7. Bellatrix Lestrangle
8. Kingsley Shacklebolt A top auror that was in a duell against Voldemort in the battle of hogwarts

Yes Death is a wizard, considering you have witches in your list and are calling them wizards.

Isn't this bit pointless.

I'm sure OP ment witches/wizards. No one likes arguing with a grammarnazi, because it's usually a move you pull when you're back against the wall and doesn't have any actual concrete ground to argue on.

Merlin is the best followed by Dumbledore, Grindelwald, Tom Riddle and perhaps Snape. Snape is a master in occlumency, not even You-Know-Who could read his mind.

I am better though, I can do a spell called "Ice Barrage" - Barrows magic.

Mentally you are not old, if you were old enough you should accept that all people are different some love Harry potter while some love other shit. In this scenario your post was just stupid and the only thing it brings to the thread is drama, are you a drama lover or are you just stupid enough to not accept other people's interest?

Maybe, but Alastor filled half of Azkaban. It's hard to tell. Snape and Alastor both have experience with the dark arts.

Alastor more powerful while Snape is a smarter wizard, Snape made his own spells "sectumsempra"

Two totally different wizards, Alastor duelled against Voldemort directly during the flight to get Harry in safe.

Remember that Alastor lost the battle against Tom. He also lost from Barty Crouch jr and Peter Pettigrew when they went to his house and captured him. You can read that in Pottermore.

Snape has more wizarding knowledge, that's for sure. It's really hard to tell.

Forgot to mention that Alastor also created his own spells and he has more duell experience since he has been into duells against death eaters many times compared to Snape.

Barty Crouch Jr is not someone you should shame if you got captured by him, he won 12 OWLs and demonstrated Dark Magic in his classes and he was an extremely powerful wizard in his own right.

If I had to choose someone I would go for Alastor Moody.

Snape was a Death Eater and probably duelled many times as well. Grindelwald btw has way more wizarding knowledge than Tom Riddle. Grindelwald was stopped by Dumbledore in a legendary duel.

I would probably say Snape though.

At the time Snape was a death eater it wasn't much duels at all since Voldemort was not alive. So no Snape didn't have much of duels compared to Alastor Moody.

Uhh what? Snape was a Death Eater during Voldemort's first reign. At the end of the first wizarding war he became a double agent and spied for the ministry and the Order of the Phoenix.

It's Ok, like the list talks about only 'relevant' mainstream characters not any that were talked about but not shown or shown briefly.

He's also not talking about the universe itself and only those who the average Joe knows.

This is about to be a massive grave dig, but I could not resist. Let me start of by saying I am probably the biggest Harry Potter geek on this forum!

I agree with some of the selections you have chosen for your list. Are we going by Books or Movies? Also I am not including the founders, merlin.

Only people that were alive in the timeline we have seen.

1. Albus Dumbledore

2. Tom Riddle

3. Grindewald

4. Severus Snape- If we are going strictly by the books, then Severus Snape was leagues above everyone apart, from Albus Wulfuric Brian Dumbledore, Tom Marvolo Riddle, Gellert Grindewald. Severus Snape was the ONLY death eater that Voldemort had hand chosen to teach self flight too. He also was such a strong Occlumens that he was able to block the Dark Lord, who was known to be the greatest Legilimens of all. Severus was a genius in his own right, using Arithmancy (Spell creation) while still in school creating curses such as Sectumsempre and levicorpus. He was also known to be the youngest potion master ever to join the potion masters guild.

5. Aberforth Dumbledore- Aberforth was an exceptional duelist that was only 2 years younger than Albus. Aberforth was able to stand his ground in a 3 way duel between his Legendary brother (Strongest Wizard in the world) and Gellert Grindlewald (Who nearly rivaled Albus with the help of his Elder Wand). Aberforth was under the Cruciatus curse before the 3 way duel began, and as we all know, you will not be in your peak shape for a fight.

6. Alastor Moody- One of the most revered Aurors of all time. He managed to Lock away countless Death Eaters and criminals. He is not adverse to using Lethal Spells to achieve his goals.

7. Barty Crouch Jr/Filius Flitwick.

Barty Crouch Jr was one of Voldemorts most accomplished Duelists. He was an extremely intelligent wizard that was able to over power the ex auror Alastor Moody. I put it down to the fact Alastor Moody was of older age and not in his prime. Bartemius was even knowledgeable enough to teach the subject for the entire school year during the Goblet of Fire.

Filius Flitwick was known to be a dueling champion of the international dueling circuit in his youth. I have no doubt he could have taken on anyone I put below him on my roster.

Add on the fact that he is a charms Master and half goblin, he is deadly with a wand. Most opponents will underestimate his skill level.

8. Bellatrix Lestrange/Sirius Black- Both are from the same family. Bellatrix was Sirius's cousin. They both have knowledge of the Dark Arts. The Black Family is one of the darkest families in the wizarding world. I have no doubt that before Sirius rebelled and left for the potters that he was not taught some of the black familial magic and Dark Arts. Sirius Black was a seasoned veteran of the first wizarding war with Voldemort. James, Remus and Sirius all had lots of experience fighting in the war. The only reason he fell to Bellatrix was because he was taunting her. How ironic that she fell while taunting Molly Weasley.

