Additional information:

Note: WebMonitor RAT is extremely easy to setup. Unlike any other RAT on the market, you don't have to download or install anything, no need to portforward any port (works anywhere you live) nor deal with complicated IP/DNS/Network settings. WebMonitor can be used in less than 2 minutes!

WebMonitor uses a different approach, giving you maximum freedom to use it from anywhere and any device, without having to worry about hardware locked software.

WebMonitor is a fully native RAT, meaning it has 0 dependencies (no .NET) and will run on ALL Windows systems and languages starting from Windows XP and up.

WebMonitor's interface is fully managed from a web page which you will get access to automatically after completed payment.

This means, you may manage your clients from a phone, tablet or PC, as long as you can open a web browser.

WebMonitor is simply the perfect parental control and employee monitoring tool!

Our mission is simply to deliver powerful, stable and fast services with dynamism, where end users may enjoy all of our services within their own web-browser from any device.

This contributes to maximum freedom by not having to install heavy software and encounter hassle with unnecessary complex configurations.

The advantages of our concept outweighs software-based remote administration services by far.

With a rapidly increasing company and customer satisfaction rate, we are confident to satisfy anyone ranging from home-users to the most advanced IT professionals looking for premium quality remote administration services.

You will also receive free access to our VPN servers. Privacy is our priority, so no logs are saved on our servers.

Once again, no software needed to be downloaded. Everything is done from the web browser using your PC, Phone or Tablet, meaning you can do this anywhere, even while on 3G, 4G or WiFi anywhere you are.

RevCode WebMonitor is based on Func-in, meaning certain features will download small encrypted plugins, decode and temporarily load them into memory (imagine something like a DLL injection), and later cache the encrypted plugins on the hard drive for future reuse. Features such as credentials recovery, RAM dump, TCP analyzer, and some others are based on Func-in as described above.

The client executable is fully native, based on C/C++ and requires no dependencies at all. It currently has no support for Reverse proxy.

Btw quick question, what makes your rat better than other paid rats? besides not needing to portforward

Not easy to explain. Personally, I respect Imminent monitor for example, but I can also say it's two different services where one is based on software (eg. Imminent) and the other fully based on the browser.

If you are looking for speed and perfect synchronous communication with your clients then go with a software based RAT.

By that said, RevCode is not slow at all. It offers you almost the same capabilities, but the difference being that you will have a second or so delay for more features.

However, there is no such delay for streaming screen, webcam and audio, etc.

For example, I have reached 3 FPS with RevCode as best while streaming screen, which is perfectly acceptable for me.

One of the main advantages that I like by not having to use a software based RAT is that you can control your clients from anywhere without having to hold several connections straight to your router/computer. This isn't a big issue as long as you are not holding many clients of course.

You can log in to your panel from virtually any kind of device and control your clients, including cellphones, while most Software based RATs will be locked to one PC. RevCode offers more flexibility in that aspect.

Other advantages include no dependencies, such as .NET. The client is coded in C++ and will work on all Windows edition ranging from Windows XP to Windows 10.

Another advantage is that RevCode has full Unicode support, meaning it will browse files and display characters of any language of Windows perfectly.

Both have their pros and cons, so at the end of the day, I'd say it's just a matter of taste.

If you'd like to try this out to get a better understanding and feeling, you're welcome to review it if. Just PM us.

iExploits - May 17, 2017, 2:05 pm

I received a vouch copy for this product so here is my review.

The main UI after you are logged in is pretty clean. It worked 100% fine on my Safari on a Mac.I tested it on a virtual machine. When you generate the .exe file you have minimal customization so it's best if you use a crypter for this.I was able to use this site very well with my virtual machine. Some functions were a bit laggy such as the file viewer, but that may have been due to my browser.

This is a great RAT which requires no set up at all (like port-forwarding). Just log in and you are good to go. The best part is adding another user to the web application. You can set custom settings for a new user and you are good to go.

Overall, it was a good product and I would recommend it to anyone.

PHP hosting isn't really a thing, he was referring to using the programming language PHP to "host" the connection(web requests) between the client and server.

Looks like a really good RAT. GLWS

Basically when you host some files manually on a webhost and the rat clients send information to the webpage and the server reads the information onto a display :P

I was kindly given a vouch copy for Revcode and here is my review..

GUI: [9.5/10]

The GUI is extremely clean and extremely easy to navigate around in, no one should have any problems finding what they are looking for. Everything is exactly where you would expect it to be and it makes using the program much easier than it already is.

Overview:[9/10]

Over my time of using RATS (Legally) controlling computers around my household, I've came across some with bugs, crappy features, things of that nature. RevCode was completely bug free, features are just like any other rat, and many new networking ones, and was very responsive. After testing several times on different OS's from my VM, there were no disconnection issues or anything like that. Everything worked as intended.

Features: [8/10]

RevCode contained every feature needed for legal remote administration that any rat would have. It included several new networking features, webcam access, key logging and many more. It is missing a few of the "fun-mode" features that some RAT's have, but thats not needed for legal usage.

Overall: [9/10]

Its clear that RevCode has a lot of experience in programming, with a team of dedicated devs working day and night to get this running as smooth as possible, it was accomplished. This product has my vouch!

Probably the best remote admin tool on the market right now, especially as you can administrate from the web / any device with a browser!

We have to follow the laws and therefore have to display installation dialogs.

However, we can't help if people bypass that by cracking or patching the executable.

The reason why me made it possible in a way to bypass the dialog is when customers want to update their clients. We don't find it necessary to reproduce the installation dialogs.

Hey DinamicoBoys,

we have not scanned the executable against any anti virus, as WebMonitor is not to be considered a virus that intends to do harm on a users pc.

However it may be that signatures get detected in the course of an AV scan.

There's also a possibility of false positives.

If it is detectable after crypting it may be the crypter you are using is not up to date, but in fact it could be a lot of reasons there.

First off, we do not support, help or endorse malicious use of our services.

You might install RevCode on machines that you own or have consent to remotely control.

RevCode comes with an option to either show or hide the installation notice when building the executable, where hiding the installation dialog is probably what you are referring to as silent installation.

RevCode has the capability to recover a range of stored passwords.

There is a complete list of the password recovery capabilities on page 4 in the thread.

Hosting all users clients is a terrible idea that has been done before and proven to fail. I've seen it happen multiple times here.

All it takes is a single user abusing your product for your domain to be terminated. Then, everyone is unable to access their clients and the product they paid for.

Trend very carefully.

Hey guys,

sorry about that for you.

What we can guarantee is that it is legal in the current jurisdiction and that we are not acting against any law or the TOS of our hosting.

We don't know in which jurisdiction you did host that, nor do we find it mentionable that the real server IP should never be revealed. Why? It all starts with DDOS protection and goes a long way.

Apart from that you are welcome to read the previous post by stenhammar, there is services similar to WebMonitor running for more than 10 years that do also have their company seat in Europe. Same as RevCode/WebMonitor.

Making statements on any hosting getting shutdown without knowing its' location, more precise information about the proper/improper use of it at that time, and the TOS is not possible in our opinion.

Note:

In the end. Its up to the host to decide whether their tos has been breached or not. If they feel like we are hosting malicious services, then yes, we could have our host shut down. At the end of the day, it all comes down to what intentions you have with your services and server/VPS providers are good in making such determinations.

@Friedrich Nietzsche

Just out of curiosity by which name did the RAT you mentioned go?

Thank you for the feedback. This feature has limited support inside a vm, apart from that it may be there's edge cases occurring for this feature coming about the diversity of disk manufacturers.
In other words, it doesn't support all harddrives at this moment but works with the majority of harddrives. We are working on adding support for more harddrives.

Despite the amount of possible causes for a downtimes this primarily depends on the reason of a downtime. If it is due to maintenance it'll depend on the maintenance time. If it is due to any type of DDOS it'll take until effective protection patterns have been worked out.
Meanwhile we are able to add, and reallocate backup servers, and/or provide users with alternate computing ressources to overcome high loads. The server itself may go down without any loss of information for the customers, it does not mean loosing your machines. As soon as a new server has been setup your machines will be connected just as before.

If you look at the basic package on the website, then you'll see that it says "Plugins: All, except credentials recovery plugins".

As a rule of thumb, almost all remote control-based software (RAT) offered on HF are detected as malware or false-positives by a wide range of antivirus software, including Windows Defender.

But if you mean a feature to select an n-amount of clients to upload a file to and execute, then the answer is no.

What crypter is best with this?

Bipolarz - July 9, 2017, 5:01 pm

Right off the bat, the thing that strikes you with WebMonitor is convenience. No server required, no port forwarding needed. You can literally sit on your iPad at a Cafe and control your clients.

You can tell a lot of attention to detail was put in this product. The web interface is clean but robust. Right-click to open client and there are all the options. Credentials, Browser, Streaming, Webcam. You name it, it's there. Very high quality.

WEB INTERFACE: 9/10

The client runs silently (assuming you chose that option) and in the background. It also works with certain crypters. I like the secure download option where it gives you a password to unlock your zip file. Client is detected on runtime (as expected) so just use a crypter and you will be fine. Persistence is very good. The stub lasts on startup.

CLIENT 9/10

There are a few, but important options. In settings you can reset the system (awesome!) and add users, view tasks, and bandwidth. All very useful, especially when dealing with higher numbers of clients.

I've tried a TON of RATs and clients, this is among the highest quality. Great job Revcode, I look forward to seeing what you've got going on next.

OVERALL SCORE 9/10

https://twitter.com/benkow_/status/890257031029981184

I don't really get what you are trying to imply here. This is a sales thread that you either intentionally or unintentionally are trashing.

There are two possible sides. Are you talking about possible legal consequences for RevCode, or its customers?

In many countries, you are allowed to sell almost any kind of software.

One of the most important factors is what the software is designed and intended for.

As of right now, RevCode might very well be following applicable local laws.

For example, their website expressly display terms of use and other type of agreements, especially prior to buying, which I know are typical requirements in most countries where selling malware for legal purpose is permitted.

I can agree with you that it's possible to face legal issues, but RevCode probably reside somewhere where at least criminal intentions are required to raise their eyes.

We can't really tell how they operate, not to mention their intentions, but I just hope for their own that their mindset is white-hat and will remain so.

There is also a great responsibility on End users (customers) as well.

If the software was bought for legal purpose, I can't really see why they would get in trouble. It doesn't mean End users are immune to a visit/contact by law enforcement.

