Thread: Mr. Robot uid=2682887 - Fraud, Liar and narcissist-Avoid doing any business with him

Kenjataimu - April 26, 2017, 3:37 pm

Update: This guy is a fraud and scammer. Numerous people claim he has been asking them for money and giving away parts of a company he doesn't have.

His profile-

<https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=2682887>

Let me open up with this-

https://i.gyazo.com/thumb/1200/\_60a816847c5e69d7a343eab833ffac3e-png.jpg

I told him I want out.

<https://gyazo.com/475fb93e644a3f7665d7b15a862e4dd6>

Here he is denying he owes me $500 after he stated so on a previous thread.

<https://gyazo.com/7a3df0b37bb76af56f9d5c8c212420b0>

I guess I will give you guys context to what happened to lead up to this.

So awhile back Myself, Mr Robot and Fade (all from HF) partnered together to create a BTC gambling site. I came in as the investor, Mr Robot would handle advertising, and Fade would manage everything.

We hire a developer Dr1ps, and you can see his thread about Mr Robot here -

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5596566> I will talk about this thread shortly.

So to start he was MIA for weeks at a time giving us plenty of excuses. Contributing nothing unless it benefit him, 90% of the site ideas came from the rest of the team. Then one day he comes on and starts acting like hes the big shot.

I admit the development wasn't moving as fast as we would like, but he walks in and slams his dick on the table and starts claiming he is the owner and he wants it done with only his ideas.

I stepped in saying we are a team and we all hold a percent and he doesn't hold majority.

So in turn he can't tell Drips to change anything unless we all discuss it.

He did not like that one bit, and told me I was only the investor and had no say in the project.

This happened 2 or 3 times throughout development where he would come in at random times and claim he was king.

Until him and our developer got into a fight and that's where the thread from above comes in.

Here he claims he paid $27,000 for a gambling licence. Which will cost an additional $40,000 annually.

<https://gyazo.com/f1038ef6fcbc4836a7d8e02a8c09dd5e>

He has never once brought this to our attention and I find it hard to believe that Mr Robot has the money to buy a $27k license, but can't afford hosting.

I also remember few weeks back there was a thread made for him where he was in dire need of money and was getting members to donate him BTC.

INB4 scammed.

He kept pushing the idea we were going to be making hundreds of thousands of dollars within the first month of launch, but yet when he tried to launch the site he could barely keep 2 members on at once. Then he tried to blame site design.

Mr Robot telling each member of the team something different and trying to get us to hate each other. Spewing random lies.

ex. <https://gyazo.com/161b714bd00db74b3a6bfe168afdd280>
<https://gyazo.com/8b60ff9ef3a461475f83f07e9bab6cdd>

Apparently someone offered him $17k for the site, but he turned it down-

<https://gyazo.com/2faadf8832e87fc086d576f6c206b64f>

Maybe that anonymous buyer will step forward today.

Still waiting to hear from him and his new dev as well-

<https://gyazo.com/0dbccdd2bd980a82402bfcfd053e4416>

So again. CAUTION AROUND MR ROBOT. Avoid going into any partnership with him at all. I am out money, and have learned my lesson. Hopefully I can stop some of you from making the same mistake.

and Mr Robot if you want to pay me my money back like you said, I will gladly accept it.

Kruel - April 26, 2017, 3:44 pm

I also gave Mr. Robot over a thousand dollars. He said that he would give me 15% of all profits of the gambling site. This was spread over a period of time and I kept on giving more because he seemed like a genuine guy and kept on having problems with his life. One day it would be bills, another it would be possible jailtime if he doesn't get the money. So I guess I'm probably not gonna see that money again.

Really?

He had a couple people he was talking about where he would get money from.

I think there was a message at one point saying he has someone interested, but he would only give them a percentage of the percent he owned.

He held about 35% of the site, so he was in no position to give away 15% of the entire site profits unless it came from him.

Yeah at one point he said he was in the hospital and another he was going to jail.
Maybe he is just an unlucky guy xD HAHA

I love how he was just selling our shares around without consulting us lol. There was another guy that Robot was trying to sell our website to behind our back.

He even claimed it on my dispute.

