

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Bypassing Twitters'Password change required' page

Sheldon. - April 12, 2017, 4:32 pm

I didn't know where to post this question on this site but I'm hoping there is someone here who can help.

Basically my Twitter is locked because they are demanding I change my password.

I cannot change my password because the email account used for this specific Twitter account has been deactivated and unable to become reactivated(Thanks MSN). I tried researching to see if I could possibly just get the password reset email forwarded to my current email address, but that didn't work.

I wondering now if there is a way for me to login to Twitter and bypass the Password change required page and get back into my account. I'm not really looking for a hack, but maybe find something in the page source that can get me passed the page.

andmuchmore - April 13, 2017, 2:03 am

What sort for phone do you have? I might be able to help you...

Sheldon. - April 13, 2017, 7:02 am

(Apr 13, 2017 02:03 AM)andmuchmore Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What sort for phone do you have? I might be able to help you...

I have an Android(HTC One M8)

Bluedestroyer - April 13, 2017, 11:24 am

Can you create a new email the same as your old email ? So when you create it and rest the password the link would come to your new email

Sheldon. - April 20, 2017, 4:01 pm

(Apr 13, 2017 11:24 AM)Bluedestroyer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can you create a new email the same as your old email ? So when you create it and rest the password the link would come to your new email

No I cannot, sadly. What's worse is Twitter support refuses to help.