That could possibly happen if the authors later on decide to go all black hat and cause substantial damage somehow, but for chances of getting in deep trouble for solely purchasing the software relatively low.

It's a very natural reaction that law-enforcement will try to visit and possibly interview buyers to find out more about the purpose of the purchase.

But mostly, those who receive more "aggressive" visits are customers of more interest to law-enforcement, i.e. it law-enforcement could find evidence suggesting that a particular customer might have used the software for illegal purpose. It also depends on the scope and severity, of course.

A software itself can be considered both legal and illegal.

In the end, it's also a matter of opinion. Personally, (and I'm being objective), I don't consider RevCode's services to be malicious, just because I don't see them having any criminal intentions. Could it be used as a malware? Technically, yes it can.

If you feel like you have something to say then it'd be better to take it over PM, with respect to RevCode and its sales thread.

SoftPatch - July 28, 2017, 11:15 am

(Jul 28, 2017 10:52 AM)Friedrich Nietzsche Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) End customers, of course. With this sort of stuff going on the domain name WILL get sinkholed, and as each customers get a subdomain of revcode.eu where their stub connects back to that will effectively sinkhole all existing customers.

This is why people should stop being retarded and make centralized shitware like this. Also just fyi OP's claim that this is C/C++ is invalid, this is VB6 which brings us back to 2005.

I guess you haven't had a chance to actually test the service to see how it works technically.

If you reverse the exe, then you will find out that it uses tons of inline C++.

Secondly, and just theoretically, how do you know that the exe won't be connecting to a series of backup domains if the primary is taken down?

If you haven't noticed, almost every paid RAT is "centralized" in one way or another.

By that I mean first and foremost their licencing system.

So what if their domain/servers go down. Isn't that the same thing?

This makes me now wonder why you have chosen to put RevCode on your attack-agenda.

bingy - July 30, 2017, 12:01 pm

Someone said you need to use hex editor another said it will always have a user pop up 'warning'. So it will install without the need of your client having to click ok, or them needing to be present during the remote install?

Could happen. It's pretty easy to install HRDP manually.
Anyway, we'll have a look into this within a few days, make a decision and then publish that on this thread. One of the things I believe we might have a look into is whether or not we consider HRDP being too black-hat related.

Examples and/or suggestions on how HRDP could be used legally and why it would be any better than regular RDP are fully welcome.

- 1) Whats the difference the program with plugin (pro), and other without plugin (other 2).

- 3) This is only for windows, or can put in android and MAC?
- 4) All files is send to my host, same keylogger? Or is send to my account in your server, only can accessed with my PIN?

When i speak "virus" is because i don't have a better word to describe. I know that is not to use for the bad propose.

Thanks.

Screen capture is HRDP but its exteamly slow as tested in the trial/emulator.

If you hide cursor, and click on computer icon it will not high light, if you refresh and select the check box for show cursor and then start stream, you will see computer icon with cursor on it but there is heaps lag. Compared to software version its slow. I use 4g and still no fun with 40mbps LTE

Trial is logically noticeably slower, as clients in trial mode are being cascadedically simulated.
The Pro edition can easily reach 4-5 FPS with decent connection on a domestic client.

- 1) both have plugins, but Pro have just some more plugins, such as the Password recovery plugin, which is only available in the Pro package.
- 2) We don't offer viruses, but I assume you are referring to "client" instead. You will get full access to any Windows computer that you open then client on aauthorized.
- 3) For now, the client is only compatible with all Windows versions starting from XP and up.
- 4) Everything is encrypted using military grade encryption and hosted with us, meaning you will access everything by logging in your account.

Hey Mosiro,

we have actually replied asking you some more questions including whether this was tested on a VM which we believe, but not heard back since then.

We're currently working on a way to uninstall the clients without having to purchase again. It will be available very soon.

It could be slow depending on the speed of your clients. If webcam is slow due to latency, then any other feature will be too.

We'll be glad to get it resolved with you, just PM'd you.

Hi, I've purchased the Pro version of the product and want to use it to monitor my other computers. Immediately when I tried installing the client program on my second laptop, Windows Defender deleted the file. So I purchased one of the crypters recommended on the forum, after some configuration I got my spare laptop to accept the encrypted file.

But. When I start the file, once again Windows Defender steps in and complains. What exception do I add to Windows Defender for it to leave my client alone and running? I am running Windows 10.

Thanks.

That would be due to the crypter itself. You shouldn't have to add any exception if the crypter does what it's supposed to do.

Thanks for your kind words. Speed is slightly slower than software base RATs, but yet, WebMonitor offers a system where no software download is required, no hassle with portforwarding, meaning you can just open up your phone and control your clients just the same way you would do with a software-based RAT from your PC.

The payment system is fully automatic and it will send you an email once the payment clears with simple and necessary instructions on how to get started.

My guess would be, based on your choice of payment (BTC), the transaction hasn't reached the minimum of 3 confirmations yet. Sometimes that happens really fast, and sometimes the BTC network is just slow and you can do nothing but just wait it out.

Hopefully, BTC transactions will speed up after the next bitcoin split, when the transaction block size doubles and bitcoin gold is derived as a result. Personally, I'd estimate that to happen on the 18th of Nov.

That, however, doesn't mean your transaction has failed or so. I'm sure it will reach 3 confirmations very soon.

Just keep an eye on your email inbox.

EDIT: It could also be that your order timed-out with our payment gateway, coinpayments, meaning the transaction didn't receive 3 confirmations within their time limit. If that's the case, then you will eventually be refunded by them.

It means, if anyone is planning on placing a fraudulent order with us should think twice before doing it.

For example, there is no point in buying with a stolen paypal account as we will eventually just terminate the account.

Assuming you are intending on crypting it for non-malicious purposes, then yes, it's compatible with crypters supporting native executables.

The major reason why certain crypted software are detected on run-time only is because they invoke obvious malicious operations in memory (heuristic detection), or writing malicious data to HDD.

I strongly believe another major reason is because certain software are poorly designed and are forced to depend on external malicious libraries in order for certain features to function properly. Usually these libraries/dependencies are embedded in the executable or must be downloaded first to HDD as they can't be crypted, hence provoking detection from antiviruses.

WebMonitor performs in memory only, isn't dumping/writing any malicious files to HDD and has absolutely no dependencies not shipped with all Windows versions and editions starting from XP and up.

Remember, WebMonitor is not a .NET software, but native. It would be safer to use a crypter that is designed solely for native executables, and not .NET executables.

So everything is hosted on a server?

If the buyers not hosting it then how can you trust that sensitive information isn't leaked? or worse.

It's like letting the nsa run everything for you through a web portal.

Please read first page about encryption. We cannot access accounts, nor can we read information associated with them, since they are encrypted using an algorithm that the NSA uses themselves. If you host this in the US, then right. But we don't host in the US, for many reasons, including this one.

Privacy and discretion is one of our top priorities.

Haxxzored - November 16, 2017, 6:07 am

Yea I see, but it would be better off if there was an option to let the buyers host their servers themselves.

It's not a good idea to let a third party do so just saying.

Putting trust into the "cloud" isn't really a good choice.

How many redundant servers do you have?

What if someone got root access to it or they were taken down somehow?

Well, as mentioned earlier. Everything is encrypted and keys are not stored on servers, but decryption keys are derived at login and then cached. Not saying it's impossible to decrypt, but it's not easy.

If we would let people host their stuff, then those files will be leaked (or cracked first if needed). That would eventually lead to the end of our business at least.

Believe it or not, but the majority of customers from HF don't know how to, or don't want to host things.

An example of why hosting the system for our customers is appreciated is because we can roll out updates on the fly and make plugins available to everyone at the very same time.

We accept the fact that some simply won't trust this concept, and we fully respect that.

However, we've been running this for well over half a year and things look very promising.

I'm not supposed to inform you about the deep details of how our network is setup, but hey, isn't it christmas soon?

Well well, we got several backend servers instructed by a load-balancer, which in turn has a series of front end servers, mainly used to filter out evilness.

We understand that you would expect this to be practicable. But in all fairness, we cannot expect the average RAT user (who wants to simply control his devices, fast and easy) to put up with such a massive and complex setup.

It is not hosted in the "cloud". No offense but that reads a bit like we're talking about some weird kind of fog. As the previous post already indicated there are multiple servers. However we may not dive any further here as of protecting our servers, and most importantly our customers.

It's very easy for us implement it, but we're rather considering the legal aspects of it.

Eventually, we might make such a plugin available for trusted customers, but that's nothing we can promise.

You can use the trial to test it out briefly on our website. Believe it or not, but we have nothing but happy customers using our services, and whenever someone needs any help, then we'll always be right there for you.

Just bought a month basic membership to test out. do you have a manual to go with this somewhere? looks like a very simple UI but would still like a guide of some sort, thanks.

SoftPatch - December 5, 2017, 9:12 pm

It should be pretty self-explanatory, but we are working on guides for it which are planned to be released following a major update soon, with some added features.

Feel free to PM me should you need any assistance, and I'll be right with you.

I am not ticking any boxes when I generate the file and I send it to people to try out (My roommate) and they are saying they need a password. thank for the help. What you are talking about is the .rar archive that WebMonitor generates from your panel when you build the client (exe).

The password is displayed in a big text at the final step when you build it.

Are the people who I am trying to use the RAT on have to type in the password in order for me to access their computer? Is there a way to skip the password? thanks in advanced

No. You can extract the .rar archive yourself once it has been generated and saved on your PC, then extract the .exe inside it by entering the password yourself.

To open the .rar archive, you'll need to use WinRAR. Google it if you don't already have WinRAR installed.

The extracted content (the .exe file) is the one you can use now instead to control your machines.

Couple of Qs. Can I change the .exe to something like .jpg or .mp3?

When I try to download from someones files, it automatically goes to fail in the task manager, any reason why?

1. Changing it to straight to .mp3 or .jpg and only happens in movies, so that's not possible.
2. It could be that you are attempting to download large files (larger than 3 MB), or it could also be that your exe doesn't have necessary access rights.

Just Purchased Revcode enterprise pro package, i need ma additional week or upgrade package whatever lol, it looks very good,i love the interface and layout design plus the runtime speed is quite fast depending on ISP, still testing it though, but please i need a quick fix for this,after installing at first, it pops up notification to Run after restarting d client test windows, despite me not ticking show installation popup and ticking startup and persistence when creating the exe file. and pls i do need ur best recommendation for the best cypter to use in hiding and binding it, so AV doesn't detect it at start or during processes in task manager. tanks Good product.

