Thread: A Downfall of Coins coming soon?

y.flicka - May 5, 2017, 3:45 am

So right now most know coins no matter how much they are worth are rising extremely.

Spoiler (Click to View)

And I was just thinking that this wont last forever. Right there is this general Hype arround it but dont you think aswell that it will end some time? I believe that the long term price will increase but whats happening now is to crazy.

I would like what you think about this will a Downfall come?
How hard will it be and will it strike all coins?

Skidy - May 5, 2017, 3:47 am

Someone call a medic for Strat.

Kidding.

test - May 5, 2017, 3:48 am

Of course it won't last forever. I see cryptocurrency prospering for years to come though.

There was a discussion on this being a bubble that will pop one day and potentially everyone will be affected. While I certainly believe that is more possible than not, I do not think we will see it happen yet. It is true many coins are on the rise right now, but you have to understand many people buy BTC (or other altcoins) simply because they believe it is worth something and that it will continue to rise.

Trevor Phillips - May 5, 2017, 3:50 am

All coins pump and dump, pump and dump. Some of them die, sure, but if you're talking about the most popular 20 or so then there won't be any probably major crash, just dips and peaks. This keeps happening, every single day.

Yea I think the bubble will pop but it will mostly just affect unknown pump and dump coins or any coin that is not really in financial use. Most coins you invest in cant be used to buy anything with.

Yea the Top 5 will not be affected very hard but the rest of them will be definetly.

Considering the amount of money going into coins being a lot more than pretty much every previous year combined, I would say no.

Yes they might all slightly drop usually influenced by bitcoin having some random shit going on and people panic selling - contributing to crash the coin.

I will somewhat agree with this. The top 5 will definitely be affected, but I think it may depend on where the development teams are at in each one. If people stop thinking they can turn a profit, everyone will dump there coins except for the few investors who can weather the market.

I think there will some kind of what I would call "natural purge" be happening to all non important coins some day or another. Only big coins that already established a large financial net will survive.

I disagree, there will always be new coins coming through and someone might make a wallet that handles all of them which can be called what they want and be valued at what they want but you can pay with a coin named after yourself.

All of it can have unique pictures/names but it will all end up as just 1 digital currency.

I do agree with you this will most likely to happen but imo you are looking in the far future where BTC will die of for various reasons but this "purge" might come soon

Mr. Kim - May 5, 2017, 7:18 am

I actually think crypto currencies are gunna become less and less of a bubble as the general population starts using/accepting different coins. I could be wrong, but I don't see the overall trend of crypto coins becoming more and more valuable over time stopping

WhiteGuyTyrone - May 5, 2017, 8:10 am

They're currencies, I think at some point in the future all the small ones will be dead and only a few major ones will survive, and they'd stay around a certain value, not constantly fluctuate like many do now.

Castelo - May 5, 2017, 8:36 am bitcoin is gonna flash crash around 40% in this month or the next

Devils Lettuce - May 5, 2017, 8:47 am

I don't think all coins will crash, but Bitcoin will Happened in 2013, when BTC tanked everything else tanked too. If that happens everyone's gunna sell and the whole market will crash. Except that's when im buying in lol ?

This is either a troll post or ignorant. Markets go down after a ride up, that's market correction my friend. When the rise happens the exchange'd item artificially goes up in price with the rise, then goes down some as people realize they all paid into hyped. But that's certainly not an indication of the end of a market lol ?

Yes that will happen most likely any time soon I think.

The world is finally accepting cryptos as a currency. Everyone wants a piece of the massive pie that will be the economy of the future. But the truth is probably like 5 major coins will live. I dont know which ones, but I think it'll be a few years before it kinda gets set in stone

If BTC crashes, will ETH suffer as well?

BTC is the most known coin out there everyone uses it as the example for crypto currency unfortunately. So yea if BTC crashes others will do so aswell.

I look forward to another crash. If it happens, that's my second chance to buy bitcoin at less than 1k a pop.

If another crash happens to cryptos, im just gunna buy more coin for when it goes back up in a year ?

Best thing is to sell now and buy after the pop yoghiHD - May 7, 2017, 3:01 am someday btc will stop increase its value.

i don't know about a drop, but stop yes

and all other major coins will be affected

Sure it's always the best to sell at the top but how are you supposed to know that the peak is now? With all these barriers being broken this could be just a beggining to new rapid growth before a drop