There's no license, he never showed any sort of evidence and always avoided the subject. Plus, if there was a license we wouldn't be using the same name now.

ryan? - April 26, 2017, 5:38 pm

I feel like all that shit is arguable to some extent. Pointing blame, deflecting, revealing other sides of stories -- but one thing that has had me pretty curious the last few months is the fact he is throwing around tens of thousands of dollars ($27k + $40k/yr) and has quite a few threads asking for money. I remember seeing one about him needing to make like $1600 or something in like 6 weeks or 6 months.

Just is interesting. If he's lying about one thing it puts the whole validity of his statements into question which hurts his reputation in the community and so on. Oh well, guess we'll see what happens.

Well we have countless members in this thread showing that he is asking for money and trying to sell stuff he doesn't have to either, save his children, not go to jail, pay for pizza, buy a mattress, rent, etc

Then he posts threads of him making $70k a year, and projects where he is paid under the table. Stating he is paying for an insanely expensive gambling license that doesn't exist, etc.

All seems like one big lie to earn more money with empty promises

So by Mr. Robot essentially ignoring what we called him out on he is pleading guilty and hoping that this will be all swept under the rug.

I wouldnt doubt it if we see a vacation from him soon.

This should destroy someones rep, but I doubt that it will cause too big of a ripple for him in the long term :/

Obli - April 26, 2017, 6:36 pm

Yeah, Mr. Robot has always been a scummy person. Always hated him and always called him out on his obvious bullshit - not surprised he's turning members against one another. It makes you think, too, because as soon as he joined he started postwhoring and pumping up his stats to make a name for himself.

I've known him for, what, a year and a half now, and he's just a shitty person with a bad personality and a toxic character altogether. He's lying about his family.

I would be super happy if he gets closed.

HeyBuddy - April 26, 2017, 10:09 pm

i dont think mr robot thought about what he is doing. I read through most of this thread and saw he promised 10% here, 10% there, 20% here, 15% there; which is way above the 100% profits. He also offered me 10% lifetime for $80; but i declined.

My 2 cents and how to fix this:-

1) Mr Robot should make a discord and invite every single person who has invested, these people should meet the devs and see where their money is going, they should have a link to the site to be able to see progress and get a say in when they need another investor.

2) Mr Robot made a mistake i think and money was tight, maybe that's why he came up with white lies and tried to cover up, i do believe his project is real; however i just don't believe he's motivated to finish it quickly. I think he got a taste of "investor" money and liked it.

3) Mr Robot claims he paid $17k for a gambling license, which means he opened a legal company which of course legally has shares; i believe all investors should receive a legal share of shares, this can be notarized by any bank for free.

(which is odd since a Remote betting host (virtual events) operating license is only £1,980 and the annual fee is only £2,027, no where near the $17k figure.)

nces/Remote-betting-host-virtual-events.aspx

Notes:

Robot isn't a bad guy but he's not a good guy atm either. He just got a taste of "investor money" and doesn't want to get off. He offered me a 10% share for $80 while someone who paid $1500 only got 15% or so. I think he should seriously talk to people, quit being disorganized; quit fighting with his investors, and hold a proper meeting. To fix the shares issue, i think he should refund those who invested small amounts their original investment + the % they were promised;

E.g. I invested $100 for 10% i should get $110 back.

Also Pro tip;

Don't "invest" with btc. That's really retarded. Invest with paypal so if this shit happens you can dispute it on a proper platform; if the person wanting a investment does not take paypal then don't deal at all. The only reason someone wouldn't use paypal is because either:

- 1) They're doing something illegal/shady
- 2) They're scamming you/going to play you some way or another.

I don't know where you get $17,000 to start with and again, I live in Australia and the prices are different however if you read the document with their stated prices as well as the fact that 550,000 wasn't the license applied for - then you would know otherwise.

The prices you say you paid means you paid for £550,000 or greater, up to but excluding £2 million.

Your site isn't even live yet and you have not made a single penny.

This is either;

Your misjudgment that shows how bad of a business man you are; or you're lying about how much you paid.

Also

You can't get a license for legal internet betting in any state.

