You can see I sent 1k.

Anyway-

So we made a deal for me to buy 1k worth of SMTPs from this guy.

He sends me like 50 smtps (not the agreed amount, and 90% of them not working).

I confront him about it, and he says this.

Anyway, been waiting for him to deliver since May 24 - nothing at all.

Looks legit to me. Hopefully this gets resolved. He might just need some time to reply but who knows.

Hope it gets solved, if not, sorry for your loss OP. Make sure always use MM, even more with such high amounts.

Hope this gets resolved, are 200 SMTP accounts really worth 1k?!?!?

immortal1 - May 29, 2017, 3:32 pm

We've done smaller transactions before without any issue which is why I trusted him. Maybe his server did get suspended, and he lost all of his smtps... but thats something he should have told me before I sent him the money. I'm hoping he is trying to resolve the issue, but its been 5 days now, and still no updates.

If they hit inbox - and are not free mails.

(no hotmail, aol, gmail, etc etc)

Email marketing is so incredibly profitable, so it makes sense to use them instead of selling them.

With 200 inbox smtps, i could probally make 10k~

Interesting. I'll keep that in mind. I'm sure a got an old iStealer log kicking about. Will hunt through ?

Damn thats a lot of money. Hope this gets resolved soon.

Well, let's hope this is just a miscommunication problem other than anything. I hope the seller comes through and delivers because 1K is not an easy amount to lose. Next time, use a MM even if you trust the seller when it comes to big amounts of money.

It seems like he didn't intentionally plan on fucking me over. He's working to help resolve the issue. I'll keep you all updated.

immortal1 - June 19, 2017, 8:56 am

Just so everyone knows... This issue was never resolved.

Danny Khalifa - June 19, 2017, 8:57 am

Sucks to see this.

I hope this will be resolved, but if not.. I am very sorry.

I hope you'll make your money back, and remember, there's a karma in this life.
