Omniscient - June 7, 2017, 11:36 am

I just realized that I use Preev very often. But it doesn't have ETH calculator. Why hasn't the owner of the site updated it to include at least the top 10 cryptos?

The site is Alexa 7k which means it gets a ton of visitors. There are zero ads and I don't even see a donation address.

I'd love to buy that site and monetize it.

Anyways....preev sucks but I just keep using it.

Renestey - June 7, 2017, 11:37 am

Yeah I find myself using it the most aswell, too much of a hassle to write coinmarketcap each time and go through all the menus for the calculator. Buy it mate

Aqua_fina - June 7, 2017, 11:37 am

Preev sucks, but not a bad site when I'm lazy to use calculator. Its good for knowing USD value for fractions of bitcoin

Having calculator pinned in taskbar should take the habit away

Zexo - June 7, 2017, 11:41 am

But the real question is why don't WE have top 10 crypto calculator on hf xd.

Idk I used preev a little but I hardly deal with cryptos.

Aficionado - June 7, 2017, 11:43 am

I use preev often. I actually have a bad habit of taking the price I get in USD and manually convert it into CAD on Google..

If someone writes up the javascript (ajax) I'll add it. I suck at JS.

I probably could lift the Preev code though.

You just gotta post that you want a JS to add it here and you'll get it in matter of seconds ?

I couldn't agree with you anymore.

Try reaching out to the owner of the website? Maybe he'll sell it to you.

That site is a goldmine for adsense or other PPC.

I could probably write one as i currently going through JavaScript in my Computer Engineering degree currently. My final exam is soon over so i got much time writing one if needed ?

public void byeOmnierForToday()

for(int i = 0; i < signOut.length; i++){

It would be really cool to have a bunch of useful information at the top of the subforum , sort of like a sticky or just on top or underneath of that. Current prices and percentages, links to coin base or another, etc.

You need to get the data for all specific coins thats the hardest part

You obviously didn't check for a while then because it has been above 1k for about a solid year now. Most likely even more then that.

DenizZ - June 7, 2017, 1:00 pm

I have been using preev for years because it is very simple to use.

I haven't seen any changes on Preev, as if the owner just abondoned the site. Besides BTC & LTC they only have 2 coins that nobody uses. He should have added ETH, ZEC, Dash and XMR at least.

Couldn't agree more Preev sucks but I will continue using it anyway.

Grim - June 7, 2017, 1:05 pm

i use it almost every day as well just because... it's convenient, and i haven't found a good alternative i also wish they would add more exchange sites to the list.

mvmt - June 7, 2017, 1:09 pm

I really don't understand why the owner isn't monetizing it, makes absolutely no sense to me. Its not like its going to hurt anyone to place an ad or two on there

Industry - June 7, 2017, 1:14 pm

You should start your own ticker man, it wouldn't be too hard. People use preev because it's known, and is the only good converter available at the moment. If you make one with multiple coins and possibly even add other currencies in the comparison table, it would work quite well I think.

I will have to look more in to this though, but as of now it seems like a good idea.

Price was in the 600 range in Oct 2016, just 8 months ago. It's increased nearly 500% since then. A huge return for any investor.

And maybe I'll use one of my brandable domains to run my own preev like site.

I like being able to see the price of Bitcoin and mBTC but if ETH and other cryptos are becoming bigger, they need to be included in a big site like Preev.

Preevs got that advantage where its one syllable, not difficult to pronounce or confuse with another word which is why it is catchy

Most of the ones you've listed are fine since they are two syllable (except Squb which is 1?)

Most popular sites tend to use two syllables at most for names (Face-book, my-space, Twit-ter, Ya-hoo, Coin-base, Be-bo, Snap-chat, Dis-cord, U-ber, Pay-Pal)

Anyways I'd personally go for Snipta or Squb

It's likely the owners don't really care about ad revenue, more creating a site to better inform people (via averaging the prices of some of the exchangers of some crpytocurrencies) but about the ETH part, no idea, maybe they don't really feel the motivation or see the point

Facebook as Face (like a face directory) and it being a type of book. (Back in the days of the Yellow pages)

Snapchat as in "snap" chat. You take a snap and share it by chatting.

Reddit like "I read it"

Quote:I think people use it out of habit or something.

It's also quick loading and really fast and simple layout. Most other sites offer a dropdown for other cryptos but unfortunately they seem to list hundreds instead of just the important ones. I think that's their downfall. I don't like having to scroll through some giant dropdown to find ETH or ZEC.

– Please do keep it very simple, though. Perhaps have it like Preev, whereas you can choose what your default currency is, and introduce this with the cryptocurrency as well. Could you set a cookie-system up, so you can choose your primary coin to look at?

Example: If I rarely look at other coins than ETH, I would like to be able to set my primary coin as ETH, so whenever I went on the site, I would instantly be met with a: ETH > USD calculator. Keep it simple, just like Preev: <https://i.imgur.com/5pyyZ9N.png>

I think a better business model would be finding cryptocurrency exchanges/services that offer commission per referral and simply placing banners on the site. Monetizing a popular BTC related site shouldn't be 2 hard. Pop under ads generally give off a bad look IMO

Omni was(is) very clever especially when it came to Hackforums,
I haven't really said anything about it but big up to him for having a mind like he has, not everyone has and those who don't will not succeed in creating forums and related things.

Also, I don't think your passion before the fruit sentence is stupid.
If you don't have the passion you will try grab the fruit before it's mature, and that's bad.
Because if you don't have the passion you are to eager with no patience. So bite that sour apple.