Quote: "... prohibits gambling businesses from knowingly accepting payments in connection with the participation of another person in a bet or wager that involves the use of the Internet and that is unlawful under any federal or state law." - The Unlawful Internet Gambling Enforcement Act (UIGEA) (2006)

Also;

Quote: The majority of casinos that continue to accept U.S. customers are located in unregulated jurisdictions that provide no assistance to players in the event of a dispute with the casino. A significant number of offshore casinos that accept U.S. based customers are what the industry terms "rogue casinos" due to a number of reasons that may include slow payments, onerous and/or deceptive terms and conditions, and even outright refusal to pay winning players.

Meaning you out right lied about getting a license that allows you to operate/cater to U.S. based customers. The U.S. STRICTLY monitors online casinos; If you somehow did manage to get said license; why dont websites like bitdice/ect get the license.

Please look into online gambling jurisdictions.

Since you closed your own thread after replying to me I will post here.

You claim you bought a licence, please provide me with a link/reference to the exact licence you bought and which country(s)/state(s) it covers.

This will in no way reveal any private information about yourself and will help to clear up your name, so no reason not to as far as I can see.

And stop dodging this question please. If you want this mess cleaned up you gotta have to start by clearing this up first.

I've just been reading and it seems like this is what happened to me. Not stepping on anyone's toes here but this is what I can Gather so far.

Mr. Robot was outsourcing the job, lied about everything so that he could get people to startup the buisness that he couldn't do on his own but got outted.

Also, given how many times he has dodged that question I really do think we all know the answer to it by now lol. That license doesn't exist. I used to run a small csgo gambling site and talked to a lawyer about a gambling license and ended up not even getting one. Granted my site was small and shit, I vaguely remember it being around 1 grand. Nowhere near 27k

Shit doesn't add up either..

An investment of 500 dollars to start a gambling site? Ha.

Mr. Robot apparently turned down a 17k offer for this "gambling site" that had a max of two members online?

Claims he invested 27k into a gambling license (I've been searching and there is no such thing). -- oh ye and mr robot refuses to answer vitan's question about it.

I'm very well aware of online gambling jurisdictions. Our client has established proprietor trade rights across many jurisdictions.

No gambling licence ALONE costs $17,000.00.

But like one of the members said above, provide the licence number and I'm sure people can verify the licence from there, since after all, the licence only provides information pertaining to the licence alone (such as registered licenses name).

I can agree with that.

Personally I think the 27k is just some random amount he thought of when he was mad because they called him out.

To see any form of proof that there really is a gambling licence you can buy for 27k or somewhere around that amount would only work in his favor, but since he avoided the question several times I don't think we are gonna see anything anytime soon.

@Mr.Robot, if you can provide any link or reference to the licence you bought (and where you bought it) consider this post not made.

This.

He wont post/post fake shit.

I can easily verify if a document is legal or not, it's as simple as messaging a friend who works at the Secretary of state.

I gave Mr Robot benefit of the doubt, now he's just plain out lying. Once he lied blatantly i can safely say that something really shady is going on, either he's scamming or doing something illegal. If "licenses" actually exist, major legal BTC gambling sites would have gotten it.

I love how Robot closed his "defend" thread and I can't reply to it to defend myself against his new accusations.

To begin with, I never got $500 I got $400 because $500 was never brought up.

Then he claimed I held the website hostage because I wanted more money. I never asked for more money, the guy just kept delaying the project month after month for no reason while we all wanted to launch because the website was ready and we were all happy with it, including the 15 testers who tested the website thoroughly.

He also mentioned he hired someone off fiverr to continue working on it. Just going to say that right now his team involves him, Dale his dog, and supposedly his dev, who took over our project which he owned less than 20% because I took 10% of his total share 33%, Dale took like 5% (according to him) and he kept selling his share around so I'm just going to assume he ended up with 0% if half HF got 10% out of it.

And even though he promised to pay Thiizic $500, on his thread he magically justifies he only owes him $250. Not only he's not willing to pay what he promised him, he ended up paying him only $100 because he's rich and all to afford a 25k USD worth license but doesn't have the rest of the $150.

No, I asked a number of people if they wished to partake in the sites development. Those who did put money in are involved with my version of the site which has nothing to do with Fade, Thiizic or anyone else.

That's my responsibility and has nothing to do with this thread. It's an ongoing project.

Seems pretty strange, why does it say "Licensee"? Like, would such a company website or something similar make that much of a error?

I honestly couldn't care less what some under 25 year olds think if you don't believe me, don't believe me.

