Hello.

Can anyone show me a software that check applications on my systems and update them? I need something like <https://www.manageengine.com/products/desktop-central/patch-management.html>

Thank you.

Linux, for most, it is as easy as adding a cron task. But windows is another story because it is so great.... Though there are package managers available for Windows that will update much like Linux but the packages available are limited. Your options will vary on the specifics of the machines and how their networked. There are other methods available to domains for example.
