This issue has been resolved, do what you want with this thread.

Malevolent - May 23, 2017, 3:12 pm

This looks like a pretty legitimate report from what I can tell.
Good luck OP.

The second I saw their thread I instantly closed it for this sort of reason.

Donald Trump Jr. - May 23, 2017, 3:13 pm

Their completely bullshitting. I knew it was a scam this whole time.

I asked if we can use a MM they said half upfront, first bad sign I decided not to purchase.

Then I looked at the initial thread and they said they sent out phones and people received them but there are no vouches anywhere, sketch as fuck.

These people are scamming for sure.

Zenomhunter - May 23, 2017, 3:27 pm

He made a typo, he should pay for his mistake in my opinion, simple human errors like that can cost you.

Korvo - May 23, 2017, 3:30 pm

You never tried to confirm anything with me on site, which on the thread it CLEARLY says PM before dealing, as the person who was putting the thread together made their own skype, didn't give out the credentials and when we caught it, we made our own skype. All of our other customers have dealt with us on site, gotten tracking numbers and have their devices on the way. You never bothered to contact me on here at all. You did that whole deal off site man.

We didn't scam anyone, someone else who was getting the thread made for me put their skype in there and didn't give me the info to the skype. HF windows can confirm that I never supplied the skype info, once I realized that I couldn't get on the skype I had the thread design fixed right away. And as I told Ornage, and as it says on the thread, PM me before dealing off-site. We have sold 3 other devices, all have been done On-site and shipped out with tracking numbers and the customers will be getting them soon. No reason to scam at all. And I didn't say I wouldn't use a middle man, I said that with a product like this I prefer not to because if you get the device, break it, tamper with it or anything and then send it back saying it was messed up, I am out that money. I even provided you another way which was half and half, as another one of my customers has done.

And FYI the phones we sent were to canada, when shipping from the US, it has to go through customs, when it's all said and done it takes about a week.

I was under the impression that the thread design was yours else why would it even be there in the first place? Your partner has already admitted to being involved with multiple shady users that have also screwed with you.

You posted the thread design without fully reviewing the information that was given. I contacted the skype user that was EMBEDDED on your thread design, I did was not dealing with someone with a similar name. The skype that I contacted was the one that I was supplied in YOUR thread design.

This. I tried telling them this but they will not do this unfortunately which is very disgusting. Not even 50%, they put the blame entirely on me and their only argue is 'because you didn't verify' yet the information supplied was on their own thread. Again this would be a different case if I was dealing with someone of a similar name but I was not.

Scamming for sure??

That would be conjecture. You have no proof. and due diligence hasn't been done for you to speculate and say that we have done anything or involved in the scam.

Who have we said have received phones from us already?? When people do receive their phones, there will be vouches. We can't get vouches from deals that are not completed yet.

So I don't understand this whole "people have received phones already but no vouches" claim.

Anyone who deals with Skype and high scam activity forums knows to CONFIRM publicly on the thread that you are talking to them on Skype.

Like a call and response authentication. You PM or post on thread and tell the person to type a work or phrase on Skype to confirm they are the same people in the forum and on Skype.

We have already said, there was a skype ID listed that we had no control over. When it was found to be so, we immediately changed the ID to the skype we created.

We didn't even intend to do off-sites deals through skype, it was really intended for ease of messaging about questions, updates on tracking, etc.

dreams - May 23, 2017, 3:55 pm

Vouching for them, I am currently doing a deal with him, a half-half deal which he allowed me to do due to the lack of trust at first. I am one of the testers for Canada, and I have trust in Matrx that he did NOT do this on purpose. I got a tracking number soon after I have paid and it is in the process of getting in my hands right now. I vetted Matrx and currently trusting him for the phone arrive so I can pay the other half. From what I see his honesty for the past few weeks that I have been talking to him on Skype is unparalleled, and commits to what he talks about. They have sold to me, and I DO have proof that phone is being shipped to me currently... just the waiting game. He has never done anything scummy / tried to scam me, he has helped me a lot on this topic of 'infinity phones'. I do not believe matrx would not vouch for Robot and do a co-sales thread if he did not feel he was honest also.

I agree that Skype and hf is a bad combination, however, when you create a thread design with a totally different skype name that you do not have control over and have intention on selling a product you fully acknowledge that whom ever controls that Skype is trusted and responsible. What you did was an error and you need to pay up because it is a very costly error.

That sounds very sketchy and purely ignorant on your behalf.

The skype was only changed sometime after I was scammed so noone can prove your intention if you were selectively scamming. Nonetheless you created and posted a thread with a Skype embedded onto your thread that was completely bogus..

