What effects do you get from diazepam, also called "valium" ?
What do you feel after one pill for example?

its fairly mild compared to xanax but 10-20mg will get your anxiety away and make you feel relaxed, its a nice feeling :)

Valium is clonazepam, like Himmayn said 10-20mg will make you relaxed as hell. Just be cautious on how many you eat them, they are addictive.

Relaxed and you probably fall a sleep don't take them or just when you have anxiety.

As far as I am aware it's just a weaker Xanax. You'll feel chilled out, drunkish depending on how many you take and alleviated anxiety symptoms. I don't really get a recreational high/buzz from them unless I take a ridiculous amount so I always keep a bottle for comedowns after weekends out etc.

Valiums affects people in different ways. Take people who actually have anxiety for example, these people will take high doses and not experience the same feeling as someone with no anxiety issues. This is because the drug is actually doing what its made for and lowering you're levels of anxiety instead of giving you that relaxed chilled feeling you might be expecting. Regardless Valium is a handy drug to keep on hand, as long you don't abuse it. It can come in handy after a big weekend, especially if you've have been on whatever stimulant drugs you might have chosen to take on that weekend and are having troubles sleeping. Compared to xanax its a lot lighter in the affects you feel but also lighter on the affects you feel the next day. Xanax will usually leave you feeling out of it all day, whereas valium is a lot lighter and usually doesnt affect you to much the next day.
