Thread: Minecraft Auto Fly To Coords Hack?

jameshix - April 8, 2017, 8:24 am

Hi I was wondering if there is a hacked client out there that has the option to type in cords and itll automatically fly the user to those coords? THank you!

I doubt this would be a thing tbh.

It does sound possible and it's unique so I'll give you that, but you would probably need someone to program it from scratch.

Of course the server would have to have like 0 protection on flying with a hacked client.

It's honestly not worth to have really.

true but what about some factions or survivals ect that have /fly for donors and what not would work for those maybe he just wants to chill while it flies by itself lol

There are servers that have flight boots, this should be pretty easy to code tbh.

All you probably would have to do is be flying already, and it'll move you X Y cords only.

Wurst (im sorry) has a option where it can do .goto (cords goes here) and it will take you there. there is also path but it draws a path on how to go there.

I'll let you get away with mentioning the client which shall not be spoken of.. this time.

This could be possible if you like merged blink with some sort of flight thing. and it spam sends packets to the server telling it u are lagging and it teleports you. But yet again if the server has an anti cheat it can be like detected.

You could also use a client with waypoints and set a waypoint to the target location.

Assuming that the server allows or doesn't block flight, all you'd have to do is set the player's height to 255, rotate him in the direction of the coords, and fly while you're not there.
