You are gonna earn a lot of money regardless of which you choose, I would personally go with ETH thought as I think percentage wise its going to increase more.

I personally believe that ETH has much more potential and staying power than BTC so I'd say to hold it in ETH. Make sure to do your own research though.

The market sentiment over ETH is much better than BTC at the moment(as well as many other coins), however BTC is seen more as "digital gold" than anything else due to fixed supply. I would personally chose ETH but be careful of volatility. Why not invest in both and diversify?

Both will rise imo. But it is entirely your decision.

I would personally go with eth.

Honestly it's your call, I can't really sit here and pick for you. Personally I think you should hold both of the coins at an even amount. I'm currently holding both of these coins will no plans on touching them for a long term investment.

For sure would go with Ether mainly because Ether has many assets built using it and Ether's true potential could even be to pass bitcoin in the longrun, that will obviously take time as BTC has been around for so long that there is just much more volume and twice the market cap

I have $5k in strat right now, was thinking of putting more

?now - June 6, 2017, 11:56 am

I would go with ETH. I strongly believe it will overcome btc in the future