Personally I think this is a weak excuse as I have actually searched for a website that sells a gambling licence that matches your description and I haven't found anything.

It could be me, but I think that if this site exists, it shouldn't be too hard to find.

I'm going to try my best not to post on this thread anymore as I don't feel like I have anything more to add to this conversation.

Good luck.

You owe us all money since you were selling our project behind our backs and still do. I mean the buyers came out and revealed it and even you admitted it.

You keep mentioning you have hired a new dev to complete it, yet you own nothing of this project. No I don't owe you anything. You owe $400(if that's all fade gave you) to Thiizic technically $300 now since I paid $100 off your debt. Go on pay up. Or give him the site source as that's what "he paid for" am I right?

Yes I offered to pay him that full $500 on your thread if you would just fuck off and leave the site alone and give the source with permissions. Unfortunately you decided not to do that.

Anywho. I didn't have to offer that $500, it's not a legally binding document. I have since decided it would be best to split the payment from the 2 owners of that project (Myself and Fade) to pay $500 back to Thiizic at $250 a piece (50/50) Which I believe is completely fair. (while you walk away with 0 work done and $400* profit)

But now I hear Fade kept $100 for himself that was for you? Well that makes me owe less to Thiizic and Fade owes more.

I'm just gonna throw this out there that I've talked to Mr. Robot on several occasions where he spoke of how desperately he needed money, whether it was for hospital bills or whatever, and if I didn't delete the PM's I have proof of it if needed.

I just spent an hour reading this whole thing and I'm really glad I never invested in anything he asked me to invest in, because I almost did. However when I asked him if he needed an investor when he told me about his gambling site he said no... which confuses me but maybe that was when shit started to hit the fan.

All in all I don't know what you expect when this is how he handles conflict:

Really professional... This is really sad to see, that's all I have to say. Good luck.

Yes because on that thread and on this one I have not only agreed but started to payback what I can to Thiizic even though the person to blame is Dr1ps, and Fade is awol to know if he's going to pay back 250 himself.

I'm being more than generous, both times - and people still want to act like cunts so i'll act like one back.

"More than generous" you promised him $500, you said you sent him $100 which he still hasn't received, and then you said you still owe him $100 rather than $150.

1. Kruel is invested in MY site. Which is ongoing and he will sort that with me.

2. I admitted I had plans to sell the site source to pay Thiizic off and get a new developer - Why would I need a new developer? Because you're a piece of shit who ripped us off.

But that doesn't fix anything you're just making yourself look cocky and arrogant. If you handle it the way you seem to be in PM, you're very calm and relaxed until you start begging for money and you make it very uncomfortable, but you've got a level head and blowing up like that doesn't help your case in the slightest.

Keeping a level head and keeping it 100 will make you look a lot better. I don't know. It doesn't really matter at this point.

Good luck.

Yes he has received that $100, and did I say I was only going to pay him back $100 even though that's what the math should be at the worst? No. I said That's what I should pay back not what I will pay back.

Thiizic will be given no more than $250 from myself which I think is completely fair, Fade the other Owner of the site should be giving a minimum of $250 back too.
Simple as that.

This whole thread is such an interesting read.

The thing that has me chuckling quite a bit is that you guys had in your head that this site would make thousands, then say stuff like "We spoke to a dev on fiverr" :')

Also a little bit of real talk, unless you had signed agreements and share certificates... You didn't invest in shit, you gave someone online your money to play with.

Such a shame to see members get played like this, and see a presumably reputable member getting 'exposed' as such. Hopefully it all gets resolved and you guys can part on civil terms.

I don't need to link them, you can find them all starting from Page 1.

The thing with the $80 was already cleared up on my dispute against you (which remains valid and unresolved).

You were constantly delaying the project month after month while we all wanted to launch. Not only you refused to launch, you gave me a whole list of things you wanted added "until your wife approves of the website". I refused and said I'd do everything you requested for $80. You argued saying you couldn't afford that and wanted to drop it to $40. Then I told you to go make a fundraiser for it and you kicked me out of the channel. That's when the deal was over and I made the dispute against you.

I'm not going to explain you my script, you won't be using it anyway.

The way the winner is picked is completely random, and if a player feels unsafe, they can withdraw instantly without any delays. As soon as the user types in the amount and clicks on Withdraw, the amount is instantly transferred from our wallet to the user's wallet.