Secondly how do i access my VPN. got the mail of username and pass, but not seeing any software or link to access.

That means it could be a hardware failure, by other words, it's physically restricted from being enabled/disabled.

It could also mean a lack of permissions. I'll work with SeDebugPrivilege to make it force the needed privileges to call the SetupDiGetDeviceRegistryProperty API.

I'll get back to this thread in short with an update. If successful, then you'll be notified so you can build a new client and try again.

Interested - With RAM dumping, would it be possible to recover passwords from there? Sort of like Mimikatz?

(Dec 20, 2017 09:54 AM)s5011 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) thank for good support

You're welcome. It turns out to be way more complex to solve this issue actually. It's not very often calls to certain Windows APIs from x86 (32-bit) applications on a x64 (64-bit) won't work, but it turns out that's just the case with the API SetupDiCallClassInstaller. This is just sick, but let's thank Microsoft for this.

I'll be looking into alternative solutions and update it in short.

(Dec 20, 2017 10:16 AM)drillBYTE Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Interested - With RAM dumping, would it be possible to recover passwords from there? Sort of like Mimikatz?

It's physical RAM dump, so absolutely. Even TrueCrypt/VeraCrypt passwords are stored in there too, but not in plain though.

Just keep in mind that dumping RAM could take a while, depending on the size of target's RAM, HDD write speed, etc.

Once completed, you'd manually have to download the dumped data stored in a single binary output file.

Huge vouch for this RAT. I recieved a review copy and I can say, it's awesome.

The persistance is very strong. Only AV can delete it, The output is very easy to crypt and you will get good FUD results if you use the right crypter.

The output is Native, what can be better than that? it also have TONS of features.

This RAT is perfect. You don't have to download anything to your PC. Everything is through your BROWSER. It also have super fast screen capture which I never seen on any other RAT before.

If you ask me? It's even better than Netwire. You don't believe me? go try yourself and see.

If it's the first RAT you ever going to use go with WebMonitor, because you actually don't have to setup anything. Just build your output and your'e in. Very easy to setup.(If I can even call it setup) This RAT have almost all features other RAT's have and even more.

To clarify - I am not a support or something I am just a random guy who try to help.

Okay I just finished testing some things on Web Monitor. So here are some good things I liked about it. First of all it is amazing for what it is and has a great magnitude of plugins and information gathering tools. The RAT also has considerably high streaming fps for a web client. Too add on to that the client broke the charts for how user friendly it is and I could probably give the client to someone who doesn't know anything about ratting and I bet they would understand it. Now time to get too the bad things. Since the client is a Web Client it does lack speed compared too non web client's and I saw the web client buffering for simple tasks like Ping and grabbing a snap of the Monitor. I don't know if this is just me but for my clients I normally like to see a Fun tab just in case I get bored and wanna mess with my friends. Besides those two minors things the client out performed my expectations in almost every way and I think the whole RevCode team did an amazing job on constructing the client.

We can't access customers accounts to spy on what they are doing, nor are we interested in doing that as their privacy is one of our main priorities. However, should we receive an European court order then we'd have to, just like anyone else, comply with our local laws.

When your payment arrived you will receive the credentials, regardless of the order status.

Processing means it has been paid, your account has been created.

Orders do then get completed within 24 hours, however that is pro forma as your account will be created instantly after the payment has been received, regardless whether it's marked as completed.

So how does the .exe building work? Just create a stub and your ready to go, or any work before you can start using the program. And how is it that you arnt able to see our computers if you ever wanted to, like what makes this private.

Exactly! Nothing more is needed than 2 clicks to generate the exe, so no download or additional software is required to use WebMonitor. Everything is done from the web. The RAT ("program") itself is web based.

We can't access customer accounts straight away because each account is encrypted with an unique encryption key which is partially derived from their associated credentials. Those credentials are hashed with proper salt, so virtually no critical account information is stored in plain with our databases.

However, it would theoretically be possible for us to obtain access by monitoring plain user input, but that is something we have no intentions on doing what so ever, nor can any court order from our jurisdiction demand such actions from our end.

Beautiful design, very easy to use, and affordable + comes with a VPN. New to RATs or experienced I recommend this product. ?

Minato Namikaze - January 12, 2018, 11:21 am

I have plenty of knowledge when it comes to the RAtIng field, ideally in the program field specifically. However I have never quite seen a web-based one such as this. With plenty of features to offer for a low price it is a must snag for the new or the old users. 10/10 would buy again.

Only WebMonitor enterprise pro has that.

Ghost.13 - January 17, 2018, 10:56 am

This is a review for WebMonitor Enterprise Pro.

NOTE: I have not tested this with any crypter.

Design & User Experience: 9/10

I like the user interface. Not that user friendly for total beginners, although nothing that can't be familiarized in an hour or so. For experienced users, they should feel right at home with the dashboard itself. Being a web application, it's very impressive that it's responsive and intuitive. Maybe a few helpers and textual guides will greatly improve the user experience, most especially on bundled functionalities. Color scheme is also good, though sometimes I find it hard see boundaries of windows and screens, so having borders with a bit more of highlights definitely do the job.

Functionality: 9/10

As I mentioned, for a web application, overall functionality is very good. Here's a list of common functions that I've tried as well as some feedback for each.

- Keylogger: Streaming is good enough to capture strokes in real time. Stored logs are the same, although the calendar doesn't have any labels on it. I had to figure it out to right-click on a date to check logs. Also, there's an issue of missing keystrokes (letters). Probably connection issue, especially for fast-typing clients.

- Desktop/Camera Streaming/Capture: Both are good. There are some delays on the desktop streaming, but it's tolerable.

- Credentials: Everything seems to be working perfectly, from browser credentials to system credentials, it captured all of it.

- File Browser: Maybe automatically load the drives next time on first load of the functionality window. Otherwise, it's good. Downloading files are a breeze.

- PC Controls (Remote Shutdown/Restart): Works flawlessly.

I'm not really sure if I missed it, but I'm trying to find the functionality of downloading a file on the client and have it execute. I know even old software-based RATs can do that. Overall, even though there are delays because it's web-based, this is an excellent product. Well done.

Thread: 9/10

Sleek design, straightforward, and simple. Gets right to the point and offers a good glimpse of the application itself.

Support: 9/10

Good support. Helpful, professional, and knows his product.

Thanks to SoftPatch for inviting me to review this product, I'm honored. Stay tuned for my Android client review of WebMonitor!

I want to say thank you to the developer for providing me a free copy that also allows me to give you my opinion about this product

What I like:

The desing

Web panel good for the multi platform (Smarphone, Mac, Windows)

Features and especially the desktop stream that should not be easy to do on a website

What I don't like:

The panel files is private you can't host it on your VPS/Server

So is the website will be closed or down you can't be able to acces to your connected computer

Kind Regards,

Meedman

Just received and let me say this program does some wonders, at first I was iffy but I downloaded a couple slaves and well let's say it impressed me to the point of wow I fully recommend this project to any one who wants a nice stable RAT and to beat it all its web based no port forwarding or needing to buy a VPN because it comes with one. No Direct links to you. This changes Remote Administration Tool's down to its core. Offering Reverse Proxy's and Stream of webcam over HTTP is next level and these guys are the first to do it!

Pros:

Extremely Stable

Fast Server

No Port Forwarding

VPN Included with Purchase

Everything that a normal Rat can offer

NATIVE

You can control your clients on any OS

Staff Contacts you back within an hour normally

CONS:

Enterprise Version is Difficult if you are not experienced but they make up for it offering you a Lite Version much more simpler

Purchase can take a minute to go through

Some Features don't load instantly you have to click refresh twice

Other than that I rate this Product 9/10 haven't really noticed a Product on HF that matches this quality considering they provide hosting and domain there's nothing more you need IMO ?

WEBMONITOR REVIEW

Before I get bashed in the comments. Yes, I did receive a vouch copy and I'm just leaving a professional review. This review is for Webmonitor Enterprise as this is what I have access to.

GUI : 9.5/10

Very clean, GUI works very well never lags. Great placement of labels/buttons everything is visible and easy to find.

I really like how the program literally walks you through setting up your file, its very noob friendly and easy as fuck.

Overview : 9.5/10

I have used many rats in my time, not so many web-based ones but I am really enjoying this one for its stability and ease of use.

I have no problems with clients disconnecting or not connecting and it runs perfectly on any browser, Chrome, Firefox, Chrome mint, kali's default browser.

Features : 7/10

Webmonitor has a large list of features however like most rats there are a few features that don't work on some computers for reasons I can't explain.

However, this isn't so much of a big deal for me. (Could use a few more fun features though ;) Overall this rat is not short of any necessary features for its amazing stability cant be matched.

Overall : 8.5/10

In conclusion, this rat is extremely well coded and has everything you need to get started and efficiently use it.

This is by far the easiest to use rat on the market and I would recommend this to anyone for its great stability and noobie compatibility.

I hope this review has helped people decide whether or not they should buy this great, beginner friendly rat!

If you have any questions or concerns please feel free to add my discord: AllCanadianBacon#7592

WebMonitor is a great program which offers a simple solution to remote administration. It is perfect for beginners and the fact that it is web based is great for those who are worried about port forwarding. This allows a user to control their clients from anywhere, whether it be at home or at the coffeshop on their phone. The user interface is beautiful and presents a clean and easy to navigate website and the administration features it offers are fantastic and allow the user to control their machines effortlessly. Also, it has no dependencies and is coded in C++ so it works on all Windows edition from XP to 10, which is a big plus.

We haven't tested any crypters with WebMonitor, so we can't give you any recommendation. However, any Crypter supporting native executables should do.

Tested the WebMonitor without any prior knowledge or experience of these types of tools but so far, it seems to work flawlessly!

The WebUI is easy to understand and I haven't encountered anything that didn't do what I expected yet. Definitely works as advertised!

Here is my review of WebMonitor, i was given a vouch copy from SoftPatch.

This is a new and unique way of working with your clients.

This combines the strength of a normal rat and a cloud based solution.

Not only does it gives you a nice and user-friendly interface but also allows you to manage the clients from any device you have without having problems with any licenses.

SoftPatch was able to give me a great and precise answers to any of my questions.

You never have to worry about pushing updates to the clients and have to worry about losing them.

all plugins are loaded encrypted from the server and it will automatically updated.

it is an excellent way to manage your client and gives you access to all the information you ever need.

