<https://www.forumsupport.org>

Here at ForumSupport we are very new but upcoming with a load new content to come that will help you with your website, blog or forums. We are happy to help improve your website, blog or forums with tips and hints on how to do so.

We currently have a custom made theme in place made by iAndrew and running of the free forum software MyBB.

This is still in beta stages so we are in need of some members to come and register to see for any bugs.

So please help a brother out and register.

Warm regards, Ricki

Just a suggestion, you might wanna get the 'secure' part on your site url (I believe it's the thing where you use https instead of http but I'm not entirely sure)

Also rip my 2001th post

it appears you already have a valid cert, just need to route resource through SSL

Cheers EagerKid and thanks a lot!

The SSL as been installed. Still looking for people to go over the forum for any bugs or glitches.

You already have four admins? Really?

You should really work on your theme as well. Looks super generic.

Two of them are the hosting provider, so their is only two.

The theme is simplistic and I personally like it but thanks for your feedback.

Just deleted the temporary Admins that was doing some work to the forums.

I was going to jump the gun way too early on this forum, I was going to post how barely any effort with threads had been made, but it's great to see a couple days later all the sections nearly have posts in them now. Keep it up

Why does you hosting provider need admin accounts for your forum?

Also can you activate my account idk if I used wrong email or what but I'm not getting one user name is Geekaholic

They probably required support and the host was probably kind enough to help them out.

Just guessing.

Sorry it was the developer who needed access.

I have also activated your account.

I'd suggest buying a sticky. It's a good investment and usually results in a couple hundred people coming to your forum.

Good luck with the forum anyway.

To be honest do you think its really worth it? Because I don't at this moment of time.

That is something I would like to add. Any idea how to do that? If I look I will most probably find a way to get each icon different, but please so share some light on this.
