

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Visual Studio Browser Window Not Clicking And Inputting

MMCraftin - May 31, 2017, 8:50 pm

Can Someone Help Me Fix This Code

The Webpage The I Am Trying To Do This On Is The Google Sign In Page

My Code:

```
WebBrowser1.Navigate("google link but hackforums wouldn't let me put here")
Try
    Dim str() As String = Split(ListBox1.SelectedItem.ToString(), ":")
    WebBrowser1.Document.GetElementById("Email").SetAttribute("value", str(0))
    WebBrowser1.Document.GetElementById("Passwd").SetAttribute("value", str(1))
    WebBrowser1.Navigate("javascript:document.forms[1].submit();void(0);")
    ListView3.Items.Add(TimeOfDay & " >> " & "Signing in with " & str(0))
    ListView3.Items.Add("Current User >> " + str(0))
Catch ex As Exception
End Try
End Sub
```

The Email Sometimes Doesn't Get Put In And Clicking Of Submit Doesn't Work Entirely. If I Put In Email Manually And Click Next Password Goes In But Once Again Submit Doesn't Work

log dot zip - May 31, 2017, 8:55 pm

1. You're almost 100% certainly automating this in a very hacky fashion. The only excuse for what you're doing is dealing with highly JS-reliant pages where a browser would save you a lot of time.
2. Are you ensuring that the document has loaded?
3. You're giving us no context as to what this site is. You can't just say your code doesn't work and ask us to fix it for you without atleast supplying the bare minimum details.

Kink - May 31, 2017, 9:07 pm

If the issue is Rabite's first point(JS-heavy site), you should attempt to set focus to the webbrowser before setting the attribute values (try both documentcompleted and before your above code), my guess is it's unfocused and you're setting the values without focus and the site's script is unaware of it even happening.

MMCraftin - June 1, 2017, 5:19 am

Kink I Tried What You Said But It Stays On Email Page And Doesn't Go To Password Still

Coven Do You Have Any Suggestions Besides geckofx Because It Is For C# When I Am Coding In Visual Studio Code

Barret - June 1, 2017, 4:04 pm

Where the fk is my reply??? O_O i sworn i posted one.