You need to own up to your mistake, the customer does not deserve to be at fault because of your error.

Thats great however you missed the point, the supplied skype information that was embedded onto the thread design was completely bogus. I have even asked for some type of a compensation prior to creating a scam report because he seemed genuine yet he doesn't even want to compensate me for his own errors.

So if you're saying the person who designed the thread put that skype there, then you're pretty much saying he's the one who scammed Orang if you never had access to it and he clearly spoke to someone.. so who designed the thread?

Also realistically, you're at fault for supplying an incorrect contact. I can see why anyone and everyone should confirm on site before doing any deal but come on dude... Quality control is key and you 'trying to get your thread up fast' just cost someone a decent amount of change. You're responsible for that as it was your error.

No, not the person who designed the thread. I reached to a guy named algorithm that I play runescape with, he told me that he would make a thread design, he then contacted HF Windows, and windows made the thread design for me. But algorithm provided him with the skype and email that was on the thread, which once I found out I asked him for the info for the skype, because I noticed it was on the thread, I didn't hear back from him and I made my own skype and had the thread fixed. As soon as I found out I fixed the thread right away. I admit fault for not paying close attention as I was wanting to get the sales thread up quickly. However I clearly state to PM me before dealing, he dealt off site and didn't pm me. He should of contacted me just as every other customer has.

Lmao, this is fucking bullshit. It is YOUR responsibility in order to investigate and provide proper and significant information for your own customers. You are liable for his loss, this is absolutely stupid, where did you claim to PM you before dealing? You linked YOUR skype to the thread design, and it is your fault and claimed responsibility in order to resolve this. This is a valid dispute. They posted their information for the sale - they're claiming they didn't even take the time to bother checking their thread before posting, and it seems like there is at least 3 people involved in this product, I fail to understand how it could take so long for 3 people to realize that they had the wrong information up. How do you not check a thread design before you post it?

The thread was created by yourself and Robot, prior to submitting a thread you should check and make sure all of the information is real, working and truthful.

If you're going to be selling a device for $350+ the least you can do is make sure your thread is up to date with accurate information my man. You made an error and you need to man up and pay me.

When you disagree, that means it's coming from a place of your opinion.

Lets not confuse things. Its speculation, no one has a smoking gun with Robot nor my fingerprints on it. Or even possible pictures of us visiting the gun shop.

(Metaphorical...don't take as literal)

That is because we were not involved in the scam. It is unfortunate the situation, but that does not cast more weight into the thoughts that we intentionally did anything that would cause the OP to be scammed. Why would we just sabotage a newly budding thread, you all know how hard it is to earn trust on here.

You will not find anyone else opening up a scam report thread saying we scammed them unless they are still talking the scammer before the thread was updated and corrected.

This is becoming more of a scam with more evidence that keeps rising especially with having the thread changed so recently in correlation to the time I was scammed myself.

All of our other customers have dealt with us on site, gotten tracking numbers and have their devices on the way. You never bothered to contact me on here at all. You did that whole deal off site man.

We didn't scam anyone, someone else who was getting the thread made for me put their skype in there and didn't give me the info to the skype. HF windows can confirm that I never supplied the skype info, once I realized that I couldn't get on the skype I had the thread design fixed right away. And as I told Ornage, and as it says on the thread, PM me before dealing off-site. We have sold 3 other devices, all have been done On-site and shipped out with tracking numbers and the customers will be getting them soon. No reason to scam at all. And I didn't say I wouldn't use a middle man, I said that with a product like this I prefer not to because if you get the device, break it, tamper with it or anything and then send it back saying it was messed up, I am out that money. I even provided you another way which was half and half, as another one of my customers has done.

And FYI the phones we sent were to canada, when shipping from the US, it has to go through customs, when it's all said and done it takes about a week.

YOU supplied the contact information that was for others to contact supposedly YOU at. It doesn't matter if he didn't confirm it was you over PM if he was fucking talking to a skype that you directly advertised yourself, and made sure the ID was correct.

No. The skype they gave the person who made the thread design was supplied by Robot. As the person who made the design has already said in this thread.

So OP was scammed by a skype directly supplied by Robot, which was then dismissed and lied about in Robot's thread, where he claims it is a random skype that he dealt with.

This seems to be the case now as more new evidence comes up unfortunately, they said they had no involvement with the original skype yet Windows (original thread design creator) has suggested that Robot did own the original skype which I got scammed with.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

I was one of Robot's partners, he originally had me making the thread design, but I ran into issues with getting GIMP due to a shitty connection and my apt-get being absolutely fucked.