So there's no way a player can lose their money if that was your point.

You kept delaying the launch for months because you knew I'd eventually argue about it.

Suck it up and move on in your separate ways. I understand your purpose for this alert, and it has done its purpose but now its just getting to the point where is redundant. Nothing will be solved by blasting him repeatedly. The number one concern right now is the investor that made this report to get his investment back. All of the other issues are irrelevant if it doesn't end up with OP getting his money back. As for anyone else that might have been doped into thinking they were purchasing shares etc in the site, I would say those are for another thread. This thread pertains to OP's situation with Robot. Sorry to see this happen, my two cents is that there is ABSOLUTELY NO WAY someone who offers his services for donations as low as $1 to pay for "hospital bills", has paid for anything over $500.

He was saying the Faid guy was the one that got the payment and was apparently paying the Dev in increments. I believe the dev was drips if I followed correctly. Drips only got $400 of the money and Faid apparently kept the rest ($100).

So Thiizic invests in a project, Robot makes a bunch out of it by selling copies and shares, and decides to fuck it up because he's covered.

I feel like it would be the responsibility of both Fade and Robot to refund the guy. I don't think you, assuming your the original dev correct? I don't think you should be responsible for the money itself. We really need to see what Fade says because if its true that Fade was the one that received payment then essentially, Robot didn't intentionally scam him. Robot got fucked as well because Fade was trying to keep $100 of it to himself. Even if Robot was selling shares etc, this report is on Robot about $500 that was invested. That needs to include Fade and more proof needs to be given that it was Fade that received the initial payment.

I am the original and only dev. Fade also paid for 2 different logos and a landing page so I'm going to assume if he really got that $100, he used it for that reason.

Even if Robot didn't touch Thiizic's $500, he sold the project and then ended it.

In other words, Thiizic pays me, I make the project, Robot jumps out of the blue stealing our project, and then ends the partnership. Conclusion, Robot got away with the money he earned by selling imaginary shares, got away with our project, and we're left with a postponed project that cost us a bunch of money.

Development, GFX, server, domain.

This thread isn't solely for the $500 Thiizic lost, otherwise it would have been a dispute and not an alert.

And yeah your assumption is correct, but he doesn't owe only the $500 Thiizic lost because of him (even if Robot didn't use it, he's the cause Thiizic lost it). Robot owes whatever he earned from the copies and shares he sold around.

Nobody has given me a single cent for anything to do with the site. 2 different logos? I organized the first one and the current landing page+icon with Dale. So how about stop talking shit lol

I never sold the project to anyone although as stated it was talked about with a few users with no deal being made and definitely not before discussing it with Fade or Thiizic. At the time it was an option to pay for a new developer to come and do the job correctly. Luckily it didn't have to come to that, but yes if Fade and Thiizic were interested in sharing the money for selling the site source and to pay for a new dev, then yes they would have had an equal amount, if not just paying out Thiizic then and there.

I have not sold any imaginary shares as I have stated many times - for those of you who can't understand this.

If I have an imaginary 30% of the site

I can sell that 30% to whoever I damn well please, preferably keeping it above board with the others. I was ready to sell a percentage of my own shares in the site to organize a new dev. To do this - what did I do?

I contacted multiple users around buying shares of the site. I would never have accepted more than one person buying the shares unless it wasn't enough to pay for the developer.

If I offer 10% of my 30% to 100 people, that doesn't mean I am offering 1000% being sold. That means I am branching out for a single person to buy shares, or say 2 people at 5% each.

Yes multiple users will come on here and say they were offered the same thing, I was desperate to get rid of you Dr1ps. Seriously desperate.

(Apr 27, 2017 09:07 AM)Leroy Jethro Gibbs Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So he owes a refund to each person that thought they were buying into your project correct?

1. It's not his project, he is a paid hand to work as a developer.

I offered him 10% of my shares or maybe 15% if I remember if he completed the site to standard and he could have that + a monthly amount to continue work on the site.

The site was never complete, therefor he was never more than a dev who fucked us over.

There's a bunch of people on this thread that claimed they already bought over 10% each. Absolutely that's why not only did I offer the extra income from the site as potential motivation but also the ongoing payment for continued work.

