Actually, you can advertise any forum as long as it doesn't not contain any hacking/leaking related forums. Out of all people, you should know that. ?

As I'll always say, you gotta really push on the posts, you need engaging discussions, not simple one reply threads such as "iPhone or Android?". Try think of topics that bring discussion, without being engaging, it's a waste to have a general discussion. Also don't be afraid to post, I rarely see forum owners these days post anymore, they just start a website and then watch their users do the work. It's like there's some hidden secret that owners shouldn't be making discussion.

Dotexe - June 11, 2017, 6:05 pm

I like the theme at all but i feel you miss something, the forum's like empty maybe you need to add more forums/category and so on test - June 11, 2017, 6:06 pm

Good luck growing your forum. I like the minimalistic theme a lot!

I am going to be trying my best to post and stay active within the community, but atm I am still trying to make some final touches to the forums so I may not be as active.

We are keeping it to fewer categories so the forum looks more active, we will add more categories as the community grows and the need arises.

my opinion:

Add custom features.

Feature suggestions:

Ability to recieve notifications when a user posts(similar to Twitter)

Bugtracker

Selfban - <https://github.com/dequeuees/MyBB-Self-Ban>

Promote more - Don't rely on HF for promotion, it doesn't work. Use reddit, facebook, social media, forums take money.

Coming. I will be purchasing many custom plugins soon, included in these plugins will be the Crates plugin that made SBB known.

I will get to work with the selfban

We have a Twitter, I just haven't started using it yet. We also rely on a few other advertisements on other forums, and word of mouth. We've purchased advertisements on sites before as well and will in the future.

Forum's theme and generally looks good. Thread design is somewhat blurry. I feel like the forum's administration might be just a tad bit childish with all the special effects in the name and judging by the way you post about others.

Best of luck, I might register as I see some people I recognize over there.

Dotexe - June 28, 2017, 11:37 am

Decided to see the forum once again and its cool, i like the theme still :D not annoying and easily browsing through the sections

I was just messing around and seeing what I could do with the username styler to decide what I should and shouldn't give users access to as far as that goes and what limitations should be set on the options.

An example of posting;

When I visit a forum, I tend to first look for a clean and custom theme. Some effort. I do find it in this forum but I also look for professional and a bit more mature administration. I like your personality, no doubt about it. It's just that when you are managing a forum, you should set an example and make people respect you. I'd honestly recommend making another account where they don't know who you are and post that kind of stuff, like a second account and keep the first one for professional matters.

As to the username styling etc. that's completely fine.

Ok? So we like to fuck around, your point? This isn't a "serious" community, it's a community to have fun in. If you're looking for something serious then you're looking in the wrong place.

Now, before you even try to take that and spin it around like I'm saying I don't take the community seriously, I do. I'm saying it's a laid back community, not supposed to be very HQ really, I have a forum for HQ shit.

I never said you didn't take it seriously, if this is a site just for whatever then alright. You'll do whatever. I apologize if my feedback offended you.

Good luck with your site.

I know, but some people may assume by that first statement that I do not take the community seriously. Your feedback did not offend me in any way, I was simply responding to your feedback.

Thank you.

I'm with OP on this one.

What's a forum without a little fun? Well, I guess they exist, but that's besides the point.

You want users to come back. Being a hard ass doesn't achieve that.

I'm all for fun, it's just that some kind of posting just gave me the impression that the board isn't mature and probably of very young age. (Which then makes me think that the forum won't last.)

So messing with a forum that is known for scamming users out of 100s of dollars is immature?