So, I asked my friend, Windows RT, to make the thread design and I gave him all the information to enter into the thread design.

I can confirm that the original Skype, live:infinityphone_1, was and is real. Especially considering that I personally created the Skype account, as well as the email, infinityphone@protonmail.com, which I had given the login details to Robot through texting one of his burners.

Once I sent him the login details for both the Skype and the email, I pretty much just sat back and went about doing my normal things.

I haven't been on my computer for a few days, and once I got word of this from Windows RT, I immediately checked the ProtonMail account, to which the password had been changed, as well as the Skype account.

I wish I had more to help you guys out with, but most of our communications were through Snapchat, which poses an obvious issue. But, here is what I do have.

The evidence is clear as day my man, he plotted the entire thing and got caught up in his lie. His thread designers have both stated that the original skype was operated by Robot. In the skype logs he says he was not involved in anyway with that skype, in no way was he associated to it. This was not a mistake from the start, he knew what he was doing and had full intention to scam anyone that simply messaged that provided skype on the thread design without sending a pm.

Yeah the entire situation is very unfortunate and annoying. Robot told me they were only 'considering' not promising a 3g device. The value is much less than what I initially lost but I would rather take something honestly, though I do not think it's fair that I should be at fault for someones dumb 'mistake' as Robot likes to put it especially when there is evidence that shows Robot was indeed associated with the bogus Skype (live:infinityphones_1).

Ask dreams UID: 3082769

Ask Gloryallowed UID: 3192905

Both bought devices, dealt with me on here and then I referred them to my partner as I have always done when anyone is interested in a device. Dreams got his device a few days ago, and glory's is on the way and he has a tracking number. I wouldn't mess up my sales by trying to rip a person off. I've done numerous other deals on here and I don't do bad business. And as I said HF Windows can vouch I didn't supply the skype info for the thread, by the time I got the details and attempted to log on, I wasn't able to and then went and PM'd windows to fix the design for me.

Obviously nobody ever makes mistakes right? I have a life outside of HF, so I can't attend to it 24/7. Before shit got out of hand, I offered OP a 3g device for compensation, which is still $350, and he told me that wasn't good enough. Even though this whole deal was done off-site, I still tried to resolve the matter, but he blew things up..Kept harassing me and my partner and took things way out of line & then decides to say that a 3g device is fine for him, after I had already offered it to compensate him for his loss, even though it was done off site and I was never contacted about it. I tried to do the right then and compensate, but at the time I offered he slapped my hand away and said no.

That is correct. I asked Chargeback to make me a thread, he then contacted Windows to make it, and he provided Windows the skype and email to put on the thread. It was totally my fault for not looking at the thread carefully, I was in a rush..As I've said several times I own up to that.

In no way is Windows a part of infinity phone, chargeback wasn't a partner either..He is someone I reached out to because I had no idea how to make a good thread design.

And it's funny that whenever I start gathering proof that it was all a mistake, people love to assume the worst. Go figure.

You are completely liable, idiot. You put the contact information visible publicly on your own sales thread and left it up for days. It doesn't matter if chargeback conned you, you as an effect of that had Orang swindled for the money; literally 100% your fault.

This report is 100% valid and you just won't own up to your mistakes, you expect Orang to take a loss when this situation was 100% caused by you, literally your actions directly caused someone to get scammed hundreds through your sales thread. You're basically saying 'oh he slapped my hand away when I offered him something arguably worth much less than what I caused him to get scammed for'

Clearly you are too fucking broke/retarded to own up to your mistakes and pay him back in full and Hes not. Hes just not going to do shit about it. Which I don't blame him. There isn't any reason to refund this guy anymore since his account is pretty much trashed. Chargeback has already admitted to scamming OP but it wasn't ever added to the OP itself. So at this point, all I see is everyone attacking Robot but not considering the other player that has actually started all of this bullshit.

From what I can understand, this is the timeline of events.

1. Chargeback created the skype and email on Protonmail. As far as I am aware this was to help save some time for Robot.
2. Chargeback was told to send the contact info to HF Windows and have him add it to the thread.
3. Robot published the thread after chargeback said it was good.
4. Chargeback accessed the skype and scammed OP since he did have the details.
5. After Robot realized the skype info wasn't working, he tried to get access too it. Eventually just changing the thread.
6. He was then fully aware that someone had accessed the skype and scammed with it.
7. Robot tried to figure out who.