It doesn't needs a crypter to work. If you mean if its FUD then the answer is simple; no sold RAT on HF comes FUD.

The Webcam speed is relative and can reach up to 25 FPS with optimal conditions, requiring you and your target to have decent connection speeds.

Its very ok ä for a Web RAT. Very stable connection and a nice design. I mean it has a web based panel u can maintain ur clients from every place u want and dont need portforwarding but u could improve a few features. Monitor stream is a bit laggy for me.. but problem could also be on my end due to bad bandwith of my client. I am missing the possibility to decide where i want to install the binary.. choose folder name startup method and more. Different startup for admins and shit u know. Connection is very stable. Never crypted so i cant share my experiance with this kind of spftware. Overall it is a solid web based RAT.

Vouch for op and glws in the future. Looking forward to some updates just to see where ur project is going. :D

I should mention that i used Waterfox. Maybe Chrome is the bettee option but i am not sure.

Best regards

Hello,

How is this RAT installed? Do you get a .exe file with your purchase which you use to infect and/or install the RAT? If so, I guess the file is detectable by antivirus, or is it up to yourself to make it FUD? In this case I would also like to know a compatible crypter with this.

You generate the .exe online from a page where you can log in to after purchase, and control your clients from the same site.

No RAT sold on HF comes FUD, so if you are looking for FUD, then that's on you.

Zach_Farlow - March 2, 2018, 11:59 am

This program works great and looks sleek.

I have tested this Client with all of it features and can say it works better than most of the other Clients out there being sold at this time. Plus with it being fully web based there is little you have to do to make this work. And Since it is Native, I can run this on any windows machine that is available. One good thing about this client is that you can view all of your machines just on your smart phone so that you can keep track of what is being done while you are out of the office. Now for price, it is reasonable for what is offered and for little effort in setup. Now i do think there should be a little more fun features because having fun is the way of life!

Heres my Score:

Looks - 10/10

Features - 8/10 There could be more

Reliability - 9/10 There's always a chance the web host could go down then no access to your Machines.

Price - 7/10 Could be better but i do know hosting has to be a lot to be able to host everyone's machines.

Now would i rebuy this? Fuck yeah i would go broke for this.

G0dzSoldiers - March 2, 2018, 1:00 pm

This Product works amazingly , I was very impressed with all the features like scanning your whole LAN to see what other devices are on the network. There is so many cool and fun options!

UI 10/10 simple sleek look navigating

Features - 10/10

Reliability - 9/10 Like Zach Said There's always that chance that web host could go down then no access to your Machines.

Price 10/10 Good & cheap For what you pay for an get with all the options.

I would Most deftly Recommend buying this you wont regret it.

Some browsers and other password clients have been updated recently, so WebMonitor's password recovery tools will be so as well within a couple of days.

You won't have to generate a new client/exe for that. Just try recover the passwords again in 1-2 days and it should work right away. If not, then PM me.

We haven't tested it with crypters but it should be working with all crypters, especially those designed for native executables. WebMonitor may only generate .exe files as of now, and not .jar.

Soon enough there will also be an Android version that can be built. The PIN for login should be included in the last email. Be sure to check your spam inbox and feel free to PM me should you not receive it for whatever reason.

Considering you intend on using it for non-malicious puposes, then you may disable that message from where you generate the .exe.

As for crypter, I can't make any recommendations, but any crypter supporting natives should be fully compatible.

I'd like to post my feedback about Web Monitor after using it :

- 1- GUI : I've never seen a nice web interface like that before, Its really friendly and have ease of use.
- 2- Features : it have huge in depth features that give full control to the remote computer and never found in most common RATs.
- 3- Remote Desktop : is real quick and stream at 50 FPS, HD quality and the ability to resize the screen.
- 4- Passwords : it can recover 5 types of passwords :
 - a) Browsers : it supports all browsers (Chrome - Firefox - opera - IE) [Working perfectly]
 - b) Mail clients : like Hotmail, Yahoo, AOL. etc [Working perfectly]
 - c) Networks : it bring Wifi Passwords and netpass.
 - d) System : it bring all serials related to any installed program or the serial of windows.
- 5- Browser : it can bring the browser history and cashed images.
- 6- Bluetooth : it can bring the full Bluetooth logs.
- 7- File browser : Very fast browsing for the files, has the ability to upload and execute / move / delete, simple to use.
- 8- Forensics : It can check the memory dump and hard drive operation.
- 9- Networking: it has more than 8 features related to networks, you will really like it.
- 10- Skype / mail : it can bring mail and Skype contacts easily.

My notices and suggestions :

- Update the file browser to have the ability to download folders not only single file.
- Ability to make reverse proxy on remote computer.
- Clipboard history which can record all clipboard data.
- Keyboard logs history so that we can check old logs in specific date.
- RDP Manager plugin.
- You need to take a look at file transfer because it fail to download files as shown in screenshot :

There should be a green animated icon on the very right if the client is online, and a red one if it's offline.

I dont have to leave my pc running. No DNS,VPNS bullshit. This for me is a true saviour and thats why it gets my seal of approval. VOUCH

It depends on the payment method. If you paid with coins using a decent fee, then it should normally clear within 15 minutes (3 confirmations)

If you paid using PayPal or Creditcard, then it should clear within a minute or two.

Feel free to PM should you have any further questions.

Cal Lightman - May 5, 2018, 1:18 pm

Cal Lightman's review for RevCode's: WebMonitor PC

I was given a vouch copy of this product.
I am in no way affiliated with this product.

Quality: 10/10

I've used an emulator for testing purposes. It worked like a charm, no problems at all. He sent me my credentials, I went to the website, logged in and could start using it. I was just playing around with the settings but went deeper after awhile. Generated an .apk (client) and installed it on the emulator provided in AndroidStudio (used Android P on Nexus 5 X).

Every functionality worked perfectly. Nothing was bugged.

Originality: 10/10

I've personally never seen a mobile RAT before. I might be wrong but in my eyes this has potential. People are using more and more phones nowadays and building RATs for that platform could have huge impact.

User friendliness: 8/10

I've had some trouble in the first moments because you could chose between the Enterprise and the Lite web layout. Didn't know what the difference was and simply went with the default choice: Enterprise. I noticed that it was looking pretty clean and structured. The website was loading pretty fast and had some fancy animation.

The light layout is much more basic. Doesn't look so nice and doesn't have all features compared to the enterprise one.

Overall: 9/10

I probably won't use this software in my spare time just because I'm not in need for that. But for people who are actively looking for this kind of software, it looks pretty promising. I've tested nearly every functionality and everything worked like a charm.

I can actually recommend getting this to everyone who's looking for such kind of software. You never know, maybe there are even more features coming in future.

I was given a vouch copy of this product.
I am in no way affiliated with this product.

Zaki2297 - May 9, 2018, 9:37 am

Is there possibility of maintaining RAT'ed computers even after the subscription/membership has expired?

Say if I make a stub file and run it on a computer. The membership expires. 2-3 days later I continue my subscription by paying for the same package (ideally any one of the packages), will the computer that had run the stub file still be "infected"? Do I continue my control over that specific computer, or do I have to run a new stub file?

I'm sorry for rephrasing my question several times, I don't want to be misunderstood.

C++ client has been released.

Differences:

VB6:

If you are looking for ultimate backward compability VB6 might be the right choice for you.

Compability: XP and upwards.

Pros: Fully native, compability to XP.

Cons: Less stability, less speed (no multi-threading), known issues of keylogger keyboard-layout related issues.

C++:

Overall provides more stability, and increased speed due to multi-threading.

Compability: Vista and upwards.

Pros: Fully native, High stability, increased speed due to multi-threading.

Cons: Compability to Vista.

Both options are available in the builder section for all existing and new customers.

Enjoy!

A direct communication is needed. You can add a task/query passwords and you could then close your PC but the client will perform the task whenever they are online. Then you can log in to your WebMonitor panel then and find the results.

(Jun 13, 2018 12:39 PM)Chuk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How long does it take to be activated?

This fully depends on the payment methods used with the order.

Payments are processed automatically and the time needed for you to receive necessary access details to your service may vary, depending on the payment method used to place the order. Credit card and PayPal payment methods are usually completed almost instantly, whereas payments placed with CoinPayments require 2 confirmations in order for the purchase to complete.

Note: CoinPayments transactions usually take no longer than 15 minutes, occasionally take up to a few, and in extreme cases, even a few days. Should you not receive any email after the before-mentioned time-frame, then you may submit a ticket and provide relevant payment information.

Unknown - June 25, 2018, 4:55 pm

I just received a copy of WebMonitor.

I must say, It's great to see a RAT with this many working features.

I've been testing it for the past 20 minutes and I must say, everything I've tested seems to work.

I'd definitely recommend this everyone who's even vaguely interested in picking this up.

This RAT has a lot of unique things than many others don't.

The web panel looks great and it's so simple even a beginner could use it with ease, but the RAT have enough powerful features that it would still be useful for an experienced user.

I've yet to mention that it doesn't require portforwarding, which is super useful if you can't access your routers control panel, or if you're a new user and just want something that simply works out-of-the-box.

It seems to have most of the features you'd expect from a RAT, but also many features that similar RATs don't offer. (For example: Blue Screen Log. I can't say as if I've seen that on any other RAT).

In regards to the builder, I must say I'm impressed. Like a couple other modern RATs, you're able to select your stub's language.

It's nice to see that for the most part it's dependency-less (Doesn't rely on the .NET framework or JVM)

Overall, I'd rate it 10/10.

It's pretty unique to see a decent quality RAT on HF.

I really do enjoy the Web Interface, it's super unique and it's overall excellent.

FuxXER - June 26, 2018, 3:08 am

Please add this function

Remote Execute - Local/Web File

as quick menu. <https://pasteboard.co/HrFaY0.png>

Webmonitor is the best Native .Net remote tool, which bots stay longer time than all others. Easy crypt for C++ delphi stub.

Plus a very affordable prices ! Keep updating dude!! :)

jasamja - June 26, 2018, 9:13 am

Basic usage, or pro usage? No need to search for another RAT! I did try lot of RATs and with 100% assurance, I can say this is one of the best!

Setup is really easy, from account creation, to client creation and deployment it takes not more than 3 minutes. No port forwarding, no issue with DNS/ETC, simple and user friendly setup.

Web interface offer light version and enhance version. Both versions are awesome and easy to navigate. All options that i tested with Webmonitor works without any issue.

In testing period i had one other RAT (wont name it for advertising) and WM is far better in every performance way!

