I think the objective of youtube now is to become the next entertainment media, the next TV. That's why they started prioritizing watch time instead of views: to keep people watching more. Watching more they also win more money as more ads (theoretically) would show up while people are watching. So in my opinion, youtube is becoming more and more like a commercial television.

In a sense, yes. But it's different.

Talking to yourself?

Pandamn - May 16, 2017, 3:39 pm

AdBlock though, you can't do that with commercial television

This is the best answer in this thread.

Do yo think after some time Youtube alternatives will kick in the game with success ?