8. The guy that does the phones and ships them said one of the partners was the one that scammed with the skype (I assume Chargeback).
9. Robot tries to damage control while he works out what the fuck to do.
10. Robot pretty much takes it in the ass because of this dispute.
11. Chargeback tries to pin more shit on Robot.
12. Robot defends himself as much as possible. Still takes it in the ass.
13. Chargeback admits to scamming.
14. Robot is just done. Pretty much not planning on doing shit from this point. He is tired of the harassment he has been getting. Tired of trying to figure shit out. He is done. Chargebacks Rep

Robots Rep

I guess people believe that even if a scammer admits to scamming, they are fine since they did it under someone else's name and not their own. Even after they make a post admitting the shit.

EDIT: Orang, I do appreciate you neg repping Chargeback and not just Robot. I would exclude you from the rep part of this. But seriously, the shit reps that Robot has gotten vs Chargeback is ridiculous.

So at this point, all I see is everyone attacking Robot but not considering the other player that has actually started all of this bullshit.

From what I can understand, this is the timeline of events.

1. Chargeback created the skype and email on Protonmail. As far as I am aware this was to help save some time for Robot.
2. Chargeback was told to send the contact info to HF Windows and have him add it to the thread.
3. Robot published the thread after chargeback said it was good.
4. Chargeback accessed the skype and scammed OP since he did have the details.
5. After Robot realized the skype info wasn't working, he tried to get access too it. Eventually just changing the thread.
6. He was then fully aware that someone had accessed the skype and scammed with it.
7. Robot tried to figure out who.
8. The guy that does the phones and ships them said one of the partners was the one that scammed with the skype (I assume Chargeback).
9. Robot tries to damage control while he works out what the fuck to do.
10. Robot pretty much takes it in the ass because of this dispute.
11. Chargeback tries to pin more shit on Robot.
12. Robot defends himself as much as possible. Still takes it in the ass.
13. Chargeback admits to scamming.

You are like 99% accurate on this, except that chargeback wasn't ever a partner. He was a friend that I hit up and asked to make the thread design for me, he couldn't so he reached out to windows for me, and then provided windows with the skype and email for the thread.

It was Robots ignorance that caused everything, he has already admitted to making the mistake of not checking his own sales thread. He is still liable for what happened. He supplied the rogue skype on the thread and now needs to take responsibility for it. It honestly takes a minute to review your own sales thread plus he left it up for 4 days before even realizing.

At this point his only excuse is "I was busy" or "You ruined my sales" therefore you're not getting anything

All these fake "Business Men" on Hackforums makes me sick I wish I could knock both these fools right the fuck out after reading that Skype conversation. I feel sick and I feel the pain you had to deal with because of these 2 fucking idiots.

The fact that these dumb fucks won't take the loss on these $450 phones and send you a free one is fucking retarded. I love how he says I'll be out $450 if I give you a phone, bro what's your profit on these phones then nothing you're just buying them for $450 and selling for $450 no no way suck a fucking dick give the fucking kid the god damn phone and make that $450 from the profit on the next ones you sell

Like I'm genuinely mad as fuck for you right now, if they're going to not read over their own sales thread with their own information posted and allow for something like this too happen it is 100% their fault.

Any fucking decent local, small, enterprise business knows that something like this would be their fault these fucking faggots need to get banned, even the way that guy wastalking on skype just sounds like he straight up robbed your $450 that's why i don't deal with these fucking idiots on this site.

Sorry for your loss and I hope you recover the money and I hope you don't deal with the idiots that run this marketplace.

Just post once on his sales. Theres no reason to sales trash. Each page, just post a comment and a link to your deal dispute. Don't say anything else to anyone else.

As for my buddy Glory, he got his phone but it didn't work because the coverage for sprint in canada is forced 1x unless you actually order international data.

Sales trash? The user in question has an active scam report open which he is choosing to ignore alongside posts I create on his sales thread, I sent $450 to a skype that was provided by OP himself in the thread design and is unwilling to make up his own mistake.

Arguing with him on his sales thread isn't going to help the situation. I'm not saying I agree with what happened but I am pointing out that you could be considered sales trashing if you keep arguing with him on his sales thread. I tend to disagree with you I AM POSITIVE that they scammed him and just took advantage of him simply not confirming on HF

Gibbs do you not find it kind of weird that just 4 days later the thread design changed FOR 4 DAYS that Skype was there

Op potentially saved me 450$ I would never want to buy from someone that takes advantage of someone simply because they didn't confirm on hf

What they are doing is super scammy and op in my opinion should continue posting so users that are interested in buying atleast can see this dispute

I came across this thread, and I cannot believe OP is not taking fault for something that he should have noticed.

Picture it like this.

