First off this shouldn't be in health wise lol.

Screenshots might help figure it out.

This happened to me as well I purchase 1 ETH at $205 yesterday and It says 10 days remaining but there is still no attempted charge to my account. The days did however go down so I guess waiting will just be the best option.

This usually happens when you first setup your account.

It should sort itself out though.

I've experienced a lot of fuckery whenever I've tried to make a payment from any card without 3D secure authentication.

Yea I just verified my ID so I expected there would be a wait time on the first few purchases not a big deal, you should be fine OP just wait a little while as long as the transaction shows up on your coinbase.
