paragraphs, the most developed and united paragraph out of all the others. A paragraph that keeps the reader on topic, and even the author on topic while writing it too! Then by avoiding shifts will make the sentence more fluent and easier to read. A good consistent, and logical sentence requires a very solid and steady tense. Also, the author needs a very accurate and clear sense of pronouns. Reference of Pronouns are the very basics of writing a understandable and comprehensible piece of writing. Without the correct Reference of Pronouns could definitely lead to a very blurred understanding of the relationships between the characters and the storyline.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group in interest is: I have written for my high school and participated in some essay competitions.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes, Google Docs.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Definitely

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: Not at all.

Wiki is a great team to be a part of. Unfortunately had to resign due to not having the time or passion to keep doing it, and I didn't want to take a spot away from someone who was going to contribute.

Nuworld and the team are good people with a good goal and objective, you want to make a difference on HF, apply to Wiki!

Nuworld - July 15, 2017, 4:14 pm

Still looking for a few good journalists.
Apply while you can.

Makaveli The Don - July 15, 2017, 11:20 pm

How many hours can you dedicate to your task at hand throughout the whole week? Describe where possible: I can provide around 35-40 hours throughout the whole week. I will have access to my writing platform of choice and to the internet during my work, so I will be able to make time for the tasks.

When it comes to writing in the English language, what is one strength and weakness you typically see throughout your writing?: My weakness would be that I sometimes can have a problem with expressing the ideas that I have in mind. I feel as if I just cannot describe the situation at hand with enough details which is something that I am currently working on.

My strength would be that I always do extensive research before I write about anything because I want to make sure that I am giving the reader proper information.

Have you ever written for another team/group/purpose? If yes, please state who the group is interested in: For school/college and for two groups on HF: Complexity and Influence that I currently lead.

Do you have a platform on where you can write large paragraphs comfortably?: Yes.

Are you comfortable with doing the research required for writing the article yourself?: Yes, I am.

Do you see yourself going inactive anytime soon?: No.

Nuworld - July 16, 2017, 8:11 pm

Let's keep the applications coming in.
We are now looking to recruit 3-4 journalists.
