

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Auto Refresh "User\(s\) browsing this thread"

Xogg - June 18, 2017, 10:14 pm

I'm not to sure if this would be possible but I think it would be nice if when someone clicks my thread it auto refreshes at the bottom of the page telling me there on it without me having to refresh the page.

Xogg - June 18, 2017, 10:15 pm

(Jun 18, 2017 10:15 PM)- Sam - Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) or you can just hit f5 if it bothers u that much True. But it wont hurt to add if its simple right?

THC - June 18, 2017, 10:16 pm

I think that omni at some point said that there would never be any auto-refreshing features built into HF.

Don't quote me on that, but I don't think this will be added bud :)

Xogg - June 18, 2017, 10:16 pm

(Jun 18, 2017 10:16 PM)M.D. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think that omni at some point said that there would never be any auto-refreshing features built into HF.

Don't quote me on that, but I don't think this will be added bud :)

Ah okay, just thought of it and said to myself wont hurt to try.

Mr. Robot - June 18, 2017, 10:21 pm

I mean, I would personally prefer a page that would list all the users who have browsed your thread - and possibly the last time they were on it.

Xogg - June 18, 2017, 10:24 pm

(Jun 18, 2017 10:21 PM)Mr. Robot Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I mean, I would personally prefer a page that would list all the users who have browsed your thread - and possibly the last time they were on it.

That sounds great as well.

Omniscient - June 19, 2017, 12:58 am

You can normally tell your browser to refresh the page at intervals. I suggest no less than 30 seconds.