Thread: Most effective means of starting over?

Hey guys, I have a 138 main on EOC with good enough gear to make roughly 10m/hr, so I'm planning on grinding enough to transfer about 10m to my osrs account.

What would be the fastest methods to get my combat up, strictly in terms of melee and range, from 1+ with money not being too much of an issue?

do the basic quest like water fall tree gnome village etc and then when you've got good str/range bonus or w/e go sand crabs.

If you dont give a shit about slayer id just afk at crabs after doing the quests that Greatest pointed out. After you get to like 70 70 70 you could nmz to max.

I would finish a few quests firstly and then slay.

I would get barrow gloves then slay. It's better to get the gay shit out first. You don't want to be that guy.

I recommend you to get 20 agility, at the very least 13 magic and around 15-20 HP if you're not confident in yourself, and then follow this guide for some easy attack and strength levels:

As a few other users say, do some quests. Once I finished Monkey Madness, Dragon slayer and Waterfall quests, I was already above 40 in all my melee stats. Range is quick - just use a cannon and do animal magnetism.

Quest to get your first stats, what i did was keep questing while sometimes afk skilling to get my b gloves.

Then i cannond 70 range, after that if you are building a pure zerk you can nmz/chin.

If you are starting a main account grind slayer while grinding achievements to get your stats up.

Good luck on your journey mate.

Yeah man like most people have said questing is the best & fastest way to get leveled up starting from the ground and working your way up. Do all the free quest that you can, and then move on to the waterfall quest. Also I'd do a quick search of what quest give combat xp and go from there. After you get I'd say around 40 attack/def & str I would start grinding at rock crabs and maybe mixing in a bit of slayer into it as you level up. Wish you the best of luck bro!
