

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: iOS 11 Developer Beta

CleverUSB - June 6, 2017, 7:20 pm

Hello Hack Forums,

As most people should know by now WWDC was yesterday and with that comes a new round of developer betas. Lucky for you if you want the beta without the expensive developer account I have you covered.

- 1) Go to this link in Safari on a iOS device
- 2) Click allow and follow the instructions on your screen
- 3) After reboot go into General > Software Update and Install iOS 11 like any other update

It's extremely simple and free, enjoy!

?,

CleverUSB

Retrotoxic - June 6, 2017, 8:35 pm

I would do this if only my phone wasn't jailbroken :(anyways thanks for the share!

?lex - June 7, 2017, 2:33 am

Just a friendly warning, you can use me to register your UDID for the following reason.

As Apple warns, installing beta software on your device without registration "could put your device in an unusable state and necessitate an out of warranty repair." Registering your device's UDID ensures you can safely and legitimately activate iOS betas intended for developers.

champagnpapi - June 7, 2017, 2:34 am

Don't do it guys, i mean it's fu*ing cool, good looking and so but it's really buggy i wish i hadn't do it, however i'm just gonna have to wait now. Cool new features btw.

CleverUSB - June 7, 2017, 3:04 am

(Jun 7, 2017 02:33 AM)?lex Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just a friendly warning, you can use me to register your UDID for the following reason.

As Apple warns, installing beta software on your device without registration "could put your device in an unusable state and necessitate an out of warranty repair." Registering your device's UDID ensures you can safely and legitimately activate iOS betas intended for developers. Im sorry but thats not totally true.

?lex - June 7, 2017, 3:18 am

(Jun 7, 2017 03:04 AM)CleverUSB Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Im sorry but thats not totally true. Suit yourself. I'd rather be safe than sorry.

GrandpaSherman - June 7, 2017, 3:28 am

(Jun 7, 2017 03:18 AM)?lex Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Suit yourself. I'd rather be safe than sorry. No I think you'd rather get money

Lucifer Morningstar - June 7, 2017, 3:30 am

Ugh... It lags even more than the 10.3.1 on my iPhone 7+.
Oh well I guess there's no going back ?

GrandpaSherman - June 7, 2017, 3:31 am

I didn't even see any features that are worth upgrading for.

champagnpapi - June 7, 2017, 3:32 am

(Jun 7, 2017 03:31 AM)GrandpaSherman Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I didn't even see any features that are worth upgrading for.

It is worth,a lot of features that were hard to use are now simplier?

Lucifer Morningstar - June 7, 2017, 3:34 am

(Jun 7, 2017 03:31 AM)GrandpaSherman Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I didn't even see any features that are worth upgrading for.

Meh I just wanted to see if they added an on/off switch for cellular data. And a black mode which doesn't even work like how it should.

CleverUSB - June 7, 2017, 5:46 am

(Jun 7, 2017 03:30 AM)Lucifer Morningstar Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ugh... It lags even more than the 10.3.1 on my iPhone 7+.

Oh well I guess there's no going back ?

You can downgrade, DM me if you want to know how.

Lucifer Morningstar - June 7, 2017, 5:54 am

(Jun 7, 2017 05:46 AM)CleverUSB Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You can downgrade, DM me if you want to know how.

There are a few tutorials already online. I guess I'll just wait and see if it gets better in the next few updates.

If it doesn't I'll downgrade.

?JJ - June 7, 2017, 7:29 am

I've been using iOS 11 for two days now, just downgraded to 10.3.2 an hour ago.

Don't get me wrong, it is an huge update but it has a lot of bugs and lags like shit.

Don't upgrade unless you know what you're doing, you'll not lose your warranty but the lag it's a pain in tha ass.