If a company has a faulty product (say the galaxy note 7?) and they don't notice it until after something goes wrong (the phone exploding), isn't the company at fault for this? Why should the company say "Oh why should I be at fault because you didn't make that the phone was 100% safe." In this case samsung took a loss of $3.1 billion. They didn't tell the 2.5 million people that bought the phone that it was their fault.

In this instance, the OP didn't notice there was something wrong with his thread, and someone was scammed for $450. (or so he claims.), but he says that its not his fault, and he shouldn't be out $450. HAHAAAAHA I CANNOT BELIEVE THIS.

I cannot phantom why OP won't refund you in this case. It's 100% OPs fault. Fuck him trying to say "should've pm'd me on HF first", he's fucking retarded for not taking two seconds to make sure everything on his thread design was 100%. Just wanted to put in my word because I can't believe he won't just accept that he's a fucking retard, and pay you the $450 he owes you.

Right, he doesn't feel liable for what happened yet it was his own sales thread. This was an error that costed me $450 and he doesn't feel at fault in anyway. OP himself has already stated I would not be receiving anything (no kind of compensation) to make matters worse and he still continues his sales thread as if this doesn't exist. Honestly disgusting behavior.

This is fucked up beyond fucked up. I got scammed of exactly the same amount before and I was so tilted and angry, I understand how you feel. If robot fucked up, he should pay up. But of course, he does not want to - why would he want to fork out $450... or anything for that matter... for whatever reason? He clearly does not give a fuck, and will not pay $450 for a mistake because he did not lose money and he will not want to lose money now. he is probably thinking of how many phones he needs to sell to make $450, and after some consideration he decides it's not worth it.

Bad ethics.

Best to hope to get him to compensate you... but sorry OP I think he will not be giving a shit

I know because I had to give refunds before for my business, I know the feeling. Some cuck kid wanted a refund because I had unexpected delays and couldn't deliver the product on time, what an impatient cuck. I refunded him $75. Even though I didn't lose money technically, it still felt that I lost money. I had a good mind to tell him to fuck off and wait for his product, but I didn't, because I'm a good person. But it still felt that I lost money.

No way robot will fork out $450 though. But that is the price of his reputation I guess. How many phone sales will he lose because of this? Will it justify a short term loss of a full $450? Who knows.

Riggs - June 21, 2017, 8:51 pm

If a customer accrues damages as a direct result of a seller making a mistake, seller intent shouldn't even be factored into the consideration of a remedy.

Lack of oversight in the representation of the service makes responsibility for potential damages fall on the seller, not the customer.

Idiots.

(Jun 22, 2017 12:34 AM)Yani Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Eh let me first ask some questions; You got a refund right? How much was it? How was it handled?

Keep in mind that the LG Volt and HTC Desire go for less than $100.

Glory and I were discussing whether or not it was worth the risk to get the device. Eventually, he decided to go ahead and get the phone. Upon receiving it, he discovered the data didn't work on the phone. That was due to the Sprint network not providing 3G/4G without an international data plan. Glory lives in Canada. Original payment was being done half and half. So half up front to get the device then another half afterwards if the data/device worked as advertised.

The data did work at 1x which Sprint allowed internationally. Not for the 4G which he purchased. He is sending the phone back and getting a refund the last I checked. He's not online at the moment but I'll provide any extra information I can tomorrow.

(Jun 22, 2017 12:49 AM)Yani Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) But the phone doesn't have that?

It had unlimited 1x data. The issue with the 4G data was because he is located in Canada where you must purchase an additional 3G/4G data plan. That's why Robot isn't selling to anyone in Canada anymore.

GloryToBe - June 22, 2017, 1:16 am

Yes I did get a refund for the phone of $235 which we agreed upon doing half and half in the beginning. The reason why it costs so much is because you do not need to pay a monthly fee and have unlimited data.

I'm not saying this is a grand scam scheme either. I just have a really bad feeling about Robot and how he handles everything.

It's really weird that his phones cost +-$400, while the original phones cost $100. Now ofcourse this is business, but that means for every phone Robot sells, he can in theory give away 3 other ones, without it costing him.

If you read his sales thread a little, the "exploit" is discussed and it's some sort of modified DDR method. Nothing wrong with that. But it implies Robot exploits the phones himself.

Now how could this kind of profit, not allow for multiple refunds from a single sale?

The biggest issue with the phone, is it doesn't necessarily cost just $100. Robot didn't tell me specifically what the exploit is but I have an idea of what it is. Long story short, there are a very limited number of specific devices he has to purchase in order to actually do the exploit. Also, Robot stated before that the money wasn't going to him but to his partner.
