Every designer is tired of this HF contest idea. Launch a contest for a month criticizing every submission and just close it. 95% of these contests are fake and just time wasting. That's why no one is interested in them.

There should be a rule that states if you start a contest it must have a winner and a deadline, otherwise, the contest is considered fake. ?

That's just from my view and experience.

Not sure what you are talking about, if you have a contest and don't pay anyone it is considered fake. Also I am sure that has yet to happen with an official userbar contest for a new group. After a while the owner or leaders always pick something.

The contest took months until devnet chooses to sell the group without choosing a winner.

If any designer is reading this, I have an idea that 'Fox will most likely love. It is a pretty creative user bar, I just don't have the skill to make it. PM me. I'd like a cut of the funds, though, if we win. Being a photographer, access to the group would be nice too :)

EDIT:I will note that I obviously won't guarantee a win from the design; although, I am pretty confident.

Sorry if I am wrong but basically you're asking for a designer to do a userbar for a group, just tell them the general idea, get a spot in the group, and get a cut of the winnings?

No. I am giving them the idea of the user bar. I have an idea that is perfect for the group and isn't some retarded futuristic theme that everyone seems to try for every group now. Also, yeah, a cut of the winnings makes sense. Had I not given them the idea step by step, they wouldn't have won in the first place. They aren't even thinking creatively, they're literally putting my words and thoughts into effect. If you don't think a cut makes sense, you have no idea how to conduct business.

Also, a spot into the group isn't up to me or them. I'm not retarded.

Any tips or extra ideas to throw out?

And fair enough, it's just always been sort of my assumption anyways that when the OP doesn't comment on your design it means they don't have anything to say about it which is good and bad, but usually towards bad if they reply to others (granted you didn't reply to others so no actual basis here for my assumption)

Simple and elegant is nice, however the only thing is I find flawed is that its a bit too simplistic and sort of looks like cloud9's logo in the middle. I do love the color scheme you chose for the first one as well.

Keep in mind I won't choose based off what I like only, if the hf community likes it you will most likely win unless I absolutely hate your submission.

I want to try this idea but at the same time, I feel like that's too .. like obvious of an idea I guess? Idk. Because it's an art/media group part of me wants to encompass the idea of "art" in the userbar by like making the viewer interpret how they want .. if that makes sense. Idk, I just want to make it more complicated than it needs to be because art.

I like this userbar, but this is geared towards music, we would like to it have it represent all of the topics that the group covers or just a more general UB.

I think it looks great as a banner, but the user bar seems very lacking once it got compressed..

Thanks brother. Compressing's not something i'm use to using free canvas. Working on a different version for the userbars size. Will also try animating it later on, if you guys are interested.

No animation will be needed as it is not allowed.