However we can't launch a site that was actively having its balance edited by users, users accessing the admin panel, users exploiting game mechanics - shit all I wanted was those few things fixed, Profile pages added in and the sounds for the game which we had organized. Honestly wouldn't have taken him an afternoon out of those 11 months.

It wasn't a matter of adding things and and removing things - it was changing the color scheme of the site like 2-3 times over 11 months. Other than that, the modules and boxes are all standard which I am fine with. They've been like that since like 3-4 months in.

Did you have any prior agreements that the source would only be allowed to be utilized by the site you were developing it for? The way I see it, you were paid to produce a website for Fade, Robot and investors. If you finish the site, its in the hands of Fade, Robot and its investors. If you, Robot, Fade and the investors all agreed to keep you on for a % then so be it. But as I see it, you are saying Robot sold your project. Which essentially, is not your project. You were the developer but unless they keep you on, you simply made a website and sold it to them for the $400.

You had access to edit your balance within the site, which you often disabled for myself and fade leaving only yourself access. It was a pain in the ass to get any testing done because you turned off the ability for us to give test credits.

Once the site was live, all you would need to do is change your balance value and click withdraw and the API would allow it. The same way the users balance is updated on the site.

That was the only bug that kept us from launching, it was fixed, you still refused to launch because heck knows.

What are you talking about? Read the screenshot. He offered me 10% of his share if I was to put my heart and soul into this, full stop. Then he says before we launch, it should be completely done up to standard, and it was and is.

I guess you don't quite understand the difference in his standard and your standard. The biggest difference would be that your standard doesn't mean jack shit. It would be up to Robot to say whether or not the site was okay as well as Fade and the investor if they wanted in on the decision making.

You were paid $400 agreed upon between you and robot for your work. Then after that Robot -offered- you 10% if the site was up to HIS standard and worked smoothly.

I mean I could be wrong here, I wasn't directly involved with any of this but from my perspective it just looks like you are whining because you didn't get that % (which you don't seem to deserve anyways seeing as the site has had so much trouble and never launched).

Yes because it's sooo easy to make $500 in a day then send it back to the investor. Keep in mind, $400 was confirmed to be paid already to the developer, Drips, and was confirmed by himself. He is arguing he should have 10% of robots share but the reality of it is the offer wasn't defined well enough for it to matter.

Robot mentioned to me in a pm that it was 23 state licenses which makes sense. He didn't provide any proof (didn't ask) but it does sound a lot more believable than $27k for one license, I feel like he might've just exaggerated with the $27k to "brag" so to speak, but I believe that he either has/in process of obtaining the licenses.

He also mentioned that he wanted to use that 10% stake to hire another developer, I think the $80 just happened to be the number negotiated with that particular developer. (Similarly to the $400 with dr1ps)

Not trying to wholesomely defend Robot but I think people are overlooking major details because they want to see a big guy fall because drama is exciting and they wish for it to be true.

Robot was backstabbing every member of the project's team so in the end he would keep the project to himself.

I did my role in the project for several months. I have learned that $500 won't get you a good website and I was stupid for even thinking that back then. After I realized it started going to shit, I stepped back and let things unravel as I didn't wanna get involved and that is still where I stand now.

I never sold shares of the site to anyone promising a return, I never kept anyone's money that shouldn't have been kept. I simply paid the developer with the money I received as investment, and put a lot of time into directing the developer to make the website. I'm not going to join sides here, this is for them to work out.

Leroy Jethro Gibbs - April 27, 2017, 12:38 pm

So for the actual shit storm that happened in one post.

Robot was accused of scamming because the dev that he hired ended up being shit. The dev would be drips. After Robot said drips would get 10% of Robots share if the site was up to his standard, the thread sent to shit. Drips was mad because Robot was trying to find another dev to give 10% of his share too or someone to buy the 10% so he could find another dev that knew what he was doing. From all of the people I have spoken too, it would seem Drips did a shitty job on the website even after he was paid. Which lead to the project pretty much being scrapped and redone. Robot is now working on his own site, not using the same shit Drips made simply because it was terrible. Drips keeps claiming Robot stole his script and killed the project so he could defraud other members by selling more shares than he had in the project. Still no proof that any shares were sold has been produced. Robot did try and find people to sell too. That doesn't mean he sold it. It means he was hunting down someone to replace Drips. Dale was on talking about how shit the site was as well. Fade pretty much ended up closing out everything by stating the obvious but doing so by himself.