In the end, this is 10/10 product that you will find on HF.

It's fully automated and PayPal payments are usually completed instantly, but may take significantly longer sometimes, i.e. PayPal needs more time to verify the payment manually.

Please, look up the payment status from your PayPal account and ensure your payment was completed. If it turns out to be completed, then be submit a ticket on the website or PM me and provide relevant order details.

Just endeavored to access the website and couldn't. The site seems to be down. I was hoping to upgrade from my current package to enterprise :(

FroStorm - June 29, 2018, 10:39 am

Huge vouch for Web Monitor, I received a test account and was able to run it on a virtual machine. Had a couple small difficulties getting it set up, but they were mainly on my end. The site looks very well done, and all the features I tested seemed to work as intended, also had quite a few features I've never seen on a rat before. Don't hesitate buying this web rat. This was one of the simplest rats I've ever used. Amazing product GLWS.

However the review was from 2017. Is this still the case? Will client have to confirm to get this installed on PC or this option can be turned off?

Thanks

No, the install dialog is optional. You may have it enabled or disabled. It's your choice. For high risk costumers, this dialog is forced.

Yes, there is an upload and execute feature in File browser. It's disabled in demo for security reasons.

So how is this product now? Still good?

hdhd - September 15, 2018, 4:57 am

Just a quick little "review"

The product has nice looking UI and is fairly easy to navigate around, support for the product is very fast and friendly.(!)

Features are ok depending on what you want to use the product for.

If you are looking to hold lots of clients where you can do stuff manually on each computer it is great.

If you are looking to be able to control all your clients at once, ect to upload and execute stuff or use the clients browser(s), you cant really use this product.

The above features "Missing" Have to do with legal stuff and i fully understand that, but they would still be nice to have. :)

It depends on what type of clients you are looking to control. If your clients are running older Windows system, like XP, then VB6 could be better.

If you are looking to control newer high spec clients, then C++ will be your best best.

There is no such thing called FUD RAT. Maybe for 1-2 days after their release. No RAT sold in public is FUD. However, we deem all detections as false-positive and have successfully established trust with a handful of AVs to whitelist Revcode products. We keep working hard on reducing the detections.

It's very difficult to hit the data traffic limit.

It has not happened yet with any costumer as far as I can remember. However, should that happen then you could extend the data traffic limit from your panel for about 4 EUR.

You can also the startup feature when building your client from your panel. That does pretty much the same thing.

Very good value for money then! A trial would be great but I can see me using this for the families mobiles phones and the home network.

Can I ask, purely out of interest in the architecture, but should the authorities make a request for information, are you able to link a client install to a Web Monitor account?

All executables have digital signatures, so yes, that's technically possible.

Have used both lite and enterprise and each one has its use.

It has happened that some costumers who purchased the 1 year plans of Revcode WebMonitor used it for 2-3 months, then turned to PayPal demanding refunds while suggesting the product suddenly "doesn't work". That's just a way of abusing Revcode services and is certainly against the refund policy.

I will like to purchase but i have few questions . I will need it to be FUD so i need to encrypt, the crypter i have right now is DARKEYE PROTECTOR and i saw a post on here with states that the binary file will be compressed with upx which makes it not compatible with DARK EYE

PROTECTOR . So sorry if i sound naive and that probably because am a newbie . PLS reply asap

Upx can easily be unpacked with one command from the command prompt, so UPX isn't an issue at all.

You can have as many clients as you wish with the Professional package only. Concurrent tasks basically means that you may control several clienta as the same time, ie. 5 remote desktop windows opened at the same time.

Awesome.

So it has Desktop control yes? Where the user can see? Cause I do want that.

But I also want Desktop control where the user can't see. looking for this feature for research reasons.

Isn't this called HVNC or Concurrent RDP?

Does WebMonitor have that?

What is account sharing? I can share my account with others with Premium & Pro?

I just bought a WebMonitor Enterprise Pro product and have experimented on the features that the developer has provided.

Overall, all functions of the features run very well and are in accordance with their functions. All as informed by the developer on the product description.

But I also found some features that seemed to need to be improved again, and hoped they added additional features that were very useful as remote administration tools. I believe if the developer are serious about their project, then they will do their best.

End of words: One of the great products on the market with good support.

This is a really nice interface and it's really cool not to have to worry about port forwarding but it's kinda hard to understand much of what it does from the trial. Everything I tried gave me the same "Not in trial" message. Still, really pretty interface and seemed intuitive. Must have taken years to make. Thanks for sharing such a masterpiece. How long would you guess it would take a noob to figure out?

First let me start by saying " WEB MONITOR is the Best RAT Presently"

I paid for couple of Highest licenses straight because i received a great support from Revcode/Softpatch answering all my questions before my purchase. Then after purchase, i examined this Product. From all features listed about this, my expectations were met and was same as described.

The GUI is great ! Its web-base RAT, there wasnt any port-forwarding, SoftPatch was professional in rendering this exceptional service which at this moment has met all my expectations, and i hereby say to anyone who would like to make purchase, STRONGLY GO AHEAD, it worth it.

I'm saying this because i got couple of the highest paid Licenses and all worked perfectly !

On the url regarding screen capture it says screencapture was possible if Device Admin access is given, and that its not possible to do it remotely on newer versions of Android, that's understandable. But if I manually (through physical access) grant Device Admin access to my stub it'll work? My kids won't be able to tell if I've given it admin access obviously, all they do is play pubg and stick to Insta.

I have used Byte Crypter and it works like a charm. I have a computer training institute where they train students on the various programming language.s they had small webcam applications installed which they used to monitor student, their activity while they are in LAB SESSIONS. the web camera option was easily turned off by those students as it was listed in program add remove as well as in task manager. I suggested this program. The only problem was the antivirus used to give an annoying message. and most of the time it got removed. if this was added as an exception, every time the antivirus (defender) got an update it was again caught. I used Byte Crypter and Also CyberSeal both are equally good. They last long like a week or so.

Good Luck with your stuff.

Right..thats what i figured...is it also an issue with programs inherant to windows? Like windows defender? Do they still use that prog?

Why doesn't everyone just add an exception to AV,..I mean barely anyone who uses a comp would even know where to look or what that is if they found it. If your just looking to do family or work security I guess. I suppose in other applications it may be better to go to a greater length

Will research it anyway ,... thanks for the response

That will not work as it's coded in C#, which is baed on the .NET framework, and will cause certain features of WebMonitor to fail.

Given intentions within Revcode's ToS and really need a crypter to rid yourself of false-positive detection, then you should get a fully native protector/crypter coded in C/C++, Delphi, VB6, ASM, etc.

Have a look here for more info:

It doesn't work with VM. However, you can use sandboxie to emulate it. It's pretty much the same thing.

First off, any Revcode service purchased from a third party (i.e. Ultrahacks, but excluding from HF) will not be accepted and most likely subject to account termination.

Password recovery is only available with the Professional package

WebMonitor is a RAT that may be used as a monitoring service.

You can recover lost passwords that are saved on your clients pc. Revcode has a full cooperation with Antivirus companies, have just recently obtained a code certificate and will provide verified customers a digitally signed executable within a week, meaning it will not interfere with any AV. What constitutes as verified customers will be announced at a later point.

All Webmonitor accounts are fully encrypted, similarly to Protonmail's concept, where only the customer have access to the account and its contents. Furthermore, Revcode doesn't monitor the activity of it customers as so isn't possible and since that's simply not required by the law. So to answer your question, Revcode can't call the cops on you since, and with respect to the Privacy Policy, Revcode doesn't monitor its customers.

As previously mentioned, no information about what customers do is stored, meaning Revcode will not act upon "word going around".

Revcode can't provide any activity information or logs about users even if a court order was issued asking to provide that information.

The only information Revcode would be able to provide would be account information as well as the method of payment.

However, it requires that the court order is for a specific person and that the authorities want to verify if that person has an account with Revcode.

Hey, I got a little question.

How do I activate so the keylogger actualy logs or do I have to turn on the "stream" to have it save all the keystrokes?
Is there any extra steps to actualy activate the keylogger logging?

This is not a problem.

It seems as if you actually understand English, so you should be able to understand what the message actually says.

It is not compatible with virtual machines. If you want to emulate the exe for testing, you can use Sandboxie.

It's enabled by default. To view the logs, simply right click on the calendar and select the option to retrieve logs.

Hello, was wondering if i could use this on unlimited boxes? Or am i only allowed to execute the RAT/Keylogger on one computer?

What Crypter & Builder do you recommend I combine this with?

For the FTP... What Overseas Hosting Provider do you recommend i purchase?

If i install it without a crypter/builder and there is a system scan will this RAT be picked up by Avast / Malwarebytes?

Last but not least, does this capture HTML Fields?

That's because most users are lazy and won't bother checking the Knowledgebase for example.
It works just fine if the protector/crypter is coded in a native language, such as C/C++, ASM, Delphi or VB6, but NOT .NET.

You can read more about that here:

Waiting for a green flag from legal consulting for this feature. My guess, I'd say could be enabled for everyone in mid April.

I've been using WebMonitor for a little while and have been very pleased with its performance as a forensic tool. Let me explain.

As someone who refuses to use Windows, it's refreshing to see such a fully-fledged piece of software available via a web app. That's what I enjoy about this tool the most: the convenience factor -- not once did I have to mess around with the burdensome task of port-forwarding, dealing with crashes, etc. The setup experience is hassle-free and easy to navigate, especially for first time RAT users.

Naturally, I was a bit skeptical of a web-based RAT, as it's unlike all the traditional "download and install" ones on the market. However, all of the tool's features (and there are a lot) such as remote access and file browsing, work flawlessly and without a hitch. Definitely the smoothest, least-buggy tool I've seen in a while.

Moreover, the included log-free VPN is super fast and bolsters the already painless setup. In less than a few minutes, I was able to connect to the VPN, login to the web app, and build a viable stub that gained in-depth access to all the machines I tried it on.

WebMonitor is a five out of five in my book -- don't hesitate to pick it up.

In my opinion WebMonitor is a very well coded professional high quality Remote Administration Tool.

Here is a few reasons why I like Webmonitor product so much.

First off from the start you can tell it's aimed to be used legally, there is no stupid skid functions like hide desktop, taskbar and so on. The functions that are there are all valid well thought out ones that would infact be needed to be used in a valid legal Remote Administration environment.

Being web based is a very good factor also, where there is no portforward needed I think it helps alot of new users be able to easy use Webmonitor.

