

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Whoever buys money making ebooks must be very desperate

The Shark Inc. - April 14, 2017, 4:33 pm

the title says it all.

i mean you must be very but very desperate to buy money making methods from here (i don't say hf e-books aren't good)

just show me one method which worked with earning proofs (not from e-book sellers).

kingdras - April 14, 2017, 4:43 pm

(Apr 14, 2017 04:33 PM)The Shark Inc. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) the title says it all.

i mean you must be very but very desperate to buy money making methods from here (i don't say hf e-books aren't good)

just show me one method which worked with earning proofs (not from e-book sellers).

I mean, you're not wrong. For a lot of us, we are kind of desperate (bad health, can't pay the bills, 9-5 is driving us mad, trying to help family, etc.) Even with legitimate jobs, it gets harder and harder because managers and leaders demand more and more from employees because bigger managers and leader demand more and more from managers and leaders because CEO's demand more and more from bigger managers and employees.

If we have some spare change to buy a book to stop the cycle, it's worth the penny. If we don't like it, we move on. If the method doesn't work for us, we move on. Desperation? Perhaps. I personally don't see anything wrong with it, that's how business works in the online world.

By the way, if you search around these forums, you'll see plenty of proofs where people are making money off of the methods presented here.

Kyrus - April 14, 2017, 4:46 pm

It takes money to make money.

Issa life lesson.

Trivexlium - April 14, 2017, 4:50 pm

Spoiler (Click to View) _(?)_/_ win some lose some

Spoiler (Click to View) im only shark around here

Kody - April 14, 2017, 5:03 pm

I guess that is true. I'm a college athlete playing 2 sports so I don't have time for a job. I decided to buy an eBook because all of the vouches for them made them look super legit and you can easily make money. Even though I paid money for it, I made my money in a few days so not too bad.

? Soufian ? - April 14, 2017, 5:05 pm

Totally agree with this thread.

Buying e-books is a total waste of money, you'd have more chance making money gambling than buying these shitty e-books.

There might be some "legit" between it, but come on, be honest.
Would you sell a method which makes you thousands?

Amnewom - April 14, 2017, 5:08 pm

Some methods work, but some don't. People buying them aren't always just "desperate", they're just convinced they'll make money by buying one.

Eagerkid - April 14, 2017, 6:36 pm

You should invest your time in researching business knowledge. Like in marketing, accounting etc.

The Shark Inc. - April 15, 2017, 1:55 am

(Apr 14, 2017 04:43 PM)kingdras Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I mean, you're not wrong. For a lot of us, we are kind of desperate (bad health, can't pay the bills, 9-5 is driving us mad, trying to help family, etc.) Even with legitimate jobs, it gets harder and harder because managers and leaders demand more and more from employees because bigger managers and leader demand more and more from managers and leaders because CEO's demand more and more from bigger managers and employees.

If we have some spare change to buy a book to stop the cycle, it's worth the penny. If we don't like it, we move on. If the method doesn't work for us, we move on. Desperation? Perhaps. I personally don't see anything wrong with it, that's how business works in the online world.

By the way, if you search around these forums, you'll see plenty of proofs where people are making money off of the methods presented here.

Very good reply for getting into how a company works nowadays the fun fact is that NO ONE showed any earning proofs until now .haha phpdevsami - April 15, 2017, 3:24 am

Get out >> Get real job.

Do real job for atleast 2 years >> Now you know money making is hard.

Come online >> Find different ways to make money >> Ignore that promise big income (Obviously).

>> Now you won't ever buy ebooks promising free money and no effort.

V for Vegan - April 15, 2017, 9:09 am

I mean, it's a huge online community filled with people of all ages and backgrounds; some are bound to be desperate- whether it's the kid wanting to make money for his games, or the poor adult in a third-world country that wants to break through.

I would say that it's the ebook sellers that are desperate. There are some legitimate people who actually buy a method to resell, but some churn out bullshit .pdf files to sell here.

.Bux - April 15, 2017, 9:16 am

99% of ebooks are scam, almost all the vouches are from the seller's friends

But everyone want an easy income, so people keep buying those

If their so called methods would bring as much money as they promise, they wouldn't sell it so cheap

? Soufian ? - April 15, 2017, 12:43 pm

(Apr 15, 2017 09:16 AM).Bux Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 99% of ebooks are scam, almost all the vouches are from the seller's friends

But everyone want an easy income, so people keep buying those

If their so called methods would bring as much money as they promise, they wouldn't sell it so cheap

I vouch for this comment.

(This is an honest vouch, I have nothing to do with the author of this comment, this comment is 1000% the truth. Huge vouch. Make sure to buy!)

c4rm4 - April 16, 2017, 7:12 am

I am on the oppinion that its better to pay $5 for some knowledge instead for a burger. There is always something useful you can learn. Chance is no 100% but there is still

Baitable - April 16, 2017, 7:15 am

(Apr 14, 2017 04:43 PM)kingdras Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I mean, you're not wrong. For a lot of us, we are kind of desperate (bad health, can't pay the bills, 9-5 is driving us mad, trying to help family, etc.) Even with legitimate jobs, it gets harder and harder because managers and leaders demand more and more from employees because bigger managers and leader demand more and more from managers and leaders because CEO's demand more and more from bigger managers and employees.

If we have some spare change to buy a book to stop the cycle, it's worth the penny. If we don't like it, we move on. If the method doesn't work for us, we move on. Desperation? Perhaps. I personally don't see anything wrong with it, that's how business works in the online world.

By the way, if you search around these forums, you'll see plenty of proofs where people are making money off of the methods presented here.

Doesn't apply to me, but I do see this, and it is very sad, especially the really pricey official looking ebooks which are nothing but a massive scam, it's very sad seeing people fall for these..