

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Google Pixel 32 GB For 20\$ - Amazon.com

CltrAltDelicious - April 20, 2017, 2:09 am

Buy at your own Risk, Since it is amazon I went ahead and bought a couple of them. Read in another forum that one of the buyer's order had shipped with tracking details as well.

Buying Link

Matt Bomer™ - April 20, 2017, 2:14 am

Surprise, a stone on it's way.

donk and dutch - April 20, 2017, 2:15 am

yeah ,its probably gonna be stones or cardboard xD test - April 20, 2017, 2:17 am

Enjoy getting your concrete brick in the mail. Either that or a cheap knockoff phone from China that isn't a Pixel. I wonder if they could even ship you a knockoff phone for $20.

FamousHater - April 20, 2017, 2:21 am should only link actual deals in this section. u can always find cheap stuff in the amazon used seller section but no way of verifying if the item is legit since it doesnt come directly from amazon's warehouse.

Mr Kewl - April 20, 2017, 2:36 am

Is this worth risking? International shipping?

CltrAltDelicious - April 20, 2017, 4:09 am

(Apr 20, 2017 02:21 AM)FamousHater Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) should only link actual deals in this section. u can always find cheap stuff in the amazon used seller section but no way of verifying if the item is legit since it doesnt come directly from amazon's warehouse.

Okay I shall keep that in mind here on wards before posting such deals.

Also I purchased this for the moment, Another dude had ordered this a week back and soon he shall be receiving whatever that they are gonna send be it a stone or a knockoff chinese phone, In that case I will just decline the delivery or cancel it Altogether.

minimalist - April 20, 2017, 4:13 am

Scammers often post ridiculously good deals on Amazon to collect data like addresses, e-mails and names.

donk and dutch - April 20, 2017, 4:15 am

Lets risk it for the biscuit, what if its legit.

Dubjay - April 20, 2017, 4:19 am

Lmao damn wish I'd seen this and wasted 20$ on that crap phone instead of the full price. ?

PoLoW - April 20, 2017, 4:25 am

Was about to order this hoping it's just a price listing glitch but International shipping fees are high.

CltrAltDelicious - April 20, 2017, 4:28 am

(Apr 20, 2017 04:13 AM)Minimalist Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Scammers often post ridiculously good deals on Amazon to collect data like addresses, e-mails and names.

Thanks for the information Minimalist, I will avoid such deals henceforth.

(Apr 20, 2017 04:17 AM)Kevin. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) <http://prntscr.com/eynton>

I will get back to you guys once I get it. Most likely a rock indeed but I trust Amazon with the money back stuff.

I will do the same as I receive information from the other buyer.

USER - April 20, 2017, 5:25 am

The seller is also selling new Kingston Value RAM 4GB for $0.50 , GoPro HERO5 Black Package for $10.00 and Modbook Pro 2.5GHz i5, 16GB RAM, 2.5TB Mobile Storage for $10.00

lol.

Web_Development - April 20, 2017, 5:31 am

Posting to see what comes out of this :)

CanisMajoris - April 20, 2017, 8:19 am

I dont even see the phone anymore, I would imagine Amazon took it down.

Kugeth - April 20, 2017, 8:21 am

This is just scammer .

iNk. - April 20, 2017, 8:22 am

(Apr 20, 2017 04:13 AM)Minimalist Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Scammers often post ridiculously good deals on Amazon to collect data like addresses, e-mails and names.

If you guys didn't read this and actually ordered.

Good job.

webdev77 - April 20, 2017, 8:25 am

Definitely looks like a scammer trying to get personal info. I wouldn't do this if it's even still up.

Punisher - April 20, 2017, 8:38 am

I don't understand why people don't actually research before posting these topics

1. If the price is too good to be true, it's fake
2. If the seller "Just Launched", it's fake
3. If the seller has hundreds of expensive items for cheap, it's fake

Luckily Amazon cancels the order before the seller gets the money, otherwise a lot of people would be getting scammed.

CanisMajoris - April 20, 2017, 8:59 am

(Apr 20, 2017 08:38 AM)Error Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't understand why people don't actually research before posting these topics

1. If the price is too good to be true, it's fake
2. If the seller "Just Launched", it's fake
3. If the seller has hundreds of expensive items for cheap, it's fake

Luckily Amazon cancels the order before the seller gets the money, otherwise a lot of people would be getting scammed.

This exactly. Amazon is usually good about keeping on top of scammers. I RARELY run into them, and I use Amazon quite often.

CanisMajoris - April 23, 2017, 3:16 pm

so for those that ordered the phone.... what happened?

Minesweeper - April 23, 2017, 4:19 pm

(Apr 23, 2017 03:16 PM)CanisMajoris Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) so for those that ordered the phone.... what happened?

Nothing will show up (tracking info is fake) and they'll have to file an A-Z claim. Seller account will have been deleted, but funds are not automatically returned. Their personal information was harvested and they can expect spam e-mails and phone calls at their Amazon registered e-mail address and phone number.

CanisMajoris - April 23, 2017, 4:20 pm

(Apr 23, 2017 04:19 PM)TaylorV Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Nothing will show up (tracking info is fake) and they'll have to file an A-Z claim. Seller account will have been deleted, but funds are not automatically returned. Their personal information was harvested and they can expect spam e-mails and phone calls at their Amazon registered e-mail address and phone number.

Whats the point of these fake sellers? Just to gather addresses to sell to companies to send unsolicited mail to?

Minesweeper - April 23, 2017, 4:34 pm

(Apr 23, 2017 04:20 PM)CanisMajoris Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Whats the point of these fake sellers? Just to gather addresses to sell to companies to send unsolicited mail to?

Yeah, but more accurately data gathering in general. They don't get to see any of the money. Data is used to complement other data used for identity fraud, credit card fraud, etc. Unfortunately, it's incredibly common on Amazon (hint: because it works).

It'll almost always be in the form seen here, a popular electronic sold for a ridiculously low price. Seller profile will usually show "just launched" and have other items listed at similar prices.