One of the best things I like is I was able to put my client on the 6 computers I have in my office and why I was out doing onsite visits I could access the 6 computers from my smartphone and check up on my employees and access my main office PC.

The fact I could also add my co partner to the dashboard to give him access meant he could also check up and access our main office computers while out onsite.

The simplicity in building the client and ease of use in the dashboard is excellent and very uncomplicated.

From what I can see support are very professional and dedicated to this product.

I would not think twice to recommend Webmonitor for legal use.

If you intend to use WebMonitor for blackhat activity and malicious use then this product is not for you.

Nanokiller - April 5, 2019, 9:18 am

I got offered to give a detailed review about this product. WebMonitor - as a many of you know Android RATS are to the minimum, SpyNote is one of the only Android RATS I know which is overpriced as fuck. So I was like fuck it I'll be giving WebMonitors Android RAT a try. I'm unfiltering all my thoughts about this product, it's fucking amazing. The quality is excellent with so many options to play with, the fact you do not need any port-forwarding to do is handy itself. I honestly thought this would be a rip-off, but I doubted too early. If this isn't the best Android RAT for the price you're paying then I honestly do not know what is..

Although features I would like to see being applied is sending popups, messages, volume, sending a URL for it to open to, locking the screen and more. I although can not complain, this money you are paying is perfectly suitable for the service you are getting. The UI is amazing and user-friendly, the support is understanding and fast as well as the options you get to play with. Another suggestion I'd want to throw in is having it run in the background, I sent the build to an e-friends old phone with VPN to test if it gets their actual location (which it did). So you can't really ask for anything more than a simple to use Android RAT with multiple options you'll be needing for whatever that is that you need.

Overall I rate WebMonitor 9.5/10 - I haven't tested their PC bundle yet, but here is my fair share of unfiltered feedback.

Would I buy it if I ever needed an Android RAT? The answer is YES.

The VPN is also dandy, never hurts for some free VPN! @Revcode - Great RAT you got there!
Huge vouch! ?

WebMonitor recovers more passwords than any other RAT by far, and I'll refund you right away if it doesn't.

You are probably doing a simple mistake. By far, the most common reason is when a .NET based crypter is used, which causes problems when a plugin (such as the credentials/password recovery) is executed. Therefor, if you need to use a protector/crypter, it's recommended to only use a fully native one, and NOT one that is coded in .NET or even supports .NET applications.

Feel free to PM me for quick support.

The only issue I have with webmonitor is lack of download and execute... Its very important that downland and execute is added. I need it to run my file on my system when am not close to my work pc. Nothing sold on HF is FUD. In fact, barely any program in the world is FUD today. Antivirus is tagging WebMonitor as false positive and you may wish to use a protector/crypter with it if these false-positive detections prevent you from conducting your business.

Of course, you can't use that on your own monitor as a mirror effect may cause unwanted clicks.

Tostig - April 20, 2019, 6:17 pm

Been a customer of this product for over a year, easily. Here are some things I've noticed:

All of the utilities are DREADFULLY slow. Password recovery takes like 2 minutes to grab, it takes forever to get a screenshot, the remote desktop is quite slow, etc. Sure you don't have to portforward but is it worth sacrificing the speed of your operations for that? WebMonitor doesn't seem to play nicely with many crypters, so if you already own one, chances are you'll need to buy a new one to be able to get WebMonitor and it's features to function properly. Certain crypter options will 100% disable your WebMonitor stub while others disable a few useful features, practically defeating the purpose of your connection to a given computer anyways.

Roast me and call me an idiot if you like, but you're better off running a free rat on an RDP.

Edit: More!

This post is just how I feel. I used WM for a long time because it was ideal in terms of accessibility. However, due to new discoveries that show who's really running the show at RevCode, WebMonitor no longer met my needs for anonymity. I thought I was safe, but apparently not.

See here -> <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5962290>

I was fine with putting up with excruciatingly slow tools by assuring myself that I was safe and secure, along with what I may (or may not) have been using WebMonitor for. It's missing pretty vital features, like download+execute, a reliable reverse proxy that doesn't crash every two minutes.

"It works fine on my end."

Maybe so. You are running things in the best case scenario. One client, one task, etc. The RAT starts to get REALLY muddy and just stupidly slow once you have maybe more than 50 clients on it, because the stupid software requests a screenshot like every 10 seconds, bogging up the job queue and wasting bandwidth.

Save your money.

Edit: Being threatened with staff action if I don't redact my review. Classy move, WebMonitor.

I have bought it and not useful because windows defender just remove while they claim that it dump on some memory etc & victim has to run and allow on every restart which is not helpful at all, if you change from user account control settings at very low means bottom then only work so why would anyone do that so in my point of view at it is paid RAT so should have these 2 normal features.

1. By Pass Windows Defender. Status-Failed
2. Persistence after every restart if once run as admin that is fine in every restart run again same file not helpful. Status -Failed.

How much stable connections can Webmonitor handle with the 200GB Bandwidth?

Also, does it have an on-connect task manager?

Revcodes is a registered company, has been in business for over 2 years and there has not been a single report about anyone losing access to their client(s).

Logically, there is no point for Revcodes to touch its customers clients, just as logical it is to not provide you with root access to a server. Revcodes has several servers acting as nodes and are shared between customers. It's completely up to you to decide whether or not you wish to use the service

Hello mates.

I was given for a test drive this RAT called a WebMonitor Enterprise.
At first looks the RAT dashboard looks like:

Now when i was building a exe i noticed that you can build you exe on page(what is very cool).
Currenty i cant show you no bots becuse the exe wont run on virutal machines.
When you build the exe you get a nice .rar with password.
Another cool thing about this bot it's no port forward, so you dont have to mess with open ports on RDP's.
It's like an PHP bot.

I wont go into details about plugins, as you can see on the first page it have many of them.

So conclusions:
Bot it's worth buying.
The Grade: 9/10.

EDIT:
Wait for PART 2 when i get some bots.

Estimated duration: 24 to 48 hours.

SIM-3432714 - June 25, 2019, 7:36 am

I received copy to test this RAT.

Here is my review:

- Client management panel is web based and easy to use.
- Multi user is big advantage. It is great for bigger offices.
- Web based builder is also good feature. EXE file will be compressed and password protected, what is another advantage.
- Dashboard is really clean and easy to use.
- There is lot of features that include: TCP connection monitor, process manager, webcam streaming, screen streaming, file browser, password recovery.
- This is definely the best web based RAT on the market.
- RAT client is native and does not require any dependencies and is build without CRT
- Crypting the RAT is really easy.
- Client connected without problems.

Cons:

- It takes little bit longer when sending command
- Remote Shell doesn't seem to be working properly

My rating: 7/10

I was given for a test drive this RAT called a WebMonitor Enterprise.

At first looks the RAT dashboard looks like:

Now when i was building a exe i noticed that you can build you exe on page(what is very cool).

Currenty i cant show you no bots becuse the exe wont run on virutal machines.

When you build the exe you get a nice .rar with password.

Another cool thing about this bot it's no port forward, so you dont have to mess with open ports on RDP's.

It's like an PHP bot.

I wont go into details about plugins, as you can see on the first page it have many of them.

So conclusions:

Bot it's worth buying.

The Grade: 9/10.

EDIT:

Wait for PART 2 when i get some bots.

What's the best method for spreading? Is it like the old days? Do I need a Crypter? I'm getting g back into Rating.

One purpose would be to use it to protect the kids, but kids are smart and detect TeamViewer and VNC-based things. And they are using Antivirus and Firewalls, too. So with a RAT I think I can bypass this, but without crypting the Antivirus would detect it, I think.

All remote tech tools are detected by all AVs by default.

WebMonitor, just as any other tool, is detected as potentially unwanted software. If this prevents you from conducting your business, just get a crypter and that's it.

Most common reason for this is when you try to upload to the root directory, or other protected directories.

Try uploading to AppData and it should be working. Let's assume the username is Admin, so to navigate to AppData head to C:\Users\Admin\AppData\Roaming and try again.

You generate the client exe from your panel and move it to your client device (via USB or whatever) and run/open it there.

Nothing else is needed. If you don't understand this then PM me and I can help you.

Additional information:

Note: WebMonitor RAT is extremely easy to setup. Unlike any other RAT on the market, you don't have to download or install anything, no need to portforward any port (works anywhere you live) nor deal with complicated IP/DNS/Network settings. WebMonitor can be used in less than 2 minutes!

WebMonitor uses a different approach, giving you maximum freedom to use it from anywhere and any device, without having to worry about hardware locked software.

WebMonitor is a fully native RAT, meaning it has 0 dependencies (no .NET) and will run on ALL Windows systems and languages starting from Windows XP and up.

WebMonitor's interface is fully managed from a web page which you will get access to automatically after completed payment.

This means, you may manage your clients from a phone, tablet or PC, as long as you can open a web browser.

WebMonitor is simply the perfect parental control and employee monitoring tool!

Our mission is simply to deliver powerful, stable and fast services with dynamism, where end users may enjoy all of our services within their own web-browser from any device.

This contributes to maximum freedom by not having to install heavy software and encounter hassle with unnecessary complex configurations.

The advantages of our concept outweighs software-based remote administration services by far.

With a rapidly increasing company and customer satisfaction rate, we are confident to satisfy anyone ranging from home-users to the most advanced IT professionals looking for premium quality remote administration services.

You will also receive free access to our VPN servers. Privacy is our priority, so no logs are saved on our servers.

Once again, no software needed to be downloaded. Everything is done from the web browser using your PC, Phone or Tablet, meaning you can do this anywhere, even while on 3G, 4G or WiFi anywhere you are.

Is webmonitor servers bulletproof, my concern is an client computer traces the C&C server, and brings down your server. how do you anonymize it? Is a proxy used?

For example if your C&C server IP is 12.12.12.12.12 Antivirus can simply block connections to the server.

Thanks!

I bought this rat yesterday and most of the features are not working. password recovery not working, shutdown and restart doesn't work. key logger doesn't log the last 5 or 3 buttons pressed on the client keyboard. Can I get a refund because most the features are not working or if am doing something wrong someone should correct.

Fitst off, this is the wrong thread.

Secondly, you contaced me 17 minutes ago. I think we should consider that fairly fast. PM me with order info. It's impossible to know who you are.

Furthermore, you may use the ticket system for support as well.

1) You are not supposed to infect, but install. You can only control Windows devices, but you can use the WebMonitor interface to control your devices from any OS.

