

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Was anyone else disappointed with Battlefield Hardline's campaign?

CanisMajoris - June 21, 2017, 7:56 pm

The following post will contain spoilers, more than likely the responses to this thread will as well. If you dont want the game spoiled for you, dont read.

Spoiler (Click to View) I know I am quite late to this party, but I recently purchased the Origin vault pass which lets you play their older games. I got battlefield hardline the other day and spent my off time over a few days completing the campaign. For the most part I liked the game. Some of the mechanics were fun but a bit unrealistic. The AI were clunky and did not respond to shooting and noise as I thought they should, however I was immersed into the story and was enjoying it. Ill spare the middle details as those who have played it already know them, but in the in you go after the main villain, Dawes alone. You finally get to his office, where there is a brief dialogue before you kill Dawes (No choice in the matter btw). There is then revealed a note on his desk where he says he knew you would kill him, and he has left his fortune and criminal empire to you. The game ends with a "What are you going to do" question which the player is not allowed to answer.

This had me really frustrated with the makers and EA. The story would have had so much more closure if the player could have picked and then had a short cut-scene for the ending they chose. I personally do not think Nick would have chosen to run the Empire given all he had gone through to stop Dawes, however the game made it seem like Nick had no others options, and likely took the Empire over. It made me feel like all the time I had put into the game was wasted, forced to make a choice to do something I had fought against the entire game. So overall it left a bad taste in my mouth for a game I enjoyed overall. Thanks EA for another disappointing game

| SASS | - June 22, 2017, 2:06 am

Well with Hardline campaign and MP, with Hardline game in general...

Antisocial - June 22, 2017, 11:44 am

When I first played the beta it was good but when I got the actual game, it wasn't all that great nothing compared to how it seemed it would be.

CanisMajoris - June 22, 2017, 12:13 pm

(Jun 22, 2017 11:44 AM)Antisocial? Wrote: (CITE) When I first played the beta it was good but when I got the actual game, it wasn't all that great nothing compared to how it seemed it would be.

I just so enjoyed the campaign until the very end. It just kinda ruined it for me...

ownager324 - June 26, 2017, 12:09 pm

The entire game was a disappointment. Just rushed and....just sadness

Palaski6 - June 26, 2017, 7:12 pm

I think it was a great project just not enough time to touch it up. The whole police thing was a great idea though.

Nadisty - June 27, 2017, 12:42 am

Sadly, i never got to play this game but I absolutely love the Battlefield series. I think I played the beta for this game when it came out. It was okay, but i'd of rather played Payday.

Jøjø - June 27, 2017, 3:04 am

I was disappointed in the game in general. I mean i know different company i believe but they really downgraded the graphics.

psinoza - June 28, 2017, 5:43 pm

I bought it with hype and disappointed like **