KING - April 8, 2017, 6:51 pm

Hello everyone,

I'm here to alert everyone with current situation of ExterByte. Yesterday or day before police has raided two of ExterByte Crypter developers. And they have taken all their personal computers. I was alerted by one of developer via WhatsApp today. I'm not raided nor I have received any call from police regarding this. I don't have more details on this topic. I will post here if there is any update.

For ExterByte customers:

Once police investigation ends. I will resume sales. All accounts are working however re-FUD cannot be done because they both were main people to re-FUD crypter. If you're current customer of ExterByte your membership will be extended once all issues are solved.

Thank you,
-KinG

Damn everybody's getting raided

Classic™ - April 8, 2017, 6:52 pm

Holy shit. Everyone's getting raided.

Papa Cuda - April 8, 2017, 6:52 pm

Dude what the hell is going on

Something doesn't add up here, this obviously isn't coincidental.

Mr. Robot - April 8, 2017, 7:06 pm

Who were the devs? Would be interesting to know.

Also it looks like ExterByte didn't have any real devs just a bunch of kids who found a way to modify the code of old crypters smells like we have more rats on here then I thought D:

My sentiments exactly. If so, I've got a pretty good idea of who it is.

Not Your Average Orange - April 8, 2017, 7:16 pm

I don't understand why they are going for the small-time devs just trying to make money. Why not go after something bigger like carders?

By rat do you mean like backstabber or administration tool...? sorry, it's late..

Gigabear - April 8, 2017, 7:18 pm were the developers from the uk?

Why would they go for devs at all? They aren't criminals. Carders are major criminals.

Exactly. Why go after things like RAT's when there are actual legitimate uses for them? Poor NanoCore, they did their best to prevent illegal activity and look where they are...

Going after the developers not only will scare those selling the product but also those behind the creation of it, limiting what you are able to make/sell/give away online.

There are already a lot of developers saying NO to projects that could be seen as malicious in any way shape or form right now due to this.

Papa Cuda - April 8, 2017, 7:31 pm

What if they are snatching the developers to work with government agencies in the fields of computer espionage with the recent rise in tensions?

Think about it.

Why would the police investigate and raid "developers" of a crypter which uses SFX to pack files?

lol was going to mention that .. i smell bs .. Easy way out for kings .. its not like exeter even worked so why would cops target its devs?

Don't worry kings .. you will find another couple of skids that know how to use winrar.

iUpgrade - April 8, 2017, 11:33 pm

I honestly dont think any of the Dev's got raided or so! I dont have any hate for your product but going through the reviews and feedbacks, it seems like your cryptor was nothing more than a shit... people were just complaining and project already died.

Seems like this thread is just an outlet to escape against the complaints.

James240901 - April 9, 2017, 3:05 am

So how long until this program is fully working again so it's FUD and so it won't corrupt your files once you Crypt them?

Onii - April 9, 2017, 3:15 am this'll be THE excuse from now on, it'll be right up next to "i was hacked"

now anyone whos selling something, has unsatisfied customers can use the "raided/arrested/investigated" get-out-of-obligations card

Yep. "I was hacked" is soo yesterday. Raided is way cooler.

Cammy - April 9, 2017, 3:32 am

Looks like one of those crypters where 90% of the development time was put into the interface (which still looks like shit)

Rhez - April 9, 2017, 6:13 am

As my grandmother used to say, Show proof or it didn't happen.
We also want to know who's the dev and his account here at HF.

A crypter can be used for ransomware campaigns etc..

I feel this way too its very obviouse first he was too busy with school and pushes 1 refud every 2 weeks thats not even fud...

Than he claims they spend so much time on creating a new stub that takes approx 1.5 month (that time almost expired) So they had no time to refud

And now we get this excuse, easy way to get rid of this shitty project

Teleforce - April 9, 2017, 6:45 am

Why i feel this is lie no thing more !.