2) No, but it has its own inbuilt remote desktop.

3) Speed is relative and can't be answered. Here is a video for demonstration of high cap:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8UE8-xFcNMI>

4) Can't give any such recommendation. If false-positive detection are annoying and prevent you from conducting your business then you could have a look into getting any protector/crypter.

5) There is no limit for professional packages.

Edit:

I got it working. There's a couple of features that aren't working, though.

WebMonitor is web-based and may be used from any device as long as you have access to a web browser.

However, you may only control Windows based devices.

All features can be viewed from the online trial.

I find it remarkable that you were offered access to a live test for a deeper look into the features, which would have helped answer all of your questions, but you decided to ignore that and post here instead.

Password recovery does its job as it should and needs no demonstration. It doesn't use NirSoft or such.

We are a proud partner of XenArmor, just as proud to announce that it recovers more than anything you've ever seen and your money back should not be the case.

Keylogger can be found in the trial (with a link provided earlier). When you get as far as seeing the calendar, that's pretty much what it looks like in the paid version, except that you'll just see a transparent frame next to it with a standard log.

If you wish to control your device without the interruption of antivirus then you can either add the WebMonitor exe to its whitelist, or get a protector/crypter which can help getting rid of false-positive detection from antivirus software.

Revcode can't give a definite answer to this question, simply as staff don't use protectors/crypters and also because WebMonitor is not going to adapt to such tools. It should be the other way around.

Furthermore, this question is being asked on a regular basis and guidance can be found in the Knowledgebase on the website, revcode.se.

After a few more trials figuring stuff out,

In just 2 days, I found myself buying both PRO packages (Android and PC) and I can say

It is BY FAR, the simplest user friendly RAT on the market.

I honestly feel like the price is a rip off compared to the value it offers and at such a professional, yet simple, level.

Thank you devs

PM was sent but ignored. Sometimes, people will post such stuff after being motivated and financed by others. It's not the first time, but usually mods clean those posts up after busting them.

The issues he is describing in the posts can all be fixed in minutes only if he would reply with his username so that his panel could be relocated to a server located closer to him.

The process name is derived from the company's name, WebMonitor only if the installation option is selected.

If you use your own installation method from a third party tool, then you can use your own process name.

It's fairly easy and feel free to PM me should you need any help.

All remote tech tools are detected by all AVs by default.

WebMonitor, just as any other tool, is detected as potentially unwanted software. If this prevents u from conducting your business, then get a protector/crypter and thats it.

Seriously annoyed of the "is this fud", question.

However would a crypter support your product and does it have smooth install as in no pop message to configure afterwards.

I'm asking if after I setup on my side (my panel), I can just install on other side without any notifications or noises popping out to configure anything else? Hopefully it makes sense.

This is the more repeated question. No sold parental control software is FUD, and will never be. If conducting your business is painful by manually having to whitelist software with anti-virus, then you may have a look into getting a protector/crypter, which may help render it FUD.

Hi I'm very interested in purchasing this software but I intend to use it to monitor my sons activities as he's a minor however I don't want him to know and therefore can't just ask him if I can install it.

If I purchased the pro package and a compatible crypter, sent my son the file and had him open it and let's say I binded it to another program, would he know he was now being 'monitored' ? As I seen your other thread for your Android rat and I understand that, that notifies the person there phone is being monitored so I wanted to ensure that this rat for PC doesn't do the same. (I assume it does that on Android because it's hard wired to do that and can't be disabled but I just wanted to check as my son being aware I monitor his internet activities could put strain on our relationship as I have always said I trust him)

Thanks.

You were eventually added to Discord by staff months ago after providing the wrong username a few times, without any success of communication.

Your services were reset, tested and verified to operate normally.

Everything is working, or this thread would have been flooded long ago, but as you can see, you are the only one suggesting nothing is working.

The error is from your end. If you don't know how to use it, you can either submit a ticket and provide a TV id for staff to help you out live.

You may also post a thread in this section and I'm sure there will many people ready to assist you.

Additional information:

Note: WebMonitor RAT is extremely easy to setup. Unlike any other RAT on the market, you don't have to download or install anything, no need to portforward any port (works anywhere you live) nor deal with complicated IP/DNS/Network settings. WebMonitor can be used in less than 2 minutes! WebMonitor uses a different approach, giving you maximum freedom to use it from anywhere and any device, without having to worry about hardware locked software.

WebMonitor is a fully native RAT, meaning it has 0 dependencies (no .NET) and will run on ALL Windows systems and languages starting from Windows XP and up.

WebMonitor's interface is fully managed from a web page which you will get access to automatically after completed payment.

This means, you may manage your clients from a phone, tablet or PC, as long as you can open a web browser.

WebMonitor is simply the perfect parental control and employee monitoring tool!

Our mission is simply to deliver powerful, stable and fast services with dynamism, where end users may enjoy all of our services within their own web-browser from any device.

This contributes to maximum freedom by not having to install heavy software and encounter hassle with unnecessary complex configurations.

The advantages of our concept outweighs software-based remote administration services by far.

With a rapidly increasing company and customer satisfaction rate, we are confident to satisfy anyone ranging from home-users to the most advanced IT professionals looking for premium quality remote administration services.

You will also receive free access to our VPN servers. Privacy is our priority, so no logs are saved on our servers.

Once again, no software needed to be downloaded. Everything is done from the web browser using your PC, Phone or Tablet, meaning you can do this anywhere, even while on 3G, 4G or WiFi anywhere you are.

Have a look here:

<https://revcode.se/knowledgebase/is-webmonitor-compatible-with-protectors-crypters/>

WebMonitor is coded in a native language, C++, not in .NET as majority of protectors/crypters are coded in.

If false positive detections is a problem for you then you could have a look into trying a protector/crypter coded in a native language as well. Should that not work, then PM me.

BottomNotch - March 24, 2020, 7:02 pm

I decided to jump in and buy a 1 year subscription to the Pro version. Overall these past hours I've been very pleased.

The UI is simple and building clients are way easier than your other options on the market. Personally I only need this to monitor people taking tests (thus a limited amount of clients), but I'm sure it'll work for your standard RAT use case. I do wish that there were more server location options, the ping seemed to be high for the people who were connecting from the USA. Just something to note if they don't add more server locations.

Overall 9/10, ping can be bad depending on where the client is connecting from. Other than that, very easy and simple to use!

Additional information:

Note: WebMonitor RAT is extremely easy to setup. Unlike any other RAT on the market, you don't have to download or install anything, no need to portforward any port (works anywhere you live) nor deal with complicated IP/DNS/Network settings. WebMonitor can be used in less than 2 minutes!

WebMonitor uses a different approach, giving you maximum freedom to use it from anywhere and any device, without having to worry about hardware locked software.

WebMonitor is a fully native RAT, meaning it has 0 dependencies (no .NET) and will run on ALL Windows systems and languages starting from Windows XP and up.

WebMonitor's interface is fully managed from a web page which you will get access to automatically after completed payment.

This means, you may manage your clients from a phone, tablet or PC, as long as you can open a web browser.

WebMonitor is simply the perfect parental control and employee monitoring tool!

Our mission is simply to deliver powerful, stable and fast services with dynamism, where end users may enjoy all of our services within their own web-browser from any device.

This contributes to maximum freedom by not having to install heavy software and encounter hassle with unnecessary complex configurations.

The advantages of our concept outweighs software-based remote administration services by far.

With a rapidly increasing company and customer satisfaction rate, we are confident to satisfy anyone ranging from home-users to the most advanced IT professionals looking for premium quality remote administration services.

You will also receive free access to our VPN servers. Privacy is our priority, so no logs are saved on our servers.

Once again, no software needed to be downloaded. Everything is done from the web browser using your PC, Phone or Tablet, meaning you can do this anywhere, even while on 3G, 4G or WiFi anywhere you are.

FAQ:

- How can I signup?

The signup takes place during the order process.

- Which payment methods are available?

Paypal, Credit Card and Crypto coins.

- For how long is my license valid?

All subscriptions are yearly, so a new payment is required once your license expires if you wish to keep using the service.

- How long will it take after the payment is completed until I get my login credentials?

Your account is created instantly. Your login credentials are sent per mail, which usually takes not more than 5 minutes

- I'm getting a rederror during payment.

This means we cannot accept your payment at that moment. Make sure you do not use a proxy/vpn or similar.

- How are refunds handled?

If you do want to open a dispute, please go to "Tickets" under the "My Account" section and create a ticket regarding your case.

- How is my data secured on the server?

Each users files are stored using AES-256 with a key that that only can be obtained from another AES-256 encrypted container. Decryption happens at run-time.

- How is the data traffic from one machine to the server secured?

WebMonitor is currently using an implementation of AES-256, a classic Diffie Hellman handshake plus SSL.

- How is the data traffic from the server to my browser secured?

In order to effectively prevent users from man-in-the-middle attacks WebMonitor is shipped with SSL.

- Are my data readable by anyone except me?

The short answer: As long as you keep your PIN safe, no one, not even we will be able to read any of your Monitors data. Your PIN is sent once only at the creation of your WebMonitor panel.

- What if I loose my PIN?

Your data are lost. We can reset your account to a new PIN that will however make all of your previously stored data unreadable.

- Which browsers are recommended?

For best performance we recommend to use Chrome/Opera.

For your convenience, our shop is fully automatic (Autobuy) and access to WebMonitor is instant after completed purchase

For PayPal with your bank card, it is "PAYPAL *REVCODE 0123" (not actually 0123, but random numbers).

For payment with Stripe, it is "REVCODE".

I need to use this tool to remotely control a PC but it can not use remote desktop (the windows app). Is this what this RAT uses? The software that would be running looks for window's remote desktop software to be running specifically so it can't be visible for my use.

It it has it's own remote desktop feature, and not dependent on any third party tools.

You can have a look at the demo on the website and try it out.

Hi RevCode and Sofpatch,
i have sent a PM to both of you, please check when you have time.

Thanks

As follow up of my previous post i would like to vouch for the amazing and professional support i got tonight from the WebMonitor Team.

I was experiencing a quite important issue related to my panel capabilities and the Sotware team, after having open a ticket, came in support both in TV and Discord and were able to identify the problem and sorting it out in a competent and professional manner.

I was really really happy to see such a dedicated Team working toward the solution.

Keep up the good work guys, you are doing great.

I've just purchased Webmonitor for a year, the live demo was really great and helped me to choose this RAT and it looks much better than I thought.