Long story short, Robot is planning on paying back a portion of OP's money and hoping Fade covers the other half as they were partners or something. No idea beyond that to be honest. OP has already got $100 from Robot.

Of this is what you got out of it.

This thread is about Mr. robot claiming he owns the project when he holds 35% of it then trying to sell off our portions without us knowing.

As well as lying, manipulating, and potentially commitng fraud.

It's a community alert in hopes of making sure hf members don't send their money to any charity/project he tries lying about.

He can sell whatever he wants of his percentage. He doesn't have to tell you anything. Not trying to be an ass just simply how it is. From what I read, he hasn't sold anything of this project. He was trying too that way he could afford another dev to properly fix the site. I believe he found another dev to work on it for him. I'd say give him a bit and lets see how his site does. It's simple math really. You have 20%, you promise 25% to one guy. Technically you're giving the guy your whole share, plus 5% off everyone else's.

I don't think anyone would care if he decided to sell only what he owned and not go beyond that.

He said he wanted to give you 10% if you poured your heart and soul into it, dude. We all read that. You got paid for what you did and you have to admit you definitely didn't pour your heart and soul into it. So your 10% appears to be moot.

jesus.. its like you ignored everything you didnt want to see.

Since you clearly haven't read everything, I suggest you go back and do so. It was stated Robot was trying to find another dev because he was desperate to get rid of Drips. Thats why he was offering low amounts for 10% which would leave him with 10% of his own. If you can actually come up with more proof than someone claiming they paid Robot such as transactions and PM's, then we can argue this again. Until then, shut the fuck up about him selling more than he had. You literally just took hearsay and turned it into a community thread when you and your group got fucked by the dev for your project. Its that simple. Kinda sad how you now take Drips side even though he was originally the problem in the first place.

(Apr 27, 2017 01:40 PM)occupi Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He said he wanted to give you 10% if you poured your heart and soul into it, dude. We all read that. You got paid for what you did and you have to admit you definitely didn't pour your heart and soul into it. So your 10% appears to be moot.

As for the rest, we still haven't seen proof of these promises to other people, we've just seen a lot of whining.

I understand there's something fishy going on, but you guys aren't helping your case by acting like you've already won.

Literally this. The only post on this entire thread I've seen so far that could be remotely credible was the one made on the first page claiming Robot was sent money for 15%.

(Apr 27, 2017 01:45 PM)Dr1ps Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Robot admitted he sold 15% to Krue, and an unknown amount to Dale.

I did pour heart and soul into it which was part of the deal, I don't see how you can say otherwise.

Proof was already given on previous posts. Right now you're posting based on the last 2 pages. No hes not. Literally everyone but the investor has said the shit was bad. So if you did pour your heart and soul into it then I think you need to do a bit of soul searching because your current bullshit isn't cutting it. This isn't even your first time in a shit situation like this. It just never got blown up like this has. Also, if you claim Robot admitted he sold 15% then you need to provide a post link or screenshot. Even if that was true, Robot would now have 20% left. You can't say he sold shares to Dale when you have no proof. Again. Hearsay.

(Apr 27, 2017 01:38 PM)Dr1ps Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) There's too much bs in one post, but I've already justified it all and proved you wrong on previous posts so no point in going through it again.

Didn't you say you trust him because he paid for your warrants? So basically he has bought you out, and that would explain why you refuse to see the facts.

It starts on page 1 and goes on for a bunch more pages.

It's simple math really. You have 20%, you promise 25% to one guy. Technically you're giving the guy your whole share, plus 5% off everyone else's.

I don't think anyone would care if he decided to sell only what he owned and not go beyond that.

He initially holded 35%. He gave me 10% so he was left with 25%. He sold Krueel 15% so now he's left with 10%. He also gave some to Dale so no idea what is it he's left with.

So we go back to where he was trying to sell imaginary shares.

Robot admitted it, I think that's enough.

Also would like to note, Robot didn't give you any shares. He wasn't happy with the website. Like I said earlier, His standard, not your standard.

