Thread: Cryptic/Armada Impersonations Master Thread

Cryptic™ - April 24, 2017, 12:05 am

Well this has just been increasing more and more every month. I usually just update this post but I feel as though I should make my own thread for this now as everything is all over the place and I'd like to have data compiled in one thread that I can just update/reference each and everytime it occurs.

Let this thread serve as a database.

What is going on?

There is a guy, or a small group of people that target people in the hacking requests section posing as myself or Armada. In many cases they pose as both of us, getting Armada to vouch for the "fake" me which is what happened here.

One user that I know of that is 100% behind a large amount of these impersonations is <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=3334123>

Why?

<https://i.imgur.com/ARlfko8.png>

oep6457 had a thread in the hacking request section asking for something to be hacked.

The user I mentioned above sent a PM to this user asking him to send an email to one of his email addresses. A few hours later, oep6457 receives an email from "Cryptic" with this as proof making it look like it was actually the real me.

Thankfully oep6457 was not stupid and PM'd me on site to make sure if it was really me or not.

List of impersonations (A lot of the threads below contain a lot of the "fake" evidence these scammers use to convince victims that they are really me:

There is, Omni added one FFS, still happens.

My findings are in general the users that tend to get scammed are new users, usually posting asking for hacking assistance, and the promise of the job completion for money is made by the scammer contacting them.

Theres points of note here to make.

ALWAYS contact Myself or Cryptic on HF first, IF you are provided by a Skype by us in PM that is a different story.

Do NOT assume we are going to randomly add you on to IM in any way form or whatever.

I rarely ADD someone myself, people usually add me, and I usually deny the request.

Secondly. THis seems to be a site feature many are not aware of.

<https://hackforums.net/verifysecret.php>

It generates a unique key between you and the other HF user you are dealing with. I KNOW Omni advises to not give out any part of this key to others, but I have found this to be a useful feature if providing a PART of the key to the other user and seeing if they can parrot back the remainder of the sequence of the key. Only you and the other user will know this key by this feature, thus if they can not repeat the sequence they are not the person they are claiming to be.

But finally. PM US FIRST. I think we all agree getting scammed sucks, and its always going to happen, scammers are crafty, conniving bastards who need to all be fed cyanide tablets, but for the mean time, the best people can do is be on guard.

FURTHER:

This scammer likes to play on the fact they will be a "Hacker for hire"

Neither of us have ever offered this service. And secondly, I HIGHLY doubt if either did, we would not be doing it for $100-200 bucks a pop.

Lets be honest here, even assuming we were Hackers for hire.

You think we would be willing to risk legal penalties for $150, or $50? ?

We both own legit businesses..

If it seems too good to be true, it usually is.

Always PM before dealing, ALWAYS.

Take a look at that.

We got played.

It's kind of hard to understand but they took advantage of that and had me verify my secret with the victim.

Basically the scammer talked to me posing as the victim, and the scammer talked to the victim posing as me and played us both. It was amazing and executed extremely well. Then you have retards 1 starring the thread because they don't have the ability to comprehend what just happened.

Take a look at that.

(Dec 4, 2016 01:24 AM)Cryptic™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Basically what happened was Scammer contacted me via email acting as xjath.

The scammer asked me to PM xjath saying "It's me" to make it look like xjath was really talking to me.

At the same time the scammer was impersonating me talking to the real xjath.

After that the scammer created a fake Skype of xjath and added me on it, while at the same time the scammer used email to talk to the real xjath.

Scammer got xjath to use the <https://hackforums.net/verifysecret.php> on ME.

Then on the scammers fake skype account of xjath, he talked to me, and got me to use the verifysecret feature to confirm the code, which he showed to the real xjath via the account he was impersonating of me.[/i]

At this point, xjath had no reason to believe the impostor of me talking to him was an impostor because the HF Secret was verified, so he went ahead and sent the impostor 1 BTC and got scammed.

Thanks for keeping the community alert afloat. Personally i don't believe that such a "punk ass dick weasel" like yourself would be capable of impersonating anyone. If you feel like he's abusing the reputation system you can report it to staff and let them deal with it but you might want to read the Help Docs first (inb4 you get repfucked). I have messaged him the message from reputation help page and waiting for 24 hours before I report to staff if he don't reacts on it. I don't understand why some people act so weird. No.

Funny how your registration date matches when all of this crap started.

Funny how when I monitor your profile you are CONSTANTLY trolling the Requests for hacking section.

Funny how the very last report of scamming under my profile was for neopets, and you just HAPPENED to be trying to do this same thing for another user, who luckily was smart enough to actually PM me FIRST before doing a damn thing with your ass.

Fuck off, I was far from born yesterday, and am great at putting puzzle pieces together, and I pretty much got the full picture now.

Well this is simple then, Disprove you never attempted to contact that user regarding neopets hacking, and prove you are not the same mother fucker who scammed him for $200 already.

Do that and I will retract EVERYTHING, issue a formal apology and change rep, until then, your full of absolute manure.

Your attitude is highly immature. Can't believe that you are trying to argue what is basically a mute point with Armada now. You could just leave the thread now before you make any more of a clown out of yourself.

It's not about maturity it's basically about self respect. When you are called a scanner when you are 100% real and loyal. It hurts. I don't care about her rep. This is just about she is misusing her powers. If you want I can leave this user will face her karma sooner or later.

See that is how you got sloppy, you failed to follow your normal process.

You already youd your alts, so you decided to get greedy (and yes greed does make people make dumb ass decisions like this) you actually messaged him on your own account, which from everything I can tell is used to troll for more potential targets.

Yea, one further point of note I just thought of.

Impersonating me is not just Identity theft for me. I am former Military, so you are impersonating a Military person. That is an Indictable Offence, which falls actually ABOVE Federal law.

You would be facing the Military High Court of Canada, and lemme say, I have never seen that result well. You might get a free vacation to Canada's version of Guantanamo Bay though. Free 25 year vacation, and generally speaking I've not seen a problem extraditing people from other countries to be tried for these crimes previously.

Something to think about, while you continue to deny your actions. ?

You threaten to take people to court a lot...I'm not sure how much experience (I don't have much myself) but from what I've heard and attempted my self its not easy to get someone prosecuted who lives in a different country especially for a crime as small as scamming or impersonating you.

So this guy, bought my eBook and is using my methods to win Paypal disputes against all the people he scams, and uses my VPN to commit the scams/impersonations.

I'm not a hacker and have never offered hacking services.

People seem to assume that because I sell VPNs lol.

Good job for using common sense and deciding to check on HF. As always, when doing deals off-site ALWAYS PM THE PERSON ON-SITE to ensure your not talking to an impersonator. That would solve all these scams but a lot of people lack common sense.

Fuck these low lives impersonators.

Someone once got scammed because they posted their skype in my thread, and ended up getting scammed 800$ because he thought I was the one who contacted him.

It really is quite frustrating...

It is also so very confusing when you have someone come complaining to you that you ripped them off and you have no idea who that person is...

Trying to piece it together is never fun.