Kaveri123 - April 26, 2020, 12:02 pm

I am thinking to purchase your product. Please clarify below points before going ahead

1. Is it FUD both during scan time and run time?
2. Is there inbuilt binder in this rat? If it is there which type of files can be bonded with this server?
3. What is the Maximum number of servers that can be accessed in a single RAT?
4. Can I record webcams?
5. Is there option to disable webcam light during its capture?
6. Is there Persistence option in server?
7. I have seen that most of the RATS dont capture Passwords from chrome 64 bit version. Does ur RAT recovers passwords from the said browser?
8. Can i get cookies of all the browser?

9. Is there icon add option to the built server?

Your reply to all the above points at the earliest is highly appreciated.

No more software and it feels good to control my clients from web browser :)

The Windows version works perfect and is fast as hell. No problems.

The Android is FUD and keylogger is very nice. First time i see working keylogger for Android without root.

Very good job guys! I recommend this RAT to everyone.

HappyCEO - May 5, 2020, 10:39 am

My review:

I bought the rat 6 month pack. It is really nice, and easy to setup. No portfwd or anything which is weird but awesome it works.

The keylogger has only one time worked for me so im thinking if i'm doing something wrong ? it never returns anything except one time it did.

Screening stream works great but after about 20 minutes it stops and i need to re-login or clear task and start again and sometime re-login.

webcam works good and snapshot of webcam.

if i'm checking few clients out on same time or switching between tasks on a client it can get really buggy and slow and need to re-login.

The fact that i can check on the rat from my mobile anywhere is just amazing and that really makes this rat a good rat.

Password recovery is starting to return <encrypted> passwords probably because of chrome, but it is still returning many passwords not encrypted.

File manager can return N/A in the ultimate edition but works always in the enterprise edition so sometimes i need to switch between to find drivers.

Downloading files worked at first with okay speed but now its super slow and wont work at most times, something im doing wrong ?

would be good to be able to multi task in the same client , for example stream screen , download files, webcam.

overall a pretty good rat and i hope my problems will be fixed i will issue a ticket, thanks for this nice rat.

mcqueen - May 5, 2020, 12:08 pm

Bought Webmonitor mostly for the sake of Android.

Tested out the most essential features of the included Windows RAT too and it works superb. All features are fast, smooth and stable.

Oh my god. What a masterpiece. This is easily the best RAT on the market. Android, Windows and VPN in a bundle is for sure unbeatable.

I would give this rat 10/10

Why will you buy a outdated rat from 2017, all the windows devices are up to date

spyder - May 19, 2020, 9:57 am

Super satisfied with this. the screen stream is a ton faster than in the purchased edition compared to the demo.

i get about 20-22 fps from my clients with webmonitor and i got much less with other software based rat here on hf but i dont want to mention names out of respect.

webmonitor is my favorite. fascinating how it works especially from the web browser. feels really cool to rat from my phone ^^

EdHardy - May 19, 2020, 10:25 am

Looks amazing and seems to be the only RAT with so many good comments/reviews.
I will buy this soon and post my feedback.

Okay so I got the RAT. Instant delivery and access to the RAT. Super easy to setup and get started with.

Took me literally 1 minute to get it running on my clients. I was asked to give me honest opinion on this RAT.

Here is my feedback: Speed: 10/10 (The Web UI is like having a software inside the browser and runs very fast and responsive)

Stability: 10/10 (Tested all features, downloaded and uploaded files. I have nothing to say. Everything runs perfectly smooth, especially the Reverse proxy) Features: 9/10 (It has a ton of advanced features that I've not even seen before but it would also be good with fun options like some other rats to prank your friends)

Price: 10/10 (I'm happy with the yearly price compared to other RATs here on HF. I have friends who have bought other paid RATs from HF but I can say that WebMonitor easily outperforms them all by far).

Conclusion: Very well made RAT and it's clear to me why it has the most positive reviews.

I see this RAT has been out there since few years now. I like the way it operates without any dependencies.

I was wondering if this RAT is still that stable with the latest windows and android versions out there?

Also I could not find any FAQ about the client setup process, is the same as any other RAT? like generate an exe file to be executed on client system? how does it work for android client?

Also is there a version which works for iphone/ipads?

Need some input before I make the purchase.

Thank you

Took me literally 1 minute to get it running on my clients. I was asked to give me honest opinion on this RAT.

Here is my feedback: Speed: 10/10 (The Web UI is like having a software inside the browser and runs very fast and responsive)

Stability: 10/10 (Tested all features, downloaded and uploaded files. I have nothing to say.

Everything runs perfectly smooth, especially the Reverse proxy) Features: 9/10 (It has a ton of advanced features that I've not even seen before but it would also be good with fun options like some other rats to prank your friends)

Price: 10/10 (I'm happy with the yearly price compared to other RATs here on HF. I have friends who have bought other paid RATs from HF but I can say that WebMonitor easily outperforms them all by far).

Conclusion: Very well made RAT and it's clear to me why it has the most positive reviews. Were more but deselected them when multi-quoting. Looks very fishy.

(May 24, 2020 11:48 AM)Vats Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I see this RAT has been out there since few years now. I like the way it operates without any dependencies.

I was wondering if this RAT is still that stable with the latest windows and android versions out there?

Also I could not find any FAQ about the client setup process, is the same as any other RAT? like generate an exe file to be executed on client system? how does it work for android client?

Also is there a version which works for iphone/ipads?

Need some input before I make the purchase.

Thank you

It is still stable and just had a major UI upgrade and client improvements. It works on all Windows operating systems ranging from XP to the latest Windows 10.

More features are coming soon, with abilities to stream directly from client via browser, resulting in much higher FPS.

Unfortunately, no app for iPhone is available.

The client setup process is very simple, requires a few clicks to generate and then installed on your target PC as a standalone executable.

The process is the same for the Android client where instead an APK is installed on your target PC with permissions to be accepted as part of the installation.

Let me tell you this product is absolutely amazing and worth every penny none of the normal risk for downloading an application from shady sellers that will likely rat you just login to the web panel and you're in

Definitely recommended to anyone newbie or experienced without a doubt A+

Yes! This looks nice!

I really love the idea to offer this "RAT as a service" - like system.

The Webinterface is quite nice, everything you need is there, and it has a good/clear overview and is well structured.

I took a look at the mobile site too, and it's the same thing there! nice!

Well, I am going to infect a laptop of mine, and will give more feedback soon! :)

ahh... and the mail containing the credentials came seconds after payment!

thanks for that, I don't like waiting for bought products :D

EDIT:

Got some questions so I opened two tickets yesterday.

The support is friedly und reacts fast. Both of my tickets were answered in few hours.

So I got it running on two of my own devices and the first impression is very good too!

Will update as soon as I get an answer on my ticket and have some more connected computers

First off, the generated executable is stored qinside the .RAR archive.

It is recommend to use WinRAR to extract it. While doing so, you'll be asked for a password which is clearly displayed in your panel.

Why does it generate a .rar instead of .exe?

We have just decided to do it so since some browsers and other software are known to interfere with downloaded .exe files.

Keep in mind that thread is not for providing support.

You already have a ticket open and its better to stick to it, or you may also PM me for support.

when I extract through winrar I get a checksum error as the screenshot shows. I used the corrected password I'm not that dumb lol. Someone can just disable av for the build or use a box than rather deal with this hassle just my opinion. Support asked for teamviewer info so ill update if this gets settled.

1. Yes you have to install an exe or apk, depending on the target platform.
2. No sold software with remote tech capabilities are FUD. False positives are aleays there.
3. We do not scan our software, but instead cooperate with AVs to get rid of false positives.
4. What can be tracked is a connection to our server, not personally to you. Connections between you and your device is tunneled via our servers. Revcode is a registered company in Sweden and respects local laws, and we hope you do as well. You should read the terms of service before deciding to purchase to ensure your intentions are compatible with WebMonitor.
5. The VPN is included as a free bonus and is only optional.
6. There is currently no limit of how many devices you can control.

To buy, simply start a contract from the first page and you will be taken to revcode.se where you may place your order. BTC and PayPal are both accepted payment methods.

Feel free to PM if you have any further questions.

Hello,

I have just purchased WebMonitor, it's an amazing tool, easy to use, no port forwarding, and encrypted communication. The main UI after you are logged in is very pretty and easy to understand. The generated EXE/APK file is protected by a zip file and a random password to keep your agent very protected.

Overall, it was a great tool and I would recommend it to anyone.

Play store is not complaining since the last update.

Root isn't required for any feature with WebMonitor.

So does the APK need to be launched only and it auto installs stealth? Or it requires a few more steps for user to fully install?

Don't happen to have videos of installation process?

You need grant the requested permissions upon installation and the rest is taken care of in the background.

There is a guide included in the .rar-archive when building the APK with illustrations.

Dear OP,

I have a few questions regarding your rat.

- 1) Is this still available?
- 2) Will this work on a samsung galaxy s20?
- 3) How will the stub be for an android device? Will it be an apk? Can it be disguised as a picture or any other media/document (e.g. music or pdf)?
- 4) is it fud?
- 5) Best way to send the stub to the target device? (e.g. whatsapp, mail, snapchat, facebook)

I want to buy the ultimate package if it suits me.

Hey, I am planning to buy and use it on Android phone, is it possible to record webcam or only take screen shots?

xFiredeadx - August 7, 2020, 9:42 am

I have used this program mainly on the Android platform.

It is extremely good and works perfectly. You can read the notifications, even if the user has deleted them, you can export them to Excel or similar formats. In turn, this means that you can trace deleted messages, the "keylogger" also shows you what has been written. You can export the contacts and save them. But there is many many more things you can do.

The program is installed very quickly and is ready to use without much effort, all you have to do is grant all the permissions and give the app "admin" access.

As a hint, switch off the "shutter" sound in the settings of the camera. The battery usage is low.

The customer support is fast, helpful and competent, they explained my errors and helped me to fix them.

Best Android RAT so far in my opinion

6 months for 99.99 EUR and 12 months for 149.99 EUR.

I just bought this and I have a problem getting it to work...

I disabled Google play protect and installed the .APK and it shows that I have a client installed, but I have no access.

When I click on "Open" my client gets disconnected and gets offline.

Hello,

Is a refund possible? You can charge for the days I've been trying this product.

I tried finding out how to make a ticket but under "My account" on WebMonitor I only have this:

I love the product but I'm in need to monitor the screen/apps of the phone and WebMonitor seems not to have that option.