As for the warrants, what the fuck you mean he bought me out? You think I'm property that can be purchased? Are you retarded? I said I had nothing against Robot. I didn't know which way this was going to go but as I started contacting people and discussing it, it came clear, your shitty dev work is what lead to this clusterfuck. If the site worked from day one, then why was it taken down? From what I've been told by Dale, the site wasn't great at all. He said the site had many vuln's that you didn't care to check. Same reason I asked earlier who proofed your work since you were so sure it wasn't vuln.

Let me speak a little slower. Try not to skip and words this time.

Drips and Robot have their own quarrel. This thread isnt about that.

Robot was the only one having a big issue with drips, no matter how many times you claim everyone hated the site, we got virtually 90% positive feedback. So whatever you heard from Robot is just a web of lies. ANYWAYS.

Its about Mr. Robot claiming he owned the project, trying to discredit my say in the group and trying to turn us on eachother like he is a teenage princess in highschool.

After everything went to shit and he had his fight with the dev, he told me he would pay me back $500. I confronted him, GUESS WHAT he started denying he owed me anything even after showing him the screenshot.

The only reason that the percent is a big topic now is because of how much robot lied about paying for the license and who he all tried selling it too.

15% we know he 100% gave away.

half of robots percent so 35% in half is 17.5% he 100% gave away to Dale (while robot claims he holds 50%?????>)

30% was offered to 3 members if they took the deal

Robot confirmed a minimum of 1 out of the 3, while "he cant recall" the other 2.

10% was offered to Drips or any future dev.

various percents were offered to other members for "saving his kids or helping him avoid jail"

so just from what we know,

15% + 17.5% + 10-30% + 10%

In the end, I'm done commenting on this thread for now. I think Thiizic, you need to get ahold of Robot and see when he can handle the last of that $150. Then you need to contact Drips or Fade for the other $250. Its only fair in my opinion. Literally Drips is getting $250 still even though the site isn't completed or up. Let Robot go his own way, and everyone just dissolve this shit. I apologize for being a dick. I get pissed off to easily at this kinda shit. I know I was wrong to say your a shit dev. I just got pissed off for the wrong reasons. Honestly, I do defend Robot because I trust him. Yes that does partially have to do with him paying me to take care of my shit IRL. But that's not the only reason. Robot has helped me with other shit beyond just money. Either it be me feeling down or whatever. I just want you guys to solve this shit already. Regardless of who is full of shit and whos not, can you guys just all get in a discord chat and discuss this together. Thiizic, Drips and Robot. Drips, pay the $250 and be done with this. Thiizic, after you get your $250 from Drips and Robot, just go your separate ways.

If you read my dispute against him you'll figure out why I've already fulfilled my part for that $400 I received. But we're already on p60 so I won't go there.

Regardless, he might have saved you from difficult times, gave you his kidney or whatever and therefore you feel you are in his dept, but I don't see why this isn't a valid community alert to be dissolved. Some of the guys that claimed Robot was going to sell them nonexistent shares, were some of the testers brought by Robot and Dale. I doubt so many people are lying just because they like drama. That and the rest of the stuff claimed against him.

I would have shown solid evidence of every single thing if he hadn't kicked me out of the channels from Discord and started deleting everything.

What remains unclear is;

Why was that $27k license brought up

Can this Fade guy confirm he received the investors $500 and not mr victim?

Was the project Dr1ps worked on actually sold to others?

Howmuch % of the "company" does the guy that invested $2k own.

My best recommendation is address it to Robot directly, lock the thread and give him a time frame for resolution that everyone can agree point. If he fails, re-open the thread and address it further then.

RStudios - April 27, 2017, 6:26 pm

Not sure why i'm replying, but I'll add a few points.

I'm the new dev referred to in previous replies tasked with fixing the site ready for launch, luckily I hadn't actually started on the code I was awaiting payment first.

I was actually also offered 25% lol, but I was looking for cold hard cash not a percentage anyway, but I'll throw that in as it seems to fit here now after reading the contents of this thread.

As for the code, well... it wasn't good, and from that short time i spent looking at it, maybe an hour, there appeared to be many unsafe SQL queries and the random numbers were just basic PHP pseudo random functions. This also brings me to the point of the gambling licence, that code would not have got one after a code review for the licence.

While I dont know the full story, it does appear like people got scammed.