On the other hand, we have Bellatrix Lestrange nee Black, The Dark Lords most devoted Follower. Bellatrix is exceptionally talented when it comes to the Dark Arts. She has no qualms using the cruciatus curse as we have seen. She loves torturing people and it adds to her insanity. Her biggest flaw is the fact that she is arrogant which is what we saw when she was taunting Molly Weasley which resulted in her down fall. I have no doubt that if she was taking Molly seriously, she would have won the fight with ease.

9. Augustus Rookwood/Antonin Dolohov - Augustus Rookwood was one of Voldemort's most accomplished fighters and one of Voldemorts favorite Spies.

Augustus Rookwood was an Unspeakable for the Department of Mysteries. The knowledge he has gained from being an unspeakable(They are not allowed to share) is simply astonishing.

Antonin Dolohov was responsible for taking out the majority of the Dark Lord's enemies. He even was the person responsible for taking out our dear furry friend Remus Lupin. If that is not an accomplishment, than I do not know what is.

10. Minerva McGonagall- was known to be a transfiguration prodigy, just as her pupil James Potter. She was exceptionally talented in transfiguration. She was dueling very aggressively against Severus with the intent to harm, but Severus did not want to hurt his friend. He was simply buying himself time to escape.

11. Kingsley Shacklebolt- An accomplished auror that went toe to toe with Augustus Rookwood. He also was able to hold his own along side Minerva McGonagall and Horace Slughorn against the Dark Lord.

12. Fenrir Greyback- What can I say who the hell would want to face this badass Werewolf?

You should!

I have an unhealthy obsession with anything Harry Potter related. I've read probably over 1000 different HP fanfics, can quote pretty much every movie. I always win HP trivia :)

I'm going to rewatch the movies as well.

I have them all on Blu-ray.

I hope they update the graphics to 4k like Disney did to the old star wars movies.

10. Minerva McGonagall- was known to be a transfiguration prodigy, just as her pupil James Potter. She was exceptionally talented in transfiguration. She was dueling very aggressively against Severus with the intent to harm, but Severus did not want to hurt his friend. He was simply buying himself time to escape.

11. Kingsley Shacklebolt- An accomplished auror that went toe to toe with Augustus Rookwood. He also was able to hold his own along side Minerva McGonagall and Horace Slughorn against the Dark Lord.

12. Fenrir Greyback- What can I say who the hell would want to face this badass Werewolf?

Nah I disagree with you when you choose Aberforth as number 5, Alastor Moody is the best auror when it comes to dueling, did not even think of backing when he saw Voldemort. And when it comes to my list I would need to change it a bit, I would probably choose Bellatrix as number 6 or even 5 since she was the only death eater Voldemort taught black magic, and she also managed to defend herself when Dumbledore cast a spell against her (she even managed to escape from him)

Reading the books when Dumbledore is on fire is giving me goosebumps, he fucking made statues chase Bellatrix.

This is the most epic shit I saw on the movies [Video:

An important thing to remember in the video you linked is that Dumbledore is extremely weakened in that scene. The movies have never displayed Dumbledore's true power.

Sirius was winning the fight against bellatrix but only lost due to his ego taunting her.

Quote from book:

Only one couple were still battling, apparently unaware of the new arrival. Harry saw Sirius duck Bellatrix's jet of red light: He was laughing at her. "Come on, you can do better than that!" he yelled, his voice echoing around the cavernous room. The second jet of light hit him squarely on the chest. The laughter had not quite died from his face, but his eyes widened in shock.

Also, They were not alike; Aberforth was never bookish and, unlike Albus, preferred to settle arguments by duelling rather than through reasoned discussion. In fairness to Aberforth, it must be admitted that living in Albus's shadow cannot have been an altogether comfortable experience.
DESCRIPTION OF THE DUMBLEDORE BROTHERS BY ELPHIAS DOGE.

I have no doubt Moody would not have been able to stand up to Gellert with the elder wand in his prime. Keep in mind, Aberforth was young during the fight Albus, Gellert, and himself had. He stood ground and didn't lose or cave.

I would also like to add that Filius Flitwick was able to use wandless magic just as good as his wand magic. His half goblin heritage makes him very good and partially magic resistant to some spells. Also, Dumbledore even admitted Filius was stronger in the field of charms than he was. Dumbledore's area of expertise was Transfiguration and Alchemy. He was Nicholas Flamel's only apprentice.

Not cool that you dug this up OP, but seen as you did... No way that Voldemort is above Grindlewald. Not a chance. Voldemort was terrified of death, feared and avoided Dumbledore and never mastered the elderwand.

I disagree, Bella was trained by Voldemort to perform dark magic, she deflected a spell from Dumbledore himself (which many wizards can't) and finally, she killed Sirius. I would rank her as a better duellist than Sirius.

Aberforth was not a good duellist, Molly Weasley's brothers were better.

When it comes to Filius I agree with you, he is worth mention since I read that he is a very very good duellist.

This to be honest. Dumbledore overpowered Grindewald in 3 hours Legendary duel. But notice that Our Great Professor Dumbledore is fighting with a normal wand while on the other Hand Grindewald is fighting with ELDER WAND (one of deathly hallows which had boon by death that no wand can defeat it in a duel), a wand which had never seen a defeat in a duel but got defeated at the hand of Dumbledore and so defeating the Wand will mean defeating the Death itself.
