BLAME!

Blame! takes place in the distant future, where humanity largely struggles to survive in a perpetually growing city-structure filled with dangerous robots called safeguards. The sheer size of the city — no one actually knows how big it is — means small groups of people have evolved in isolation, rarely interacting with each other. Killy serves as a sort of science-fiction gunslinger, travelling the countless levels of the city in search of humans carrying a rare gene that can help control the robots and restore humanity's place. It's a dark, hard futuristic tale filled with sprawling industrial wastes and disturbing humanoid killing machines.

It released just a little bit ago on Netflix. I personally enjoyed the story and the mysterious the movie revolves around, especially Killy and big jugs on those cute girls. Not a very big fan of the animation style but I don't dislike it.

It's barely a 2 hour long movie, I enjoyed it.

Let me know how you feel about this.

Looks decent and the story doesn't sound completely terrible. Might give it a watch today.

I have been used to this style of animation since Knights of Sidonia and Ajin. Polygon Pictures does a good job with their animating but the whole CG might be off-putting for people at first. It was for me but after a little bit it actually is quite nice.

Haven't had the chance to watch Blame yet but I did notice it on Netflix. Might watch it tonight and post later.

Will surely take a look at it this week. Let's hope it's not a "seven sins" disaster

It turned out to be a good movie, but I could barely understand the plot. The last 40 minutes was just ????

This keeps popping up on my recommended list. Guess I have to give it a go =].

The movie was pretty cool, still not a fan of the cg though. I also wish the movie had some of the silicon life characters in it.

I highly suggest checking out the manga, it's really good.
