Thread: Bought virtual goods PayPal chargeback

avivctr - June 8, 2017, 6:31 pm

Hey, I bought in-game virtual items. But never received them. How I need to charge back to win the case with high %? It's from my CREDIT card not balance the payment..

Rezpy - June 8, 2017, 6:32 pm

Call your card issuer and tell them that you didn't get what you payed for.

@repzy to explain them it's virtual goods? It won't be an issue? Also my PayPal will get limited?

Virtual goods are not protected by buyer protection, neither by seller its a 50% of chances.

Just open the dispute anyway, PP usually takes the buyer's side.

No.

95% protection towards buyer & 5% protection towards seller

Get it right

So just to call cc company to have better chance?

Holdstrom - June 9, 2017, 8:35 am

Yeah literally call your Card Company and request they stop the funds from transferring as it was a scam.

JesusWoreGucciSlipOns - June 9, 2017, 12:13 pm

Pretty much do what the people above said, call your bank / card issuer and file a chargeback that way. 99% of the time you dont need proof and the money will come back into your account within a week.

Just open the PayPal claim, you have good chances to win it easily.

If it does fail , take contact to your cc provider and get a refund through it by force- don't do it for low amounts as your paypal gets limited
