Thread: [READ THIS BEFORE POSTING - \[SPECIFICALLY IN THIS SUBFORUM\]](#)

Kareem - May 23, 2017, 1:42 pm

For all of the new members on HF reading this subforum, I would like you to read this before creating a new thread here.

Basic Rules to follow:

1. If you are making a thread here about a question you have, please use google.com first.
2. Before making any posts or threads, please read the Help Docs (click here)
3. If you have a simple question that you think may have been answered before, please use the Search button and search for it.

Another important thing:

As stated in the Help Docs, "Hack Forums does not tolerate even the slightest discussion of black hat activities as listed here. Discussion of any kind on these topics will result into issuance of a warning. Certain cases will warrant a ban as Staff deems fit."

As you can see from above, this may be a hacking forum, but blackhat discussion will get you in trouble.

Other things to think about:

1. Asking for reputation on hackforums in general is a VERY BAD idea, and is against the rules
2. Please don't post threads asking people to hack something for you, or asking how to hack something like facebook. THOUSANDS OF THREADS LIKE THAT HAVE BEEN MADE BEFORE.
3. The discussion of "DDOSing" "DOSing" or Stressing attacks are NOT TOLERATED on this forum

Thanks for reading ?

Isn't this common sense?

I'm new to this forum, however, this post is essentially outlining how to use your common sense.

I guess some people might find this useful. Thank you for the advice. ?

It's been like this for god knows how many years, unfortunatly this post will not make a difference. It's the way the people are, rather lazy and ask others to help instead of searching themselves for the answers.

Maybe do newer users a favor and link /allhelp.php up there, so they don't have to go into their private messages.

Some people find that too hard.

Ugh... It is not only this section, RAT section same problem, same questions and threads posted everyday. Everyone believes their question is so unique that no one could have ever asked it before.

YayHar - May 24, 2017, 3:43 pm

Threads exactly like this have been made before.

I hate to say it, but people just don't care.

rip

Going to pop this back up to the top, section really needs a good explanation of how to ask good questions.

Seriously, enough of the "i ned fecbuk heck plz i think my girlfreend is cheeting" posts.

Riight!? I can't stand it when people come to me asking me for answers to questions that can easily be found on google.

My opinion, if you cant even attempt to figure it out on your own/read up learn about it...

You should add a section that outlines the proper posting etiquette on HF. The Help Docs are not the clearest on that.

Something about grave digging, proper replies, etc.

Hopefully, new users see this before posting.

Common sense isn't a flower that grows in every garden. sadly. The amount of people who don't think this through naturally is unreal so maybe this will help. That's if they have the common sense to read.
