Thread: Feedback on my Portraits

Uncle Momo - May 14, 2017, 12:18 pm

I'll link my VSCO, any feedback would be greatly appreciated. Thanks!

The photos are good but I think they would be much better without that hazy filter over them.

I dig it, you've got a good eye. I agree on too much filter though, maybe dial it down to 75% so it isn't super overbearing.

You force the faded look onto a lot of your photos when you could simply get away without doing so. Also some pictures are very apparent with the vignetting.

A few of your photos followed the rule of thirds, and the others didn't. When the subject is directly in the middle of the photograph, it is really boring. Spice it up a bit.

I actually thought he did well differentiating where he used the rule of thirds and didn't

Any tips of post editing with Lightroom, I've been using some presets and adjusting a little bit but I see what you guys mean by it looking almost over editors. I appreciate the feedback from everyone though :)

Also here's a few more recent pictures I took for my family.

Like the 4th image on the first album and all of them on the second

Nice portraits! Although I have to agree with everybody, it way too much filter :) tone down the fade or offset(?) But colors are great! What camera are you using?

ElderPoint - May 17, 2017, 10:16 am

I agree maybe less effects!

What camera and lens are you using?

Uncle Momo - May 17, 2017, 2:37 pm

I am using the d3200 with 50mm f1.8 lens

Nice work but needed some contrast imo

I'm not a fan of the Sepia filter. The pictures with less intense filters (like the rocks) look really nice.
